Red rockets hit Saigon air base

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist rocket fire slammed into the big Bien Hoa air base near Saigon early Sunday and fighting swirled 13 miles from the capital as U.S. presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger called on South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu for the third time in four days.

An undetermined number of 122 mm rockets hit the Bien Hoa base just before dawn, wounding or causing other injuries to 18 Americans and 10 soldiers wounded, military spokesmen said. The rockets destroyed a government air force UH1 Huey helicopter and damaged a U.S. Air Force fuel truck.

The mayor of Saigon, Army Col. Do Kien Nhieu, ordered military security in the capital tightened as the fighting swirled around its northern and eastern outskirts.

In addition to the attack on the base 14 miles north of Saigon, ground fighting was reported early Sunday 13 miles from the city.

Fighting in that area continued for the third consecutive day early Sunday around the militia post at Hoa Nhut hamlet, which Communist forces seized Thursday.

In three more clashes in the Highway 13 area from 16 to 23 miles north of the capital, a total of 12 Communists were killed and four government South Vietnamese military spokesmen said. Another battle 28 miles east of Saigon resulted in six Communists and one government ranger slain, they said.

Nine waves of U.S. Air Force heavy B52 bombers struck suspected Communist positions around all sides of Saigon, dropping a total of 750 tons of bombs within 45 miles of the city.

Saigon talks continue

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam received Henry A. Kissinger at Independence Palace early Sunday, the third day they have met since the U.S. presidential adviser arrived in Saigon four days ago.

U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker accompanied Kissinger to his meeting with Thieu. There was no indication of how long the meeting would last, what would be discussed or when Kissinger would leave South Vietnam.

U.S. embassy sources in Phnom Penh said earlier Kissinger was expected to leave Saigon for Cambodia Sunday for a meeting there with President Lon Nol.

Kissinger arrived in Saigon Wednesday for a series of meetings with American and South Vietnamese officials, apparently to discuss a proposed peace settlement to the Vietnam war. He talked with Thieu Thursday and Friday and with Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam Saturday.

There has been no official information on the discussions. The newspaper Tin Song said Saturday, however, that Thieu and his National Security Council have turned down a "temporary peace solution" discussed during his talks with Kissinger.

"These suggestions are completely unacceptable from the standpoint of the Vietnamese government which is restoring an honorable peace that will last forever for the country," said the report.

Disruption angers fan

KUTZTOWN, Pa. (UPI) — A Kutztown State College football fan leaped from the stands shouting, "Get out! Get out!" and charged at Sen. George McGovern Saturday, but was stopped by Secret Service agents. McGovern said he didn't see the man.

The man, identified by state police as William E. Smith, 27, of Fleetwood, Pa. apparently was angered by a "disruption" of the game caused when McGovern appeared.

Smith was questioned for 30 minutes by Secret Service agents and released. State police also said they filed no charges.

"They were satisfied he wasn't trying to do bodily harm," said state police Sgt. David Ruff. "He was merely expressing his objections. He was quite involved in a close game and felt the senator was disrupting things."

"Of course, I guess he wasn't much of a McGovern supporter," Ruff said.

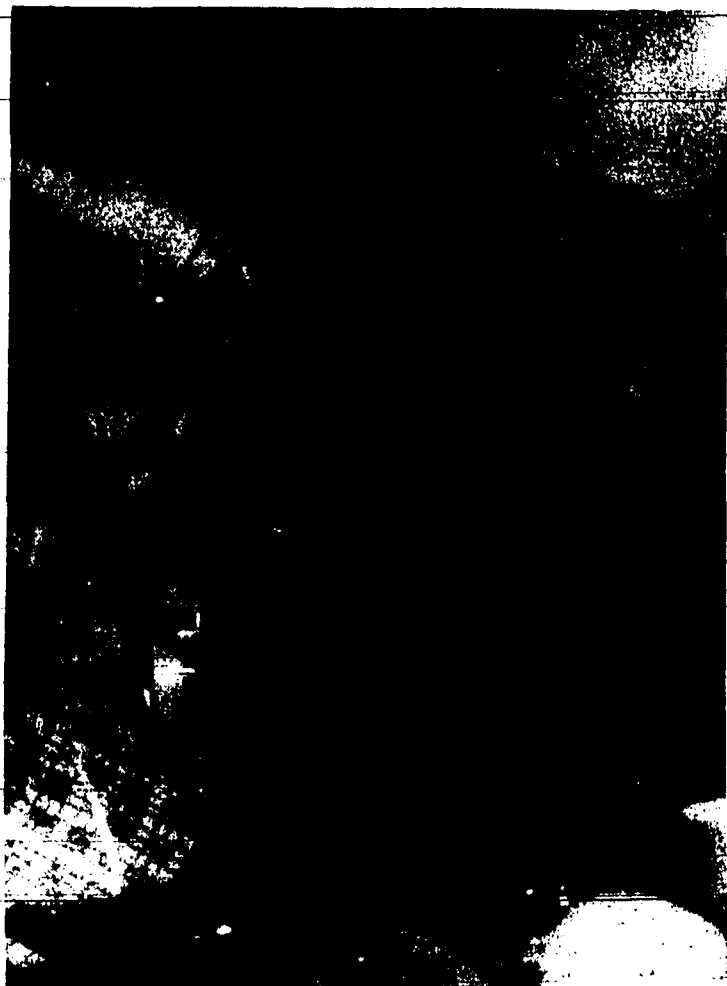

While Smith was in a car outside of the stadium being questioned by agents, Cheyney defeated Kutztown, Smith's favorite, 14-6.

Saboteur paid to aid Mac

NEW YORK (UPI)—A former Young Republican leader in Indiana was paid $2,000 to act as a political saboteur by a "spy-master" reportedly linked to top aides of President Nixon, it was reported Saturday.

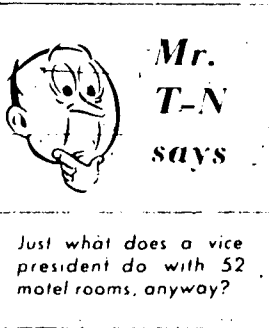

Newsweek magazine said Charles Szihlik, 24, of Indianapolis was paid, recruited and coached by Donald Segretti, described by Newsweek as "missing spy-master," who was a classmate of Dwight Chapin, President Nixon's appointment secretary. Segretti also is a fraternity brother of Ronald Ziegler, Nixon's news secretary.

The object of the projects, Segretti told Szihlik was "to swing the convention to McGovern...to literally destroy strong candidates like Muskies," the magazine said.

Idaho panel asks campaign disclosure

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — The Legislative Budget and Fiscal Committee recommended Friday that the next session of the legislature enact a law making state candidates for public office disclose campaign donations and expenditures.

Candidates running for federal office are already required to file disclosures of campaign contributions and expenses under federal law.

Boggs search shifts

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — The search for Democratic House Majority Leader Hale Boggs was concentrated Saturday around a group of offshore islands after the Air Force said it re-evaluated reports by California citizens band radio operators who placed a plane in trouble in the area.

LONDON (UPI) — Egyptian army officers tried to overthrow President Anwar Sadat's government last week, the British Broadcasting Corp. BBC said Saturday night.

"According to the reports, the plot collapsed when one group was stopped by chance in the center of Cairo by a military policeman," the BBC said in a newscast.

Demos stump in TF

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Back in Idaho to stump for Democratic candidates, Sen. Frank Church Friday night mounted an all-out verbal assault on the Nixon administration.

Idaho's senior senator called for the election of Sen. George McGovern as president, praising him as a man who would say "the buck stops here."

Church's 30 minute speech, made before a gathering 300 Democrats as a campaign dinner at the Holiday Inn, also urged the election of Democrat Senatorial candidate Dr. William E. (Bud) Davis and Congressional candidate Willis Ludlow, as well as local Democrats.

Also addressing the group, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, rebutted a Times-News editorial Friday that said he had tried to push "far out ideas" through the state legislature last winter.

Calling the editorial the "most partisan I have ever seen," Andrus said the major programs he advocated that the Republican legislature had thwarted would have brought greater state aid to public education, establish state kindergartens, "halted the escalation of the property tax."

The two Congressional candidates, Davis and Ludlow, also briefly spoke to the gathering.

Davis said his Republican opponent Rep. James A. McClure was outstepping him by a margin of 5-1, and said he enjoyed his role as underdog in the campaign.

"In an election such as this you have to chance to make decisions, you have two weeks to do the work to put our ideas across," Davis said. He also paid tribute to the "magnificence of the state, the spirit of the people."

Ludlow, in his remarks to the Democrats, charged his opponent, incumbent Rep. Orval Hansen, with abdicating responsibility in the areas of "warmaking and the power of the purse. We could have a politics of peace in this country. We ought to have a Congressman who would vote against a bad war," Ludlow said.

Governor Andrus, also praised Ludlow and Davis for their candidacies. He said Ludlow was a "young man that has had the intestinal fortitude to overcome every odd," and added he "deserves for the people of the Second District to listen to what that man has to say."

Andrus referred to Davis as his first choice for governor in 1970, and a "man with a tremendous background and a tremendous talent. He has a feeling and compassion for people."

But Andrus said the bulk of the speech to rebut the editorial printed Friday in the Times-News, and appealed for the election of local Democratic candidates to the state legislature to assist him in passing his legislative package.

But it was Church, who spoke last at the dinner, who aroused the crowd with his address.

After endorsements for Ludlow, Davis and the local Democratic office seekers, he launched into an indictment of the programs of the Nixon administration begin careful not to charge the president personally with any "venality," but saying the president had to be "held accountable" for what went on in his administration.

Referring to the Watergate incident, when five men were arrested while inside the Democratic National Headquarters, he ridiculed the Justice Department, who he said had promised a full investigation. "They found themselves innocent," the senator said.

Making a reference to the administration's informing major wheat dealers before making public an announcement of wheat exports to Russia, Church told the group, "The Russians got the wheat and farmers got the chaff."

Area girds for Agnew

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — With security so stringent that even local Republicans admit they are in the dark, Vice President Agnew will visit Twin Falls Monday.

Agnew's visit, which includes a public address at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium, is billed as a political trip to campaign for the national Republican ticket as well as Congressional and local candidates.

According to Victor Gold, the Vice President's secretary, Agnew is coming "to campaign where it is felt the vice president's presence can be most effective."

In a brief telephone conversation Friday, Gold said the vice president would be travelling with a personal staff of about 15 persons, in addition to secret service agents and the accompanying media representatives.

Advance and security men arrived in Twin Falls earlier this week, where they booked a total of 52 rooms at the Holiday Inn. The rooms comprise one entire wing of the motel and will be used to house the vice presidential party, as well as Idaho politicians and representatives of the press.

And although Gold said the vice president would be flying in from Kansas City, Mo., and leaving Monday night for Utah, Holiday Inn officials are making arrangements should the vice president decide to spend the night in Twin Falls.

Aside from the rally at the College of Southern Idaho, local Republicans are also planning a cocktail hour for the "party faithful" at the Turf Club from 4:30 to 6:30, although the organizers don't know what time the vice president would be appearing.

An employee at the Turf Club said plans were being made for about 200 persons to be at the party. Also, secret service men have reportedly made routine checks on the employees at the restaurant.

Special communications plans have also been made for Agnew's visit, according to K. G. Mann, Mountain Bell District Manager. He said a telephone line would be installed at the president's plane when it landed at the Twin Falls City-County airport.

The arrival is scheduled for between 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. Earlier announced plans to have a public reception for the Vice President at the airport are now apparently uncertain.

In addition to the communication line at planeside, Mann said, special telephone hookups were also being installed for the press at the airport, and telephone lines have been installed at the motel and the college.

The doors at the college will open at 7 p.m., with no charge to the public, according to David Mead, a local Republican organizer. He said special speaker systems would be used to pipe the vice president's speech into the lobby in case there is an overflow crowd.

In addition to Agnew, most prominent Idaho Republican politicians are expected to be at the rally. They include Sen. Len B. Jordan, Rep. James A. McClure, candidate to succeed the retiring Jordan, Rep. Orval Hansen, who is seeking reelection in the Second District, Steve Symms, First District Congressional candidate, former Rep. George Hansen and Dr. Glen Wegner, who both lost to McClure in a primary effort for the Senate nomination.

Oil slick rests

PIUTE FARMS, Utah (UPI) — A debris-filled oil slick rested behind barricades in Lake Powell Saturday while crews re-

TF senior citizen bus set

TWIN FALLS — The shopping bus, sponsored by the downtown merchants, will run Tuesday.

Parking will be permitted in front of the Idaho Department Store so it will be more convenient for the senior shoppers.

The bus will stop at Pioneer Trailer Park at 9:40 a.m.; Sunnyview Courts, 9:50 a.m.; Duval and Terry Courts, 9:55 a.m.; Washington Courts, 10 a.m.; Heritage Manor, 10:10 a.m.; Graceman Auto Courts, 10:20 a.m.; and Colonial Apartments, 10:25 a.m.

newed efforts to clean up the mess before it advanced farther down the 186-mile-long waterway.

The massive slick was held in an arm of the long, winding lake at Zahn Bay, where the water was calm in contrast to the raging current that had carried the oil down the San Juan River from New Mexico. The slick was 39 miles from the main body of the lake.

"You might say we're now in phase II of the clean-up," said Jack Halliwell, an Environmental Protection Agency public information officer from Denver. Halliwell said the latest estimate was that the equivalent of 50 barrels of "free oil" was in the lake and held by a wood boom and a natural "logjam" of debris two miles ahead of the man-made barrier.

"What they're going to do now is put in what they call a slick-bar boom, probably of styrofoam, between the log boom and the barrier of debris to catch any free oil coming through," Halliwell said.

"It's sunny, finally, and a little optimism prevails."

The oil spill began when a pipeline broke Oct. 10 in New Mexico. The oil ran through an irrigation ditch and into the San Juan where it flowed 138 miles before stopped by three booms last week. Pounding rains flooded the river and when the slick broke through officials cut the booms away to let the mess move into the calmer waters of the lake.

Arizona rains force evacuation

DUNCAN, Ariz. (UPI) — Floodwaters from the Gila River, filled by heavy rains in Arizona and New Mexico, forced evacuation of this small community early Saturday.

No deaths were reported here or in other hard-hit eastern Arizona communities, but there were six other deaths elsewhere around the state.

Communications with this farming area were all but knocked out, but the National Weather Service said the water, 3.5 feet deep in places, was receding.

Sheriff's deputies at Safford in adjacent Graham County said they had not heard any reports of missing and dead persons although deputies confirmed nearly all Duncan residents had been evacuated.

An aide to Gov. Jack Williams and representatives of the State Division of Emergency Services and the federal Office of Emergency Planning left Phoenix to fly over the area. The governor's office had asked the OEP to recommend that the state be declared a disaster area.

The Gila River was expected to crest later in the day at Safford, where 100 persons were evacuated Thursday from a low-lying section of the town, but that community did not appear in any danger.

Clifton, north of Duncan on the San Francisco River, cleaned up debris left by flood waters that hit that area Friday, forcing evacuation of about one-fourth of the town's 2,500 residents.

Clifton Police Chief Manuel Gonzales estimated damage at between $500,000 and $1 million. Some 150 homes and 50 house trailers in the mining town were reported damaged or destroyed.

Only minor flooding was reported from the Little Colorado River at Winslow and Holbrook in northern Arizona and only four families were moved from their homes.

OCTOBER 24 SHOULD BE PROCLAIMED A UN DAY OF SHAME

It was exactly one year ago — on the 26th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations — that the UN demonstrated its total subservience to its Communist masters, by voting to expel the Republic of China from membership and to seat instead the murderous tyranny of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai.

This action, which was taken in specific violation of the UN Charter, shows how little regard the world body has for any "laws," including its own, when it comes to serving Communist purposes. For this reason, and many more, we believe that October 24 should be proclaimed a UN Day Of Shame.

Panel expects split tickets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Committee for an Effective Congress Saturday predicted an "orgy" of ticket splitting in next month's election which could result in a net gain for liberal forces in the House and Senate.

The committee, which describes itself as a bipartisan citizens' organization, said it has contributed almost $700,000 to congressional candidates it is backing this year. It predicted the battle for control of the Senate would come in 18 states.

"The White House is counting on President Nixon's coattails and a mammoth drive in the South to deliver up the Senate," the committee said in a report. But it added:

"Signs point to an unprecedented orgy of ticket-splitting in November as temporary Nixonites cross back to familiar Democratic columns to snip off presidential coattails at the Congressional and local levels."

A major factor in the election, it said, is that voters appear to be adopting a "plague on both your houses" attitude about the contest.

Voters also display a keen, almost intuitive desire to assure restraints on the powers of the President, which may provide a surprising boost for a stronger, more independent Congress," it said. There is a real possibility, the report said, of a net gain for liberal forces in Congress — or at least a standoff, with the conservatives losing as much ground as they gain.

It said the President does not really need to pick up a net of five actual Senate seats — and give the GOP a majority — to control the Senate. All he needs to do, it said, is to "weaken the liberal Democrats and intimidate the moderate Republicans" — and exert a chilling effect on the Senate.

The committee also said the Republicans' "southern strategy" involves candidates made from a cloth "torn from the racist shirt of the confederacy."

For the Senate, the defeat of this strategy would mean the seating of Southern Democrats who are younger, more moderate and more comfortable with the philosophy of the national party than were their predecessors. And for the South, hopefully, it would spell the end of racism as the linchpin of electoral politics," it said.

The committee listed eight states where Senate seats now held by Democrats are in doubt: Alabama, Georgia, Montana, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island and Virginia.

It said the 10 states where Senate seats currently held by the Republicans are in doubt are Colorado, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Oregon, South Dakota and Texas.

Voters urged to study constitutional changes

TWIN FALLS — Voters in Idaho will be balloting on nine constitutional amendments Nov. 7, and they were urged Saturday to study them in advance of voting.

County Clerk Harold Lancaster said there is a state law limiting the time any one voter can spend in the voting booth to five minutes.

If every voter takes five minutes to study the amendments on election day, there will be no way of getting all of the voters in and out of the polls.

Lancaster said the amendments are being published in advance of the election and each voter should study them prior to election day and decide how he will vote. Then only a brief review of the ballot will be necessary when in the polling places.

Lancaster said the law provides if there are voters waiting, the election board can usher the voter out of the booth or voting machine enclosure at the end of five minutes.

Formerly the law stipulated three minutes, he said, and the large numbers of voters handled with the voting machines would mean five minutes per voter would make it difficult to handle the election in one day's time, he said.

Judge Theron W. Ward, Fifth Judicial District Court, conferring with Lancaster Thursday, said the amendments are highly important to the citizens of Idaho and warrant careful study before voting.

Lancaster said the voting machines are now being programmed for the Nov. 7 election with candidates from the three major parties and the nine amendments to be shown on the machine panels.

He said the machines this year are being programmed to alternate the parties as to how they appear on the voting panels. These will be rotated by precinct and by machine, he said.

Voter league opens TF information office

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls League of Women Voters announced today the opening of a voter information office.

According to league president Mrs. Ella Nelson, league members will be available to answer registration and voting questions on Oct. 24 and 25 and Nov. 3 and 4 in the Boy Scout Office, 164 Main Avenue N., and will have a separate telephone number, 734-5680.

Questions on where to register, where to vote, voting eligibility, whether or not a voter is registered, information on constitutional amendments and local and state candidates will be answered by League workers at the office.

Information will also be available to the public at Twin Falls banks, the county clerk's office, the public library and the chamber of commerce.

All league voter information is non-partisan, Mrs. Nelson said.

Oct. 25 is state voter registration day by proclamation of Gov. Cecil Andrus. On that day registrars will be available to those wishing to register for the Nov. 7 election.

Nov. 4 is the final day on which voters may register.

Team seeks world war soldier

MANILA (UPI) — A five-man Japanese rescue team was to arrive Sunday to track down a wounded man believed to be a Japanese soldier who has been hiding in the jungles of Lubang island, 75 miles southwest of Manila, since the end of World War II.

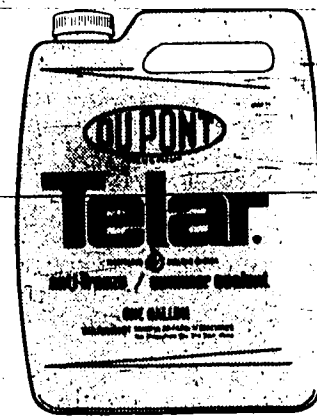

The man escaped into the brush Thursday when he and a companion were surprised by Filipino police while trying to steal vegetables from a farm. A gunfight erupted in which one man was killed and the other wounded.

Japanese reports said the dead man was believed to be Kinshichi Kozuka, 51, who was a private in the Japanese Imperial army during the war. The man who fled into the jungle is believed to be 2nd Lt. Hiroo Onoda, 50.

Two brothers of Onoda will accompany the rescue team. When shown pictures of the suspected soldiers, the brothers said they could not make a positive identification.

Candidate backs Gem no-fault

TWIN FALLS — Mel Lucas, Twin Falls Democratic candidate for the Idaho Senate, said Friday he favored no-fault insurance in Idaho.

Lucas, who is seeking the Senate seat from Legislative District 25, in eastern Twin Falls County, promised to introduce legislation creating no-fault insurance if he is elected in November.

"No-fault is a new system of auto insurance that is controversial but cheap," Lucas said. "It reduces premiums, quicker payment, unclogs courts and is the newest development in insurance to come along in years."

The newcomer to Twin Falls said seven states currently have no-fault legislation, and an additional 22 others are presently considering it.

"No-fault would provide payments regardless of which driver was at fault, all parties would be reimbursed for the losses they actually sustain," he said.

The Election

These are unusual times. They call for unusual decisions. This is why we urge voters of Magic Valley to return all incumbents to office regardless of the party line. And most of all we urge the re-election of Richard Nixon and we urge that James McClure be sent to the United States Senate to represent Idaho.

This is not a hasty decision. It was made after careful deliberation, after discussions with many party leaders on both sides of the fence and with just plain citizens who have more of a stake in this election than probably anyone else.

President Nixon should be retained in office because we know his program. The program of his opponent, Senator McGovern, changes with the coming and going of the public opinion tide. With President Nixon we do not find promises which can never be kept. With Senator McGovern we find the opposite. Scores of promises and proposals he has made cannot be kept and he and those who are directing his campaign know it.

In the Congress we need continued experience. James McClure has gained that experience through three terms in the House. He has made contacts which he will carry to the Senate to the good of all Idahoans. He has worked well with Senator Church and there is no suggestion that this cooperation between the two would not continue.

In the Idaho Legislature Magic Valley has a well rounded representation of experienced, dedicated and honest individuals. We do not always agree with what they do but their experience and dedication assure us they will get the job done — the job of being sure the "apple cart" is not upset.

We have fine men in the Legislature — men like John M. Barker, William Roberts, William Lanting, Richard S. High, Ray Lincoln, Don Fredericksen, Robert Saxvik, John T. Peavey, Steve Antone, J. Vard Chatburn, Earl Greenawalt, Ernest Hale, E. V. McHan, Vernon Ravenscroft. To this list, so far as Twin Falls county is concerned, we would recommend the election of Ralph E. Olmstead to succeed the retired Jack Claiborn.

These men have worked, and will continue to work, with the future of Magic Valley and the communities of Magic Valley in mind. They disagree often, but this is a healthy situation which has not proved detrimental in the past.

In the House contest we recommend the re-election of Orval Hansen from the Second District. He is a credit to his nation and to the citizens of our state. In District One we have no suggestion because we are not acquainted with either of the two candidates seeking the House seat.

In Twin Falls county contests we would further recommend the support and election of William L. (Bill) Chancey, present chairman of the county commission. He, too, is dedicated and experienced and these are times calling for both. We also urge the election and support of Robert W. Galley, candidate for prosecuting attorney, for the same reasons. And in addition is the fact his opponent has announced he did not want the office and tried to remove his name from the ballot.

The next few years for Idaho and for Magic Valley will be critical ones involving, among other things, federal aid in "kick-back" funds. Those who will handle these monies must be selected with care. Our present county and state officials — those who will be involved — can fill the requirements.

Five parties have candidates listed on the ballot at the upcoming election. We would recommend that candidates be selected from the two principal parties. This is not a year for spotty representation. This is not a time for stand alone candidates.

This is the time for the joining of existing — and experienced — forces to continue the advances which have been made. This is the time to put in office candidates we have seen in action, those candidates who have proved themselves.

We urge you to cast your vote November 7 with this thought in mind. OAK

Flag Etiquette

Lots and lots of people love Old Glory — but lots and lots of them do not know the proper flag etiquette.

So, inasmuch as there will be a lot of flag waving and a lot of flag display — what with the election, Vice-President Agnew coming to Twin Falls, and what have you — we contacted Mrs. Paul Brown of Filer, National Americanism Chairman of the American Legion Auxiliary. Like we suspected — she had the answers.

They are all contained in a booklet distributed by the American Legion National Americanism Commission. The title? Let's Be Right On Flag Etiquette.

For instance — during the ceremony of hoisting or lowering the Flag or when the Flag is passing in a parade or in a review, all persons present should face the Flag, stand at attention, and salute. Those present in military uniform should render the military salute. When not in uniform, men should remove the headdress with the right hand, holding it at the left shoulder, the hand over the heart.

Men without hats should salute in the same manner. Aliens should stand at attention.

Women should salute by placing the right hand over the heart. The salute to the Flag in the moving column should be rendered at the moment the Flag passes.

When the National Anthem is played and the Flag is not displayed, all present should stand and face toward the music. Those in uniform should salute at the first note of the anthem, retaining that position until the last note. All others should stand at attention, men removing the headdress. When the Flag is displayed, all should face the Flag and salute.

These are only a few of the etiquette steps so far as the Flag is concerned. Perhaps if you should drop Mrs. Brown a line she would see that you — or your organization — received a booklet, it's full of facts you should know.

Citizens Crusade Against Crime

WASHINGTON — When a new outfit called the Citizens Crusade Against Crime urged last August — in relative privacy — that the Selective Service System draft young men to serve as policemen in our crime-ravaged cities, the reaction here was come ON, Citizens, Crusade, who needs dreamers.

But now ... I mean, if Richard Nixon and George McGovern can have 42nd thoughts about their positions on everything from Communism to abortion, a plain citizen should be permitted a second mental go-round on the problem of having to hire a bodyguard every time he steps out for a breath of alleged air. To wit, is it possible the Citizens Crusade is onto something?

First off, the Crusade cannot be dismissed as a collection of kooks. Its policy committee includes the hard-bitten satirist, Cleveland Amory, Fr. Thomas McDonald, professor of sociology at Fordham University, Vincent Baker, coordinator of anticrime activities for the NAACP, and Herbert Schenker of the Legal Aid Society's Criminal Branch Section. No nuts in that bunch.

Besides, it's time to acknowledge that nothing else has worked. President Nixon has taken a tougher line and has put four law-and-order types on the Supreme Court. He has spent more than a billion dollars to implement some of the 200 recommendations of his Commission on Law Enforcement. And what have we got? We've still got crime — enough for two countries this size.

Thus, one of the crying needs is for more cops. Whatever the basic causes of crime, one must agree with the Crusade's argument that more policemen on the streets will decrease street crimes, while the psychologists, sociologists and politicians are studying the problem. Drafting cops might not be a long-range solution, but most of us would settle for a touch of short-range stuff.

So our cities should hire more men in blue? Most of the cities are bankrupt or on the verge thereof. Take New York City, with a force of 30,000. Its police commissioner says it's impossible to provide a foot patrolman for every patrol post because it would require a police force of 100,000. The cost would be $20-million for each additional 1,000 patrolmen in a town that can barely afford to turn on its lights at night.

In depressing fact, only the Federal government has the resources and the machinery for filling this national manpower gap. The Citizens Crusade Against Crime suggests that if young men can be drafted to fight in a foreign war they can be drafted "to fight in a war that all Americans will agree is essential to our survival — the war against crime." That's not bad suggesting, even for dreamers.

However, it must be accepted that the word draft is a dirty one in today's America. Thus an amendment might be proposed to the Crusade's suggestion. Instead of instituting a draft, why not a Selective Service appeal for volunteers? Despite the invective leveled at "pigs" by criminals, black and white militants, unwashed college kids and overly chic drawing room liberals, I suspect a sizable number of young men would take kindly to the idea of becoming cops.

The tradition of donning the blue may not be as American these days as mugging and pot smoking, but it's still there in some secret young hearts. Indeed, of late even TV has permitted an occasional cop to come out a hero on screen. Moreover, police work is a public service and we are all the time being told that if we'd just let our youth serve humanity they'd stop abusing everybody labeled human.

I don't suppose the pay would or could be enough to finance a monthly killing in Wall Street. After all, the Federal government is just about broke, too. But there would be the same fringe benefits enjoyed by the military, including GI educational benefits and pensions, and an opportunity to build a career for those who found a cop's life rewarding and who acquired the necessary competence to move up the ladder.

A dream? Maybe. But there is the chilling thought that the idea also might be our last chance to turn civilized.

ART BUCHWALD

What To Believe

WASHINGTON — The most damaging part of the revelations concerning the Dirty Tricks Department of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President is the paranoia it has caused in the American voter. He doesn't know whom or what to believe any more.

A chance meeting with Havelock M. Honeycomb confirmed to me the nervous state the electorate is in.

Havelock said, "I don't know whom to have faith in. You think one thing and then it turns out another thing."

"Please be more explicit," I begged.

"Okay, you were down at the Republican convention in Miami. They had about 700 or 800 'Veterans Against the War.' They threw eggs at the Republicans and let air out of the tires of the delegates' buses and shouted obscenities at Ronald Reagan. I was as horrified at their behavior as anybody. It made my American blood boil."

"Mine, too," I admitted. "But now I read there was a secret slush fund and agents of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President were sent down to the Republican convention to cause trouble there. Suppose all the demonstrators throwing eggs at the delegates, were really Republicans themselves?"

"I never thought of that," I said. "They would have more to gain throwing eggs than the Democrats."

Havelock continued, "Every time Agnew goes out to make a speech there are hecklers in the audience trying to shout him down."

"Yes," I said, "and I think that's a terrible way to treat the Vice President of the United States."

"Yeah," said Havelock, "if they were really hecklers. But suppose they're on the payroll of the Committee for the Re-Election of the President? Suppose they're heckling just to get sympathy for Agnew?"

"I can't believe it," I said. "Agnew would never allow paid Republican hecklers to attend his speeches."

"Suppose Agnew doesn't know they've been hired to heckle? Suppose he thinks they're legitimate?"

"I never thought of that. It makes Agnew's reactions to the hecklers so much more sincere. But it is hard to believe any political party would go to such extremes."

"Look," said Havelock, "Maurice Stans has a safe stuffed with money and he has to spend it on something. One of the things I read in the newspapers was that the Committee for the Re-Election of the President had ordered its agents to infiltrate the McGovern staff. Suppose all the gaffes made by the McGovern people were engineered by the Republican agents?"

"Now wait a minute, Havelock. You can't tell me the Republicans were responsible for most of McGovern's goofs."

"It would explain why he's doing so badly in the polls," Havelock said.

"You're absolutely paranoid," I said. "I can see the Republicans bugging Democratic headquarters, I can see them financing demonstrations against Nixon and Agnew and I can see them forging letters and screwing up the Democrats' schedules."

But it's hard to believe that they would have put their people in high places in the McGovern campaign to make blunders in the candidate's name."

"How do we know McGovern doesn't work for them?" Havelock asked.

"Good God, man! Have you gone out of your mind?" I screamed.

"Well," Havelock said, "he is short of money."

PAUL HARVEY

Why Bother?

Marriage counselors surveyed in seven cities report an increasing number of unhappy unmarried couples seeking counseling. So obviously that's not the answer either.

The Associated Press interviewed marriage counselors from Boston to Beverly Hills. All report an increasing number of their troubled clients are unmarried bed partners. Several counselors said it's as if the challenge of flaunting social custom, intriguing at first, wears thin after a while.

The unmarried women roommates eventually tend to feel they are being "used."

And the men in such relationships — who consider the marriage formality unimportant — soon consider the unofficial commitment unimportant.

Dr. David Mace, executive director of the American Assn. of Marriage Counselors, says all evidence indicates that Americans are "marriage-minded," that they deeply believe in marriage.

For example, more than 90 percent of all Americans marry at least once — and six out of seven divorced persons remarry within two years.

Prof. John Tropman, University of Michigan researcher, studied 6,000 men. He reports a man's chances for success on the job are three times greater if he is married.

He is "happier, better balanced, less distracted, increasingly motivated."

Though a career may sometimes put a marriage under strain, Prof. Tropman finds the men who get ahead fastest and furthest are married, closely followed by those who have remarried.

Penn. State's professor emeritus Dr. Jessie Bernard's research has rather conclusively established that married men are better off physically and mentally, likely to live longer, less likely to engage in crime.

In my chronological file on this subject I discovered it has been just 16 months since psychologists and marriage counselors were concluding that traditional marriage was in trouble, that till-death-do-us-part marriage was phasing out in favor of the hit-and-run tryout or what they were calling "the more flexible relationship."

Now less than two years later the same "experts" are conceding that the unconventional life has its own problems, and many now see the pendulum swinging the other way.

The rest of this is the guesstimate of an unscientific observer of the passing parade. From what the tides of history say and from what my frequent campus visits indicate, I'm expecting that those of today's young people who come through this era and land on their feet — if they have not made some unerasable mistake, if they have not rotted their gizzards with booze or softened their brains with syphilis or become hopelessly hooked on one of those dreadful drugs.

The ones who survive this testing time reasonably intact — having tasted the bitter fruits of all this "do as you please" permissiveness — are going to be the strictest generation of parents since Queen Victoria.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Disabled?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Help! I have a problem that I find is common among people disabled by disease such as mine.

Diagnosis: Chronic bronchitis, pulmonary emphysema, and arteriosclerotic heart disease.

Although the above diagnosis was made by two clinics, both recommended by my employer, and the Social Security administration and insurance company both consider me to be totally and permanently disabled, my wife and family do not consider my condition to be a handicap.

They feel I should put in a full eight hours' work a day, mowing the lawn, gardening, repairing the house, painting, etc.

I do manage to work at these tasks about three to four hours a day, but it's rough because the very act of breathing can be labor, and then I am nagged because I can't get up in the morning.

I am 63, have provided a better than average home for my wife and three children. My wife never had to work and the children are grown, are established in excellent careers.

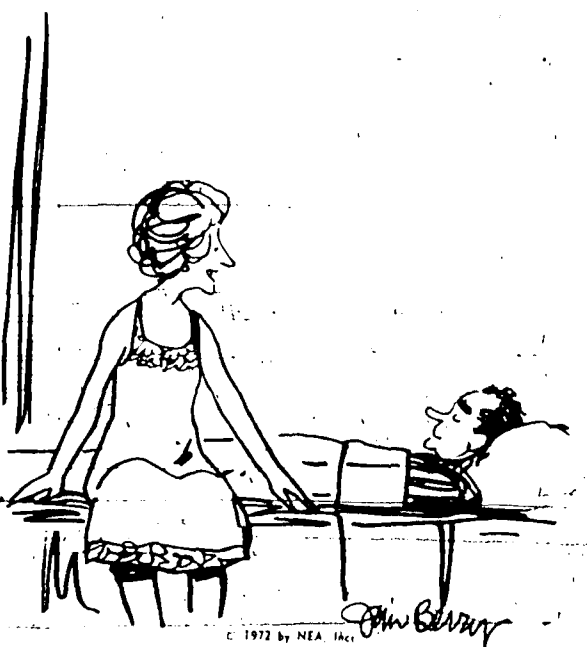

I feel that a statement from you could make life more bearable. — I. V. Hadit.

Okay, I'll use your pen name and not your real name or initials.

I don't know why, and I don't know how often, but I do know that at times there are people who have a distorted idea of what "disabled" means. If a person isn't on crutches, or bedridden, or in a wheelchair, they have a blind spot and can't comprehend disabilities that aren't visible.

In your case, your breathing is impaired and you have heart disease, and there are many people who have lost a leg or a hand and are less disabled than you are. I don't see why your family can't recognize that. Their insistence that you do the work you mentioned is clearly unreasonable on their part.

Comment: In Our Dreams We Were Covered With Oil

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER
Editor, Times-News

It's available at any office of the Bureau of Land Management in Idaho. It says "the truth of the matter is, there have been no oil and gas discoveries, there are no producing wells and there are no known geological structures of producing fields in Idaho."

Our curiosity in this matter was whetted a few days ago when it was revealed numerous land leases had been made — or were contemplated — with the thought of going down for gas or oil.

Who knows, we thought. This might be the bonanza and with a land lease costing only a few cents an acre, possibly it would be profitable to tie up a few sections as a matter of speculation.

So we called Washington D. C. in an attempt to talk to Senator Jordan. He would know who we should talk to — who would tell us the way to go, what to do. We didn't contact the Senator, he was unavailable, but our explanation to an aide brought swift response. He would contact someone in the United States Department of the Interior who would let us in on the deal, post haste.

And it happened. Two days later came a communication from the east. What was sent was a prepared information sheet which an attached note said was available at any BLM office in Idaho. We had gone the long way around to find out what we should do — but we did find out.

Now, what should we do? Forget it! Unless we wanted to risk losing our shirt, with practically no hope of making any financial gain at all, then we should forget the whole thing.

"First of all," said the information which came from Washington and which we could have obtained in Idaho, "there may be some rumors or stories circulating that Idaho is having an oil and gas boom. If you have heard any such rumors or stories, do not be misled in believing that obtaining a lease in Idaho will lead to an instant bonanza or a quick and sure way to make money."

To say the least, our sails were deflated — but we read on:

"It is true that during the past year or so there has been a considerable increase in the filing of new lease applications in Idaho, but these are all the non-competitive type of applications or what some people call wildcat filings."

And then the topser:

"The truth of the matter is, there have been no oil and gas discoveries, there are no producing wells and there are no known geological structures of producing fields in Idaho."

What a shock it was. Here was our dream of wealth shattered at the first conversation.

If, then, there apparently was no oil or gas under the soil of this beautiful Magic Valley, why all the activity in making land leases to look for it?

The word "wildcat" seems to be the answer. The land leases — and search and active drilling if it takes place — will be backed by those individuals or concerns who can afford to lose money in the effort. Oil and gas companies, for instance, find such activities as legal tax writeoffs.

But we are just an individual. How about that dream we had — the one which was apparently punctured by that initial phone call? That get-rich-quick dream!

Well, it seems that oil and gas leases come in two directions. First there is the filing of new lease applications and these are the non-competitive type. They come on a first come, first serve basis. Then there is the competitive type. Lands which have previously been filled upon, but which have been relinquished or terminated or cancelled — that is the leases have gone through these steps — are in the simultaneous filing bracket.

Come to think about it — this explanation is getting just a little involved. So much so that we are beginning to question it ourselves.

But they did tell us that they receive a number of requests for copies of the land drawings for prior months. So what? They said in the next breath that since the beginning of the simultaneous filing and drawing procedure in 1960, Idaho has only had four drawings, and the last one occurred in May of 1966. If they do have a drawing, however, they will be very glad to send me copies of drawing results if I wanted to send them 25 cents a page.

Just to sort of put the cap on our thinking, the Washington source also sent along an article from the BLM publication "Our Public Lands."

Said the article in part:

"For many years there has been considerable newspaper and periodical advertising offering Federal oil and gas leases for sale. Some of these imply that you may be lucky enough to strike it rich by relying solely on the information offered. These advertisers may offer you maps showing oil activities within a particular state. If you cannot distinguish between development and wildcat drilling, or between reality and dreamland, you'd better go easy."

You know, we had never read one of these ads but the government must be trying to tell us something — so we read on:

"In reality, the intelligent leasing of lands for oil and gas cannot be based on such information but rather on the use of considerable technical skill and geological knowledge. Such activities require, above all, considerable risk capital. The average layman, inexperienced in the oil industry and ignorant of the time and effort required for the selection of drilling sites, can be easily misled."

I was right — they were trying to tell me something. And they did!

So like the active well that has a cap put on it, we will put a cap on our imagination and steal back to our desk and get to work.

We'll leave the oil and gas search to those who have the money — and who can lose it.

Come to think of it, we really don't know what we would have done with a parcel of BLM land — oil or gas land, that is — if we had got around to obtaining it.

After all, the government maintains there is no known geological structure of producing fields in the entire state. And without money how could we see down into the ground?

Times-News Public Forum

Against The U.N.I.C.E.F.

Editor, Times-News:

Evidence has been revealed that the money U.N.I.C.E.F. collects does a very poor job in helping feed the hungry children of the world. Its disbursement of money is very inefficient compared to other charities. For instance, a U.N.I.C.E.F. publication stated that in 1961 U.N.I.C.E.F. had 575 employees and distributed about $25 million. In contrast, the Catholic Relief Services for that same year distributed $125 million with a staff of only 130 employees.

Other examples of U.N.I.C.E.F.'s financial irresponsibility include the refusal of its executive director in 1966 to accept U.N.I.C.E.F. quarters on the second floor of the United Nations Plaza. He insisted on the sixth floor, even though a large contribution had been offered by a New York company who wanted to rent this floor. The floor plans were the same, except for some additional space on the sixth floor, but the rent on the sixth floor was much higher.

A second example is U.N.I.C.E.F.'s reply to a one dollar order received for two TEACHER'S MANUALS. They packaged these manuals in a large box including many brochures glorifying the purposes and accomplishments of U.N.I.C.E.F. All this unrequested material was shipped first class airmail at a total postage cost of $10.40. Now U.N.I.C.E.F. claims that for one penny it can provide five glasses of milk, so by their statistics the postage on this unwanted material could have purchased 5,200 glasses of milk!

It has been discovered that U.N.I.C.E.F. money has helped finance Communist takeovers, as in Katanga in 1961. United Nations action there was hotly debated in Congress, but witnesses stated that United Nations officials used $10 million from U.N.I.C.E.F. in the aggression against anti-Communist Katanga.

Or consider Cuba in 1960, only months after the bloody takeover by Fidel Castro. U.N.I.C.E.F. voted to send this Communist regime $170,000 for "health services" and for "environmental sanitation." But worse yet, in 1964 U.N.I.C.E.F. sent Castro another $125,000 to spend, among other things, on a fleet of trucks and jeeps, plus the spare parts to keep them in condition. This amount was in addition to U.N.I.C.E.F.'s emergency appropriation of $205,000 to Cuba that same year.

Recently, U.N.I.C.E.F. has announced plans to funnel money to the government of North Vietnam. How does that make those of you feel who have lost loved ones in Vietnam?

Any time we attempt to aid needy people in a Communist country, our assistance cannot go directly into the hands of the people, but must be administered by the government of that country. Of course a dictatorship only uses these commodities to help maintain their power over the people by saying, in effect, submit or starve.

Why help finance the spread of Communism and the subjugation of oppressed people by supporting U.N.I.C.E.F. when there are better ways to help those in need? I urge you not to support U.N.I.C.E.F. this Halloween. We all love children, but the ability of U.N.I.C.E.F. to help them is definitely questionable.

P.S. Remember this letter when you see U.N.I.C.E.F. "greeting" cards for sale this Christmas.

Jane Bromley
Twin Falls.

(Editor's Note: Each year a "stir" arises around the head of U.N.I.C.E.F. Each year thousands of the Christmas Cards are sold nationwide. Each year we buy some and this year will be no exception.)

Highway Trust

Editor, Times-News:

Inasmuch as there has been considerable discussion both pro and con recently regarding the highway trust fund and the suggestions by some members of Congress that part of this fund be diverted to finance rail transit, I believe it is imperative that we all be reminded of what the highway trust fund is.

Seventeen years ago when the legislation establishing the program for building the Interstate System was under consideration, the big question was financing. It was solved by imposing a heavy burden of taxes on one class of citizen — the motor vehicle owner. This solution could not have been justified in any way except through the solemn pledge that the money would be used for highways and only for highways.

Ironically, the money the so-called transit advocates are after will buy more transit if it is allowed to be used for highways. There can be no doubt that the largest part of the transit job will have to be performed by buses, regardless how much is spent on subways and other rail transit facilities. Bus transportation will share in the benefits of the improved highways and the faster they are built, the greater the benefits will be.

Comment has been made by some legislators and other proponents of diversion that Idaho or no other state will lose any of their allotted highway funds, which may be true but they give no assurance that part of their allotted funds can't be used for purposes other than for highway uses.

If either of two Senate amendments had passed — one asking for $2.3 billion per year and the other for $800 million per year — for starters, it is obvious that the highway fund would be seriously depleted and consequently the Interstate Highway construction program would have to be extended until 1980 as was proposed in the latest legislation.

Idaho needs money for highways as is obvious by driving U.S. 95 and there are others that also need upgrading and rebuilding, as well as the completion of the Interstate System.

Therefore in a few words, there are two vital reasons the highway fund should be used for highway purposes only. We need better highways and a trust should mean just what it implies — a trust.

Salary Grab

Editor, Times-News:

Our legislators are at it again! Another "salary grab" is in the works! If you want more evidence of their "public be damned" attitude, take a look at Constitutional Amendments SJR-112 and SJR-113, both of which will be on the ballot in November. For example, one of those amendments calls for an annual salary of $3600.00 for each legislator. This adds up to $1800.00 per month for the two months that the legislature is in session each year. And I expect that in addition they will retain at least part of their $35.00 daily tax-free allowances. They may deny it, but there is nothing to prevent their doing so. An increase in expense allowances requires only legislative approval.

Idaho's voters have clearly indicated how they feel about legislative pay and allowances: In 1958, they refused the legislators permission to set their own salaries. (The legislature's reaction to this was to vote itself a huge increase in allowances when it convened in 1969); in 1970, the electorate rejected a new constitution that would have permitted the legislature to establish its own pay scale; and finally in the same election, the voters nullified the fantastic salary grab of 1969 (call it allowances if you will) when they approved the legislative pay initiative by a margin of two to one.

Such flagrant disregard of the will of the people must not go unchallenged! Perhaps we should take a good, hard look at the incumbents on November 7 — they're not indispensable! The least we can do is to defeat Constitutional Amendments SJR-112 and SJR-113.

Hansen's Record

Editor, Times-News:

I have just been doing some research on the Congressional voting record of Rep. Orval Hansen during his last term, and I have been quite surprised to discover that his real voting has been drastically different from the image the news media have given of him. All we hear of Mr. Hansen seems to come in the form of press releases from his office, many of which are at least misleading.

For instance, he announced recently that he is introducing legislation to help the mentally handicapped, leading people to believe that he champions the interests of those people. In fact, however, he has voted against every measure in this last session which would have aided them. Another example: Hansen announces grants to Idaho communities to improve their sewage treatment facilities and thus seems to be an advocate of "clean water."

In fact, he voted against most of the key provisions of the Water Pollution Control Act. With regard to labor interests, he sponsored one rather non-controversial amendment to retain the rights of unions and corporations to undertake various kinds of political drives among their members or stockholders, so he has the image of being pro-labor. Yet on scores of the real bread-and-butter votes of greatest interest to labor he has voted NAY. The list could go on and on at appalling length. The point is, Mr. Hansen's voting record is very bad from the points of view of environmentalists, consumers, workers, taxpayers, indeed nearly everyone but the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Defense Department. Yet he has the image of being a kind of innocuous but sincere and diligent Congressman for Idaho.

Why is there such a big gap between image and reality? First Mr. Hansen, himself, has failed to try to keep his constituents informed of what he is really up to. Instead, he issues press releases announcing Federal grants to Idaho communities, grants which, more than likely, he had no part in procuring, or summarizing responses to his mindless questionnaires with no comment on his own views, or picturing himself on the steps of the Capitol with a genuine Idahoan who made it to Washington, or announcing the introduction of some bill or other with no comment as to whether it is likely even to be considered, much less passed.

One very attractive feature of the candidacy of Willis Ludlow, his Democratic challenger, is precisely his promise not to engage in such garbage, but to make a real effort to inform Idaho voters of what is going on in Congress and what his part in it is.

A further point, however, is that the Idaho press has failed to give intelligible analysis of the activities of our congressional delegation. Ideally we should have Congressmen who are eager themselves to tell us what they are up to, but we don't, and certainly one of the very important functions of the press in a democracy is to keep a watchful eye on government leaders. Had the press been doing its job, the mythology of the Righteous Mr. Hansen could never have developed.

Prayer For Today

Dear God, we thank you for the rich heritage of our great land. Thank you for your blessings of the past to us and to our nation. We thank you for the men and women who have sacrificed so much to preserve all that we hold dear. At this time we remember and honor those who have fought to keep our liberty. May we, then, not only be grateful for our blessings, but may we be very conscious of our duty and obligation to do all we can to keep this country "a nation under God with liberty and justice for all."

Mr. Nixon

Editor, Times-News:

As I watched the President and Mrs. Nixon during the visit to Peking, I marvelled at the diplomacy that brought this about. The thought of 800 million enemies is not a pleasant one. Although we have no wish to ally ourselves to the communists, it is not wise to at least be on speaking terms with them?

What of our children and of theirs if we made no effort to break down the wall of hatred which their leaders have erected.

About Dr. Davis

Editor, Times-News:

Dr. Wm. E. (Bud) Davis, Democrat candidate for the U.S. Senate, has voiced his opposition to the legalization of marijuana.

The hundreds of parents whose sons and daughters become involved in varying degrees of drug usage on the campus of Idaho State University are still waiting to hear from Dr. Wm. E. (Bud) Davis, President of that institution, voicing his opposition to the use of drugs on the campus. They are still waiting to hear that he opposed the expenditure of $2,000 of student activity funds in 1967, to bring Dr. Timothy Leary the apostle of drug usage on the campus of ISU. If Dr. Davis ever called for help from available law enforcement agencies to combat drug traffic on the campus, those parents have not heard of it.

Dr. Davis, the Senatorial candidate, speaks about his opposition to the legalization of abortion.

Dr. Davis, the University President, continued to employ a faculty member who deliberately lied to the parents of a student where an abortion was involved. The student involved had to polish the silverware for two weeks as penalty for her involvement.

A female student moved out of the dormitory, and her parents were not notified. When they asked why they had not been notified, they were informed by a university official that it was none of their business.

The Chairman of the Speakers and Issues committee, which brought Dr. Leary and many other advocates of rebellion to ISU as speakers, was a graduate student who served two years in this sensitive position, then became editor of the University newspaper. If Dr. Davis ever voiced any opposition to this kind of influence in an undergraduate oriented University, it has not been made public. He has either been silent, or ineffectual.

Dr. Davis would appear to be the perfect companion for Mr. McGovern. If you don't like his position, just wait a minute and he will change it.

Cancerous Inflation

Editor, Times-News:

Inflation is an increase in the supply of money that outruns the increase in the supply of goods.

Government imposed price-and-wage controls will not stop inflation any more than a band-aid will cure a cancer because nothing has been done to correct the real cause. Control only discourages, distorts, and disrupts production without curing the inflation.

All the great inflations of modern times have been primarily the result of reckless deficit financing on the part of governments which wanted to spend far more than they had the courage or ability to collect in taxes.

Inflation is nothing but an insidious swindle. It has been practiced, sometimes ignorantly and sometimes cynically, by every administration since Roosevelt. This swindle erodes the purchasing power of everybody's income and the purchasing power of everybody's savings. It is a concealed tax and the most vicious of all taxes. It taxes the incomes and savings of the poor by the same percentage as it does those of the rich.

The so called major political issues in this presidential election year, namely Vietnam, welfare, pollution, education, etc., etc., pale into insignificance when compared to the most relevant issue affecting our survival as a free nation. That issue is "fiscal sanity."

Since politicians will rarely face reality, it is mandatory that the taxpayers elect or reelect only those candidates who express a desire for a return to "fiscal sanity" or who by their voting record have demonstrated a willingness to balance the budget, reduce taxes and start paying off the horrendous national debt.

Make sure that you are satisfied on this issue alone before you cast your precious vote.

The 4-H Club

Editor, Times-News:

The Twin Falls County 4-H Builders Club should be congratulated on being named the winners in the South Central District in the Idaho Community Pride competition. Of course, winning this award is a small part of their achievements. I was privileged to attend the 4-H Awards Program at the Fair and I heard these young people telling about taking the children from disadvantaged families to camp and then these young children wanting them to see "their projects" at the Fair and the ribbons "they had won". The young people had learned the joy of sharing them to see "their projects" at the Fair and the ribbons "they had won". The young people had learned the joy of sharing not only material blessings but also themselves with these youngsters. And the young people in the Builders Club had worked to earn this money for this project themselves — they didn't ask some one else to give it to them.

At the Awards Program, they were planning a dinner to show their appreciation to their leaders for the help the leaders had given them.

This would be a wonderful world if we could all learn this lesson and pass it on; as these young people have learned it from their leaders, Mrs. Frank Southwick and Mr. Dick Fehrer, and are "passing it on."

I'm proud to live in the same county with them and very humble that I'm not as "big" as they are.

Ask No Vote

Editor, Times-News:

We urge a "no" vote Nov. 7 on SJR 113, which proposes to set in the Idaho Constitution a $3600 a year salary for state legislators. One reason this proposed amendment appears on the ballot is to correct an outdated provision that legislators receive $10 a day but not more than $600 per session.

Since this Constitutionally-set salary is inadequate, the Legislators have provided, by statutory law, an expense allowance of $25 a day.

The rationale for fixing an amount of money in Idaho's Constitution is outmoded and tends to clutter the Constitution with details unnecessary in basic law, which a Constitution should be. There is no logic in placing another dollar amount in the Constitution since each time the amount becomes inadequate, the situation calls for another Constitutional amendment.

The amendment method of deciding legislative pay is extremely slow and a very costly method of changing salaries, since each amendment on the ballot costs the state a minimum of $3,000 plus the cost to the counties of printing amendments.

We favor an adequate salary for legislators that allows a broad cross section of people to serve and believe the salary scale should be flexible to meet changing times, rather than fixed into Idaho's Constitution.

Vote "no" on SJR 113.

The Choice

Editor, Times-News:

Thank God we DO have a choice in the coming election! We do not have to choose the path to socialism with either Nixon or McGovern. Our country is still free! We can elect John Schmitz, who believes in preserving our Constitution and our freedom for our children and grandchildren.

If you have noticed that our country is following the same disastrous policies no matter what the administration, vote for a change this fall! Vote for the American Party candidate John Schmitz!

Watch for news articles stating Schmitz's stand on the important issues facing this country, and you will agree that he alone is dedicated to saving our republic.

Downtown merchants will be making their own decisions as to closure and most large stores indicate they will remain open for regular hours Monday.

The city hall, which remained open Columbus Day, will be closed and all city employees except the police and fire departments will have a holiday. County offices will also be closed except for the sheriff's office. State police will be on the job as usual but other state offices will be closed.

The post office will be closed, and there will be no mail deliveries on Monday. City sanitation crews will take Monday off and will be collecting trash and waste one day behind regular schedule throughout the week.

TF County men given sentences

TWIN FALLS — Sentences were ordered for three Twin Falls County men Friday and another was granted a pre-sentence investigation.

Judge Theron W. Ward sentenced Jimmy Edwards, 21, to three years in the state penitentiary and suspended sentence, ordering retained jurisdiction for 120 days. Edwards was charged with issuing an insufficient funds check.

A pre-sentence investigation was granted Robert James Crawford Jr., 24, on forgery charges. He was returned to the Twin Falls County jail.

William Sherman McDonald, 20, charged with grand larceny, was given a sentence of 14 years, suspended to 18 months probation and given 120 days retained jurisdiction by the court. He was charged with taking a 1970 automobile May 11, 1972, owned by Byrle Carr. The suspect entered a plea of guilty.

Greg Solosabal, 20, was sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary on charges of delivery of a controlled substance. He entered a plea of guilty.

Ed-TV program leads to reading interest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Surveys of a television program designed to improve basic reading skills for 7-to-10-year-old children have indicated an increase in reading interest among children who watched the show, it was reported Saturday.

The Children's Television Workshop (CTW), producer of "The Electric Company," is

Buildings damaged in 2 TF mishaps

TWIN FALLS — Two buildings were damaged in separate traffic accidents in Twin Falls Friday and Saturday.

Ramon Guadalupe Galindo, 25, Twin Falls, suffered cuts and bruises and received a traffic citation after his vehicle crashed into the Griggs Motel on Shoshone Street South early Saturday morning.

City police said the Galindo vehicle was traveling east on Fourth Avenue West and was making a left turn onto Shoshone Street when it swerved to the east side of the street and crashed into the motel. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $500 and an undetermined amount of damage resulted to the motel.

Galindo was arrested following the accident at this home, 430 Second Ave. E., and charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

The accident occurred at 1:35 a.m. Saturday.

Friday morning at 10:50 a.m. two vehicles collided at the intersection of Main Avenue North and Third Street North, one of them careening into the corner of the Moon Rock Shop building. Officers said they had not received an estimate of damage from Ray Moon, owner of the shop as of Saturday.

Timothy E. Izatt, 21, was driving a 1972 pickup truck, going south on Third Street North, when he collided with a sedan driven by Charlotte Livingston, 17, going west on Main Avenue North. Damage was listed as total to the sedan and $1,000 to the pickup truck.

TF United Fund drive tops $35,000 mark

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls United Fund Campaign, not yet three weeks old, has gathered contributions and pledges totaling $35,323.

The 1973 campaign goal is $113,956.

Last year's disbursements to agencies totaled $70,284. $103,639 this year.

Campaign Chairman Fred Frazier told the second report luncheon of the campaign Friday noon that the money raised was at about the same level as at the same time in last year's effort.

He said the prospects were encouraging, however, because fewer of the workers had turned in their pledges than at the same time last year.

The final report luncheon will be held Friday noon, he said.

The United Fund drive hopes to distribute $103,639 to 10 charities, with the remaining money going for campaign expenses.

Should the campaign goal be met, fund recipients would be: Young Women's Christian Association: $11,008; YMCA, $8,764; Twin Falls Community Mental Health Association, $2,000; Camp Fire Girls, $1,500; Arthritis Foundation, $1,320; Salvation Army, $1,156; Boy Scouts, $37,056; Red Cross, $16,483; USO, $850, and the Silver Sage Girl Scouts, $500.

Gem Demos drub GOP failures

And paraphrasing a Nixon pledge made during the 1968 campaign, Church told the group, "He's had his chance and he's failed to produce peace and it's time to give George McGovern a chance to succeed."

"I'm not dazzled by this arms agreement with the Russians," Church said in reference to a SALT agreement limiting the expansion of nuclear weapons, "but I'd be a lot more impressed with the promise for a generation of peace if he's stop practicing war."

He said the president had given the country "the highest unemployment in a decade, the worst inflation in two decades, the first unfavorable balance of trade in eight decades."

"With four years like that, who needs four more," Church said.

Church praised the Democratic Presidential nominee as a man who understands the problems of the family farmer and the small town businessmen. He brushed aside a charge that McGovern was a radical, reminding the group the senator had been elected four times from the state of South Dakota, which he said has a constituency as "conservative" as any in the nation.

"If George McGovern is elected," Church said, "we'll have a man who will be held accountable and who will say 'the buck stops here.'"

Also present for the dinner were state auditor Joe Williams, Attorney General W. Anthony (Tony) Park and state Democratic Chairman Joe McCarter. Vincent Smazal, Twin Falls Democratic chairman and Don Pieper, a former Bonneville County legislator shared master of ceremonies duties.

Ludlow, who has consistently asked to debate Hansen face to face, said the lawmaker's absence in the state during an election campaign was "nonrepresentation at its most prominent and most obvious."

Hansen, who was in Washington until Congress ended its 92nd session earlier this week, was not expected back in the state until Saturday, according to a spokesman at the local office.

The two-term incumbent representative will meet Ludlow and American Party Candidate John Thiebert Tuesday at the Idaho State University campus.

But Ludlow said that appearance had been turned into a "forum" rather than the debate he seeks.

Ludlow's appearance in front of the congressional office in Twin Falls Friday was one in a series of three one man "debates" he has planned. Earlier ones had taken place in Idaho Falls and Boise.

Ludlow was in town Friday to attend the dedication of the Twin Falls downtown mall and a Democratic fund raising dinner at night.

Andrus eyes funds for relief, schools

TWIN FALLS — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Friday property tax relief and public education were top priority for the use of Idaho's revenue sharing funds.

But, he cautioned, the state has to be careful that it doesn't artificially inflate its spending level with the brand new revenue sharing money in areas it won't be able to maintain if the program ends.

Idaho state government will receive about $10 million in revenue sharing money this year. Because the legislation is retroactive, the amount according to the state for the current year is for an 18 month total.

The governor also singled out the state's building program as a possible target for revenue sharing money, noting it would take until 1975, at current spending levels, to complete all the projects the legislature has authorized.

Andrus said final decisions about where the state will spend its federal revenue sharing money would have to await guidelines from the federal government.

The guidelines, expected to be issued by the Department of the Treasury, will presumably dictate areas in which the money may not be allocated. It is already known that the money cannot be used with other federal funds on a state federal matching basis.

Andrus also said the state's tax revenue picture continued to support his ordered 1.9 per cent holdback in general fund spending. Figures released this past week show a decrease in tax revenues over a year ago, he said.

Andrus also cautioned against speculation about the possibility of natural gas or oil wells in the Magic Valley, or in other parts of the state, until exploration determines the extent of the natural reserves.

State and federal land mineral lease rights have been bought up in large quantity by major oil companies and speculators in the last 18 months to two years. The income from those leases, Andrus said, now exceeds the income the state receives from grazing rights.

Which one's to blame?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When a driver slams the car door on his finger, should the auto industry take the blame?

Three members of the National Transportation Safety Board claim the answer could be yes. But the fourth member dissents sharply.

The overwhelming majority of accidents such as mashed fingers are caused by "the ordinary lack of common sense care" on the part of the driver, board member Francis H. McAdams argued.

The split over car doors and mashed fingers came in a report by the board on the problem of so-called "stationary vehicle accidents"—injuries to a driver or a passenger when the car is parked.

According to the board, government surveys in 1969 estimated there were 1,583,000 stationary vehicle accidents as compared to some 3,651,000 traffic accident injuries.

Nearly one in every three motor vehicle injuries was caused by such things as "a finger caught in the door, a head gashed on a trunk lid," or a child caught by a power window, the board argued.

But the total may be cut sharply "with a relatively simple engineering effort" by the auto industry, the board said.

As an example, it said "changes in door-seal designs could provide clearance for fingers caught in closing doors, or make it less likely for people to touch doors in places where their fingers can be caught."

Board member McAdams argued the other way.

"I agree that accidents do happen while motor vehicles are motionless and that a small percentage might be prevented by improved design, however, the overwhelming majority of these accidents result in only minor injury. Such accidents are caused not by inadequacy of design but by the lack of ordinary common sense care on the part of the individual."

McAdams said he did not think the government should spend funds to study the problem because within "the entire scope of transportation safety it assumes a very low priority."

The board, however, recommended that the Transportation Department's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration collect statistics on stationary vehicle accidents and "develop technical corrections." But it added that any auto design changes "might be better pursued by voluntary methods" rather than mandatory federal safety standards.

CSI sets weaving classes

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will sponsor a seven-week workshop in weaving beginning Nov. 2 through Dec. 14.

The class will meet each Thursday from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 207 of the Shields classroom building.

Amendments explained

BURLEY — Members of Alpha-Eta chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha have been presented the proposed amendments of state constitution.

Ernest Blauer, legislative committee member of the Burley Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the women on the proposed amendments which will be on the ballot in November for the general election.

"Being an informed voter is more than just knowing the constitution, it's also being knowledgeable about the revisions being made to the constitution," said Blauer. "Each amendment has good points and bad points. It's your duty to weigh each one and cast an informed vote," he said.

Linda Jeppesen, class instructor, will teach various weaving techniques including setting a loom, weaving with nature, looping, knotting, twinning and lacing. A number of projects can be made such as place mats, window shades, neckties, purses, pillow tops, blankets and garments. The cost of the course is $20 which will include most of the materials as well as the use of the looms.

Reservations can be made by calling the College of Southern Idaho Art Department, 733-9554 extension 260.

Robbers' booty near Hagerman?

HAGERMAN — A Robbers' booty — over $300,000 in gold dust and ingots — is there for the taking, under tons of earth and stone.

So says Kenneth W. Bush in the October issue of Argosy magazine, pinpointing the precious cache beneath a huge mound at the east end of Dolman Island in the Snake River (immediately west of the Highway 30 bridge near Hagerman).

Bush spins the treasure tale through the deathbed account of Ned Leach, a miner who was reportedly impressed into duty as a gold tender for the Henry Plummer gang in the early 1860s.

"Remembered by historians as the most notorious, insensitive, cold-blooded gunman that ever roamed the Pacific northwest," Bush writes, "Henry Plummer stands alone at the pinnacle of iniquity in the entire annals of the taming of the Old West."

Quoting liberally, Bush lets Leach tell of an Indian ambush, of his feigned injury and pursued flight down Snake River bars to a 'mighty flood of falling water.'

Surrounded by high river bluffs and the wide Snake, with the Indians closing in, Leach dove into the cataract and fought the undertow until he surfaced in an air chamber behind the 'mighty sheet of water.'

Intent on protection from the attackers, he explored the sanctuary and found a cave, a "horizontal split reaching 400 or 500 feet back under the falls, and extending nearly across the river."

After a restless night, Leach again took his chances and "plunged into the flood." He escaped the powerful falls, crawled ashore, and returned to his deserted camp.

There, according to Bush, he "fixed his meals" and watched "for some party coming from or going to Boise."

The first person to come along the trail was "a solitary horseman" — Henry Plummer. Leach, of course, described his recent experience, "which seemed to intrigue Plummer exceedingly."

In Bush's words, "Plummer kept his smooth talk directed toward the possibility of entering the cave again, its approximate size, whether anyone else might know of its location, etc."

Later, Plummer's gang joined them and promptly stored $40,000 in gold in the cave.

Realizing his rather hazardous position as an outsider with inside information, Leach was in no position to object when Plummer "strongly urged that I remain at the cave until they were ready to move their gold to some other hiding place."

Leach remained at the site for three months while the outlaws came and went, each time "loaded down with gold, all stowed carefully in the cave."

When the time came to split the ill-gotten treasure, now amounting to more than $300,000, "the spring floods were so heavy and high as to make it impossible to get through to the cave."

The gang agreed to leave the gold, meet at a later date in Boise, and return to try again.

The return was tragic, as revealed in Leach's words describing what they found at the hiding site: "The falls were gone, and in their place was only a series of rapids a mile long. It was plain that the roof of our cave had fallen in, and the river no longer poured over a solid sheet, but ran foaming among the great rocks until it reached the level of the stream below."

Admitting the impossibility of the gold's recovery, Plummer and his men "went on to the Montana gold fields" and "ended up being hung by vigilantes."

Ned Leach died shortly afterward at Walla Walla, Wash., of consumption, but not before telling all to a record-keeping friend.

Bush concludes with the hope that modern technology can reclaim what nature-beaten outlaws could not.

Self-service hot dogs may be decision link

BOISE (UPI) — Ellen Mae Shannon, purveyor to statehouse stomachs, lungs and headaches for more than eight years, is convinced there's a correlation between self-service hot dogs and legislative decisions.

Her six-by-eight foot niche known as "Capitol Corner" sits nestled beneath the marble steps on the first floor. She calls it a legislator's answer to the corner drug store.

"It's all a matter of psychology," she says. "Government executives really unwind when they can cook their own food."

She pointed to an infra-red, quick-heating oven in which hungry solons place their cold sandwiches, select the proper time and wait.

When the oven light goes on, they take their meal to a nearby basket filled with assorted condiments, from catsup and onions to mayonnaise and sweet pickle relish.

"By the time they've gotten to the table and are ready to eat, chances are they've forgotten whatever it was they were pressured about," she says.

"The whole operation of cooking, preparing and eating takes only 20 minutes, and they have time for an after-lunch walk or visit."

Mrs. Shannon says it was former Gov. Robert E. Smylie's "thing" for hot ham and cheese sandwiches that finally convinced her of the food-decision relationship.

"He'd go back to his office a new man," she says. Her tiny cubicle is literally crammed with appliances and snack items. A sink filled with glass coffee pots takes up one side of her working area, while three shelves and numerous cabinets stocked with candy, chewing gum, aspirin, combs and cough drops line the other.

A noisy, gray refrigerator sits in the middle of the cubicle and gives the appearance of a giant misplaced monolith.

An ice cream freezer and a cold drink machine take up the remaining space, leaving her barely enough room to turn around.

And, as if that weren't enough of a problem, Mrs. Shannon has only eight per cent vision in one eye.

"But that's not a real problem," she shrugs her shoulders.

She says she's shared coffee and conversation with a capitol-full of well-known politicians — Frank Church, Len B. Jordan and Robert F. Kennedy among other — and has "gotten to know the ins and outs of statehouse gossip."

"I look forward to Mr. Cenarrusa and the governor making their morning stops for cigarettes," she says.

Mrs. Shannon recalled a recent incident when the governor paused one morning to buy some cigarettes. He paid her, began walking away and suddenly turned around.

"It was while all those welfare mothers were marching around his house," she recounted. "He told me he wished they would find jobs and go to work like I did," she said, explaining she relied on "public assistance" for income until 1964.

Mrs. Shannon glanced casually out of the tiny booth and, seeing no one approaching to buy a stomach antacid or cup of coffee, began sorting out a new supply of postcards.

A social hour and held following the meeting. Mrs. Dorothy Handley, Girard, Kan., was a guest.

The next meeting will be Nov. 3, with Laura Mortensen and Lillian Armaga as hostesses.

Jews get migration permission

MOSCOW (UPI)—Forty Russian-Jewish families, with an average of one college graduate per family, have received permission to emigrate to Israel without paying the Soviet government an "education tax," Communist sources said Friday.

The families, from Leningrad and the Baltic cities of Riga and Vilnius, have received permission to leave without paying the legally required financial compensation to the state for the cost of their higher education.

The group includes at least 40 college graduates who, if the current law had been invoked in all its severity, would have been obliged to pay more than $200,000 dollars for their exit visas.

This development followed a similar Soviet waiver Wednesday of the education levy on 19 Moscow Jewish families who had been initially required to pay about $300,000 dollars for their travel documents.

The waivers this week have confirmed the statement made to UPI last week by high Soviet officials who said the law would be implemented flexibly on an individual basis.

"We shall use a differentiated approach," a high-ranking Soviet educator, said, but implied that the applicant's state of health and his financial straits would be considered.

Question from D. A. L. Twin Falls:

I have three coins I would like to find out about. They are as follows: One side, a woman's head with what looks like a helmet, around it it says "Republica De Chile" and the other side says "Economia Es Riqueza" and the date is 1904. There is a wreath on this side and in the center, "2 1/2 Centavos."

The second coin is about like our silver dollar. One side has an eagle and the words "Republica De Chile" and the other side a wreath around, with the words "Un Peso" and the date 1895.

The third coin is about the size of a quarter, or a little larger, with the eagle on it and the same words "Republica De Chile" and on the back the same wreath with "1 Un-Peso" and 1934 in the wreath.

What can you tell me about these coins?

Answer: They are all standard coinage of Chile. The two and one-half centavos piece was minted from 1904 until 1908 and in About Uncirculated condition is worth about 35 cents, collector value.

The large coin, one peso, has a collector value, in Very Fine condition of about $1.50, while the other peso, made from copper nickel, is valued at about 50 cents.

However, this particular peso — the small size, was struck only in 1933. You either have a counterfeit or you are reading the date wrong. If the coin is worn so badly that the date appears as "1934," the coin would have little collector value.

The actual value of the Chilean peso, in United States exchange, is about .009 of a

From T. T. Burley: I have a very large silver coin, or medal, I would like for you to identify. It is probably a medal, but is very nice to look at.

One side shows a man with a long beard, sitting in a chair. The chair has antique looking arms on it, with something like a dragon's head on them. There is a sun in the sky behind the man. A small, naked boy is kneeling next to the man and there is some scenery in the background.

On the other side of this coin, or medal, is a beautiful cross, in a shield, with a crown on top. On the left side of the shield is what looks like a bull, and on the other side a man, with a cloak draped over him. There are two dragon heads (looks like) in the back ground.

All of these are standing on a kind of square block, with a curly line on it. Do you have any information on this particular piece?

Answer: You have a coin — not a medal — from Iceland. It is a "10-kronur" commemorative coin, issued in 1930, and is very scarce. There were three commemoratives issued in 1930 — a bronze two-kronur piece, a silver five-kronur piece, and the 10-kronur you have.

They were issued to commemorate the "Althing" — Parliament — which is the oldest parliamentary assembly in the world.

Exchange value in United States currency on this coin would be about 61 cents, but it is a scarce collector's item and if in as good a shape as it sounds like, should bring you in the neighborhood of $40.

From C. P. Buhl: Arg late

Italian coins valuable? I have quite a few. Some have a big "10" on them, and some have a "L-20" on them. They are dated from 1881 on up. All of them appear to be almost new. I would like to know what they are worth.

Answer: Even the older Italian coinage has little value. The coins you indicate would be either aluminum-bronze, or steel, and the top value, even in a brand new condition, somewhere in the neighborhood of 10 cents apiece. (Questions on coins and currency should be sent to The Money Box, c/o The Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 83301.)

Time for Living

Rogers Franklin

Retirement Counselor

Imagine the day when people may borrow large chunks of time for travel, schooling — any private purpose — from an hour "bank" just as we now borrow money!

This could be quite commonplace in the "leisured society" predicted by Max Kaplan, director of the Leisure Studies Program at the University of South Florida. I heard Dr. Kaplan describe his intriguing theory at the recent 25th annual Conference on Aging at the University of Michigan.

Dr. Kaplan suggests that as the hour becomes more productive through technology — requiring less work for the same benefits — leisure will take on new meaning. He says it may not be unusual to find a 65-year-old man working to pay back the hours he borrowed when he was forty-five. And we'll see a gradual blending of work and leisure activities.

This can spell good news for future generations of older folks who'll have more leisure time — through early retirement and increased life span. Dr. Kaplan foresees more status for seniors, more options for a fuller life. Why?

"As access becomes easier to distances through easier transportation, or as images to the world are more plentiful through communications, biological age barriers give way."

As biological age becomes less relevant, "there'll be only physical, not psychological limits" to leisure activities available to retirees.

How wonderful to simply choose how "young" or "old" a lifestyle you'd like! This freer choice would be symbolized by "degrees of activity, work, recreation, or by an internal psychological security," according to Dr. Kaplan.

One happy result of this freedom would be more mixing of young and old. I think we've already seen strong signs of this trend. Witness the college courses with almost as many 60-year-olds as 21-year-olds I described a few columns ago. Dr. Kaplan, incidentally, plays in a symphony orchestra whose musicians range in age from 15 to 75.

This breakdown in age barriers might also lead to "a decline in the prevalent negative attitudes toward aging in Western culture." Older age would be regarded as strength, not weakness.

The subtle overlapping of roles and institutions that Dr. Kaplan foresees would also tend to eliminate other differences in the world. Consider some positive long-range effects of technology in a "leisured society": "Less difference between near and far, international and domestic, urban and rural, male and female, black and white."

"I don't imagine our generation will see it, but perhaps our grandchildren will know such a time in their older years."

All of the trends would seem to "widen contact with the world for the elderly of tomorrow." Certainly that's an objective we can work towards right now. Freer choice means more responsibility — but isn't it worth it?

No snow?

Nobel Prize is salute to research scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Christian B. Anfinsen said Friday his Nobel Prize for chemistry represented a salute to scientists plugging away in laboratories on basic research.

"I guess they are going back to fundamentals this year," Anfinsen, a scientist at the National Institutes of Health, said after being informed by a reporter that the Nobel Committee in Stockholm had chosen him and two friends, Drs. Stanford Moore and William H. Stein of Rockefeller University, New York, to share the $100,000 chemistry prize.

Anfinsen won a half share of the prize for research on ribonuclease, the chemistry of chromosomes and genes. The remaining half will be shared by Moore and Stein.

Ribonuclease consists of a single chain of 12 amino acids coiled into a roughly spherical shape. It is held in this configuration by four bridges connecting portions of that chain at four points. Anfinsen said he and his colleagues "uncoiled this chain using chemical reagents that break down the bridges but not the chain itself."

"We are trying to figure out what it is that makes this long chain of components fold up in a unique way," Anfinsen said. His studies on the structure and synthesis of enzymes are basic to an understanding of such diseases as phenylketonuria (PKU), certain types of anemia, and blood disorders and perhaps some forms of diabetes, an NIH spokesman said.

Anfinsen is chief of chemical biology at NIH's Institute of Arthritis, Metabolism and Digestive Diseases.

"The main point of this work is that you can begin to look forward to a day you can explain certain biological structures," Anfinsen said in an interview. As for the prize money, Anfinsen said he has no immediate plans for it, but joked, "Maybe I'll buy some stock in IBM."

Anfinsen, 56, is a native of Monessen, Pa. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences and a winner of the Rockefeller Public Service Award, a Guggenheim Research Fellowship and an honorary doctor of science degree from Georgetown University of Washington.

Moore and Stein, working in the same area of research, have both been supported by NIH grants in recent years, an NIH spokesman said. Stein during the past 13 years received nearly $1.1 million in grants and Moore a smaller amount.

Salmon potential studied

By BOB JOHNSON
Times-News Writer

SALMON — The Salmon River, from North Fork to its confluence with the Snake River, is being studied as a potential addition to the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The study, being directed by the U.S. Forest Service, now is entering phase II which will deal with the evaluation of the long-range alternative uses of the river and adjacent lands.

The evaluation of the various alternatives will be based on national economic development, environmental quality, quality of life and regional development.

This phase of the study will result in a joint report prepared by the U.S. Forest Service and the State of Idaho.

The report will include an evaluation of the alternatives and it will be available for review by federal, state and local government agencies, organization and individuals.

The report will be the basis for recommendations to Congress for inclusion or exclusion of all or portions of the study river into the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The first phase of the study, was directed at determining if the river or portions of the river met the basic criteria established for inclusion in the system.

This phase was not concerned with justification for inclusion or exclusion, but merely the determination of whether or not the river and adjacent land characteristics meet the minimum criteria for qualifying as a system river.

Phase III, the final phase of the study, is the preparation of the proposal and report to Congress, prepared by the forest service, including among other things, a recommendation for inclusion or exclusion of the river or river segments in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System.

The forest service in its evaluation concluded the Salmon River is eligible to be included in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers System and therefore Phase II of the study should be completed, with the long-range alternative uses of the Salmon River and adjacent lands identified and evaluated.

This phase will be the basis for future recommendations to the President and Congress.

The procedure to be used under Phase II of the study calls for:

1. Inventory the resources of the river and adjacent land areas.

2. Analyze trends in the development activities and economy of the local area and region and make necessary projections of population, income and employment.

3. Estimate future demands for the water and land resources and compare with the capabilities of the natural resource base and environmental tolerance of the area.

4. Evaluate the beneficial and adverse impacts of the major water resource development and classification alternatives. Evaluation objectives will include, but not be limited to, the Water Resources Council's proposed objectives of national economic development, environmental quality, quality of life and regional development.

If the river or a portion thereof is to be recommended for inclusion, Phase III of the study will be completed.

Final recommendations for inclusion of the river or river segments, if any, will be limited to the river "area" — an average of not more than 320 acres per mile on both sides of the river.

Items to be covered in Phase II will include:

1. Establish river area boundaries and classification of reaches recommended for inclusion.

2. Identification of problems and opportunities which are involved or may affect the river.

3. Preparation of development and acquisition proposals, including costs, for those reaches of the Salmon River recommended for inclusion in the national system.

4. Recommendations concerning specific administrative action necessary to maintain and protect river values.

5. Recommendations for additional legislation required to adequately administer, protect and enhance the river values.

6. Recommendations for administrative responsibilities by federal and or state agencies, including costs thereof.

7. Evaluation of hydrologic, economic and environmental impact of recommended proposal.

The Forest Service will present its findings relative to long range alternate uses of the river and adjacent lands to the public Jan. 15.

Other key dates in the study call for receiving public comment March 1, preparing a draft proposal May 1 and review of the draft proposal and preparation of the environmental statement, May 1-Sept. 1.

The Forest Service proposal for the river will be presented at hearings beginning Oct. 15, 1973, and public comment will be received to Dec. 1. The proposal will be reviewed by the U.S. Department of Interior and U.S. Department of Agriculture March 1, 1974, and the report will be published in final form June 1, 1974. It will be reviewed by other agencies Sept. 1, 1974, and then submitted to Congress Oct. 1, 1974.

The Wild and Scenic Rivers Act provides for a five-year moratorium, ending Oct. 2, 1973, on licensing by the Federal Power Commission, under the Federal Power Act, of any water resources project on or directly affecting a study river, or the assistance by loan, grant, license, or otherwise of any federal department or agency in the construction of any water resources project that would have an adverse effect on a study river.

Entry, sale or other disposition of federal lands within one-fourth mile of the river, and, all forms of appropriation, under the mining laws, of minerals in any federal lands which constitute the bed or bank or are situated within one-fourth mile of the bank of the river.

Harold M. Bolt, McCall, Payette National Forest, is the study leader, while H. Tom Davis, Boise, is the Idaho coordinator of wild and scenic river studies, representing Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The Salmon River study plan was approved by the regional foresters of region 1 and 4 and by Gov. Andrus.

Under the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act the river can be classified into three classes:

1. "Wild River Areas" — Those rivers or sections of rivers that are free of impoundments and generally inaccessible except by trail, with watersheds or shorelines essentially primitive and waters unpolluted. These represent vestiges of primitive America."

2. "Scenic River Areas" — Those rivers or sections of rivers that are free of impoundments, with shorelines or watersheds largely primitive and shorelines largely undeveloped, but accessible in places by roads."

3. "Recreational River Areas" — Those rivers or sections of rivers that are readily accessible by road or railroad, that may have some development along their shorelines and that may have undergone some impoundment or diversion in the past."

Hunters urged to maintain caution

OGDEN, Utah — Hunters will be heading into numerous national forests in the Intermountain region this weekend.

Verne Hamre, regional forester, said hunters are welcome in the forests as a carefully controlled hunting season is one of the best tools for maintaining an adequate habitat for wildlife.

"We are impressed each year by the large number of responsible hunters who show concern for safety and protection of the environment. But there are always a few inconsiderate persons who cause unpleasant and dangerous experiences for others. They also make the management of national forests difficult," Hamre said.

He urged hunters to use care with fire, follow gun safety rules, know where they are going and leave word with family or friends and be prepared for any emergency.

He also urged persons to carry out their garbage.

Cost of living takes big jump

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cost of living took one of its biggest jumps upward this year in September, rising 0.4 per cent in what a White House official described as "a bad month" in the administration's fight against inflation.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said half of the September increase in the Consumer Price Index (CPI) was due to higher clothing prices as summer sales ended and new fall and winter lines were introduced.

Prices went up for gasoline, used cars, eggs, poultry, coffee, pork and medical care. College tuition, property taxes and telephone rates also showed increases. But beef prices fell for the first time since May and prices for fresh fruits and vegetables and new cars declined, although less than normal for September.

The 0.4 per cent increase in the CPI in September was double that of August, equalled the July increase and was exceeded this year only by a 0.5 per cent increase in February. The CPI in September was 3.3 per cent above a year earlier, and has gone up at an annual rate of 3.5 per cent during the Phase II controls.

The September report appeared to represent a campaign plus for Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern less than three weeks before the Nov. 7 election, since the 4.8 per cent annual rate of increase last month exceeded President Nixon's 3 per cent inflation goal.

"Yes, this is a bad month," acknowledged Dr. Marina Whitman, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. But she said the White House still hoped to reach the target rate of 3 per cent or less by year's end.

"The real point is what is being done about it and I think the answer is that this administration is doing plenty about it," she said, citing Nixon's program of economic controls and his efforts to hold down federal spending.

"I think this is the political issue," Mrs. Whitman said, adding that the increased rate of inflation in September pointed up the need for the $250 billion ceiling on federal spending which Nixon asked and Congress refused to approve before adjourning earlier this week.

Dr. Whitman also pointed to a continuing trend in which average wages have been keeping ahead of rising prices, giving workers more purchasing power from their paychecks.

The BLS said average gross weekly earnings of American workers rose 1.1 per cent in September to $138.75, providing a 0.7 per cent increase in purchasing power after elimination of the 0.4 per cent increase in prices. Compared with a year earlier, the purchasing power of the average weekly wage was up 3.7 per cent.

"When we compare this gain with the five years between 1965 and 1970 when real spendable weekly wages did not increase at all," Dr. Whitman said, "it becomes evident that the wage earner has benefitted substantially during the period of the Economic Stabilization Program."

The price index for food purchased in supermarkets went up 0.1 per cent last month despite the declines for beef, fruits and vegetables, and prices for restaurant meals shot up 0.5 per cent for second month in a row.

The index for commodities other than food increased 0.7 per cent, the largest since May of 1971. But about 70 per cent of this was due to a 3.4 per cent increase in women's clothing prices and a 1.7 per cent increase for men's clothing.

The index for services increased 0.2 per cent, with one-fifth of this caused by higher college tuition. Tuition prices are checked once a year in September.

License renewal date approaches

BOISE — Idaho license plates on the staggered system of renewal, ending with zero and displaying a "72" black on white sticker, expire midnight Oct. 31.

According to the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, the expiration date does not apply to license plates that expire Dec. 31, 1972, not on the staggered system.

Owners should obtain their "73" red and white stickers, now-on-sale-at-the-county assessors' offices.

No license plates on the staggered system expire during November or December therefore all plates on the staggered system must be displaying the red and white "73" stickers after Oct. 31, 1972, to be valid.

Plates ending in one with a "73" red and white sticker expire Jan. 31, 1973, and will be renewed with a new set of license plates embossed with the year "74" and will expire Jan. 31, 1974. This applies to the plates ending in two through zero, which expire February, 1973 through October, 1973.

Yellow "10" vehicle inspection stickers also expire during October of this year and must be replaced with a red "10" which will expire during October 1973.

People with birthdays in October or November should see if their driver's licenses expire.

Tours set

BOISE (UPI) — Inspection tours to gain first-hand knowledge of northern Idaho's environmental problems have been scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday by the Idaho Board of Environmental Protection and Health.

According to Dr. James A. Bax, administrator of the Department of Environmental Protection and Health (DEPH), the board will conduct a day-long inspection tour Tuesday of both underground and surface mining operations at Bunker Hill Co. in Kellogg.

The tour will be followed by an evening public information meeting concerning the smelter's alleged pollution problems.

Gem State government criticized

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Idaho government was termed "a hopeless confusion of form and function" by a state official Friday.

Joe Welch, associate director of executive reorganization with the state Planning and Community Affairs Agency, made Burley's Elks Lodge his 31st stop in a planned 42 meeting series geared to inform Idaho voters of Senate Joint Resolution 132, a constitutional amendment which will appear on the Nov. 7 ballot.

"SRJ 132, is a demand by the people of Idaho that their legislators stop the spiraling growth of government," Welch said.

If passed the resolution would mandate the legislators to reduce the present 268 agencies to no more than 20 departments by Jan. 1, 1975.

Welch said the measure's greatest hurdles to passage are voter apathy and the hesitancy of many to tamper with the constitution. SJR 132 would actually strengthen the constitution by imposing strict limits on the state legislature, Welch said.

A legislative committee of five Republicans, headed by Rep. Ray Lincoln, Twin Falls, and five Democrats headed by Sen. Ray Rigby, Rexburg, drafted the resolution.

The last session of the Idaho legislature, Welch said, overwhelmingly endorsed the proposal with all but nine of the 105 lawmakers voting in favor of it.

Welch said, "The man on the street is not getting his problems solved by the state government because there are no clear lines of authority and accountability."

He cited the fact 37 states have completed a form of reorganization and SJR 132 is nearly a verbatim copy of a North Carolina measure. Montana has reported a $2 million annual tax saving since reorganization, Welch said.

TRAIN-TRUCK collision in Shoshone Friday resulted in the deaths of 17 cattle — 14 of which were killed outright. The truck was hit in the middle by the train, splitting the truck and spilling cattle onto the tracks.

Cattle die in Lincoln train wreck

SHOSHONE — A truck-train accident at 5:05 p.m. Friday in Shoshone killed 17 head of cattle belonging to Mike Neal, Buhl.

Driver of the semi-truck trailer, which held 31 head of cattle, said he did not see the Union Pacific train, Sheriff Thomas W. Conner, investigating officer, said.

About 14 head of the cattle were killed outright, Conner said, and the remainder were shot after it was determined that they were critically injured and could not get off the railroad tracks.

Four other injured cattle were among those that were herded back from the track in downtown to the railroad yards near the Shoshone Sale Yards, where they had been picked up by Larry Finney, Buhl, driver of the truck.

Finney was not injured. The tractor cab of the truck had cleared the tracks, traveling south on U.S. Highway 93 when the train, traveling 25 miles an hour, collided with it. The engineer said he "applied the emergency control," trying to avoid the rig. The truck was hit in the middle, splitting open the entire left side containing the cattle.

Some of the dairy cows were springer heifers. Four of the 31 were small calves, the remainder all "top" dairy cows. The owner had paid more than $500 each for some of them.

They weighed between 300 and 400 pounds each.

There were 100 freight cars loaded in the train traveling east. However, in spite of the confusion, traffic was delayed only minutes. The truck was driven from the scene and the train cleared the tracks within minutes.

Minor damage was done to the train and the truck trailer was demolished.

The live cows wandered around in downtown Shoshone for a short time, but were herded back to the railroad yards, and kept for the owner to pick up Saturday morning.

The owner could not be contacted to determine whether or not the animals were insured.

Headquarters open for Cassia GOPs

BURLEY — Republican headquarters for Cassia County were officially opened Friday at 1619 Overland Ave.

On hand for the ribbon cutting were Rep. James McClure; Charles Terhune, State Senate candidate; Ernest Hale and J. Vard Chatburn, both seeking re-election for county representatives; Ray Mitchell, sheriff, and Gordon Nielson, prosecuting attorney, both seeking re-election.

Other elected officials on hand were Frank Kearns, county auditor-clerk, and James Roper, legislative chairman. Also attending were several Republican Party workers and all the workers traveling with McClure on the bus. "The headquarters will be open from noon to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday until election day in November."

2 teens injured in wreck

TWIN FALLS — Two teenage girls were injured at 4:28 p.m. Saturday in a two-car accident at Blue Lakes Blvd. N., and Filer Avenue.

City police said Rosalie June Onies, 17, Twin Falls, and Linda Danos, 17, Filer, suffered severe lacerations and possible other injuries. Both were traveling in a small 1970 foreign vehicle, which collided with a 1966 sedan driven by Vivian Mable Lawson, Twin Falls.

Officers cited Mrs. Lawson for making an improper left turn. City police said the small car was traveling south on Blue Lakes Boulevard North and the Lawson vehicle was traveling north on Blue Lakes, attempting to turn left onto Filer Avenue when the two collided.

The Onies vehicle was thrown across the intersection and into a utility pole. It was damaged about $2,000 and both occupants were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Mrs. Lawson suffered bruises and was not hospitalized.

BURLEY — The Idaho National Guard Armory built this summer will be dedicated at an 11 a.m. Monday Veterans Day program. Major Gen. George B. Bennett will cut the ribbon to the building's entrance and those attending will then meet in the drill room for the planned program.

Bennett will present the tribute in memory of Sgt. Dennis Huber. The building will be dedicated to Sgt. Huber who was killed in a training accident on the north desert.

Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy will be the speaker for the dedication ceremony.

Following the public program there will be an open house and tours of the new building, equipment and facilities of the guard unit. Refreshments will be served.

Ketchum thefts probed

KETCHUM — Two thefts were reported Friday to the Ketchum Police Department, one of them involving about $2,000 in merchandise.

Brian McGinnis, Speedy Services, told the department a quantity of items were taken from the Giacobbi Square basement sometime between Aug. 15 and Friday.

The items, valued at $2,000, were being stored for Dick Shanahan, Sun Valley. Articles included an amplifier, a reel to reel tape player, five pairs of skis and two pairs of ski poles.

In a separate incident, Bill Collins, subcontractor for the Sun Valley Transfer and Storage construction site off Warm Springs Road, reported the theft of building tools and supplies sometime late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

The items were taken from a storage shed adjacent to the site after a hasp was pried from the shed door. Value of the goods in undetermined, officers said.

Taken were two electric saws, an electric cord, an air compressor, a nail air gun and other construction material and tools.

Investigation into both incidents is continuing, the police department said.

MV TOPS rally held in Burley

BURLEY — The fall TOPS Rally was held Thursday night at the Ponderosa Inn with 102 members from throughout Magic Valley attending.

The rally theme was "Be The Best You Can Be." Mrs. Ruth Bondurant, Kimberly, was the guest speaker.

"Plan meals to preserve your health," said Mrs. Bondurant. Information for preparing meals is available in public libraries and from home economists, stressing low calories and nutritious foods.

she said. Martha Sullivan, Castleford, state TOPS queen, told briefly of the 90 pounds she had taken off through the TOPS program.

Keep Off Pounds Sensibly graduation ceremonies were directed by Mrs. Delores Symms, Pocatello, Idaho TOPS supervisor. Receiving the graduation certificates were Debbie Foster, Castleford; Linda Fox, Twin Falls; Linda Grimsman, Heyburn, and Helen McWillis, Twin Falls. Each received a long stemmed red rose.

Officers elected by Richfield PTA

RICHFIELD — New officers for the Richfield PTA are Mrs. Wendell Johnson, vice president, and Mrs. Ralph Riley Jr., secretary.

Their election became necessary this week when Mrs. Dale Sluder, president, moved from the community, placing vice president Mrs. Jodey Parker in the presidential position. Mrs. Richard Sparks resigned as secretary, leaving that spot open.

Phyllis Flavel, speech therapist for the school, showed materials that had been purchased with the $75 given to the department from last year's PTA project.

She said 10 per cent of the children in the school need some sort of speech therapy or help with learning difficulties.

Mrs. Parker announced room mothers will help with Halloween parties in the grade school classrooms at 2:15 p.m. Friday. She said the high school Halloween carnival will be at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 31 at the school.

Supt. Neil Andreason said the district was planning the purchase of new curtains for the stage at a possible cost of $1,800.

For more information, phone the Central District Health Department at 587-5357 Mountain Home. (on the same exchange as Glenn's Ferry)

'Chatburn Day' held at Albion

ALBION — J. Vard Chatburn Day was held Friday in Albion. Chatburn is a candidate for re-election as representative from Cassia County.

The event was at the college administration building, Albion, and about 150 persons attended from throughout Magic Valley and the rest of the state.

House speaker William J. Lanting, Twin Falls, guest speaker, reported on Chatburn's legislative record.

Chatburn has served eight terms in the House. He has served on the Resources and Conservation Committee for the eight sessions, the Education Committee for four sessions, the Agriculture Committee for three sessions and the State Affairs committee for eight sessions, Lanting said.

"It is a pleasure for me tonight to have a small part paying honor to Vard Chatburn, a true servant to Cassia County and the state of Idaho," Lanting said. "Honor is a reward," Lanting concluded.

Chatburn spoke briefly and expressed appreciation for the honors.

James McClure, U.S. representative-seeking a U.S. Senate seat, spoke briefly of the hardships and opportunities of today compared to the pioneers.

Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy, master of ceremonies, praised the Chatburn record.

Squad car 'converses'

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Among the hundreds of new police aids exhibited at a law enforcement conference here is a squad car that talks.

The car is called Mike and it asks passer-bys to "kick my left tire, it itches."

Mike has an electronic system which allows a patrolman to operate a public address unit by remote control.

"The car is designed to give safety lectures to school kids," said a salesman at the 79th International Chiefs of Police Conference. "You park it in a school lot and when the kids come around it starts talking to them."

"Sometimes kids are afraid of a policeman, but they just naturally take to a car."

Mike is one of the featured attractions among the gimmicks, gadgets and computer-age weaponry on display by more than 200 merchants at the Salt Palace, where police leaders from 25 nations have been meeting this week.

Another innovation to help the man in blue is a black plastic billy club called the "prosecutor," which a brochure says is designed to protect an officer from the popular police brutality charge.

The club has a short handle fixed at a right angle, allowing the officer to protect it along the length of his arm. From this position, the brochure says, "jabs, chops, blocks and many other techniques may be used with tremendous effectiveness without open shots from our friendly photographer."

A salesman in another booth demonstrated a machine gun with a laser beam sight. The laser projects a pencil-thin beam of light hundreds of yards away. The .22 caliber weapon fires 180 rounds a minute.

"You just put the light on the target and pull the trigger," the salesman said.

The visiting chiefs also got a look at a new type of highway sign aimed at controlling speeders.

The sign watches oncoming motorists with radar, and if they are breaking the limit it flashes a warning to slow down and tells how fast they are going.

"It can be used as a warning signal or to catch violators," a spokesman said. "The chiefs have shown a lot of interest in the sign. A few have told us it would make a great target for kids with BB guns."

Crackdown

LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—The Michigan Insurance Bureau is cracking down on life insurance agents who use such titles as "financial planners" and "investment counselors" on business cards and other materials.

Use of such titles tends to make prospective clients think they are buying something other than insurance and the practice "is becoming increasingly prevalent in Michigan and is a matter of concern," the bureau says.

Mind Your Money

Q — In your column on food additives, you mentioned sugar along with other chemical names. What's wrong with sugar? — Mrs. F. H., Chicago, Ill.

A — Nothing is wrong with sugar in itself, rather it's how much sugar and what kind of sugar you eat. Nutritionists generally agree that we shouldn't have to add sugar to our food and drinks. We get enough natural sugar in such things as fruits and milk (there are 10 grams of lactose in a glass of milk and lactose is a form of sugar).

Except as an occasional treat, you shouldn't have sugared confections or drinks or even add much, if any, sugar to breakfast cereals.

Why? Because sugary foods and drinks combine with bacteria in the mouth to drill cavities in children's teeth. A heavy intake of sugary products is also suspected of causing a certain condition in adults called hyperlipidemia which can lead to heart disease.

The American Medical Assn., the American Heart Assn. and the American Dental Assn. all rate sugared products way down at the bottom of their "things to eat" lists.

Sugared products are often promoted as "quick energy." This is true. You can get quick energy but the energy you get from sugar is in the form of hollow calories because you get nothing else. That's why the AMA and others feel schools should not have sugared soft drinks in vending machines and should replace them with milk and juice products.

Whenever possible, you should buy canned fruits that are "juice packed" or "water packed," and not "syrup packed." You're buying hollow calories with the syrup. Buying unsweetened juices is also recommended. Read the labels.

Q — You once wrote about buying protein powder and the possibility of getting it at a good price in supermarkets. I've checked, our neighborhood supermarkets and they don't carry it. How does dried milk compare with protein powder found for pound? — Mrs. C.R.C., Fairmont, Minn.

A — Some supermarkets do carry powdered protein products but you can also find them in pharmacies and health food stores. You can get protein powder made from sodium caseinate (one of the elements of milk) for less than $1 a pound and you can get protein powder made from soybeans for even less. Look for them in the baby-food department of a major pharmacy.

Dried milk shouldn't be directly compared with protein powder. Around 33 per cent of dried milk can be considered protein and protein powder contains as much as 93 per cent pure protein.

Frankly, I think powdered milk is a better buy. You're paying around 20 cents a pound for the protein you get and fortified powdered milk also contains calcium, vitamin A and vitamin D. But protein powder can be used as a supplement to other foods and is a good source of protein, especially for those adults who do not like or cannot tolerate milk.

Q — Is citrus red No. 2 used on tomatoes? You said it was used to color the skins of some oranges. Is this color or any other suspected color used in American cheese? — Mrs. H. M., Kansas City, Mo.

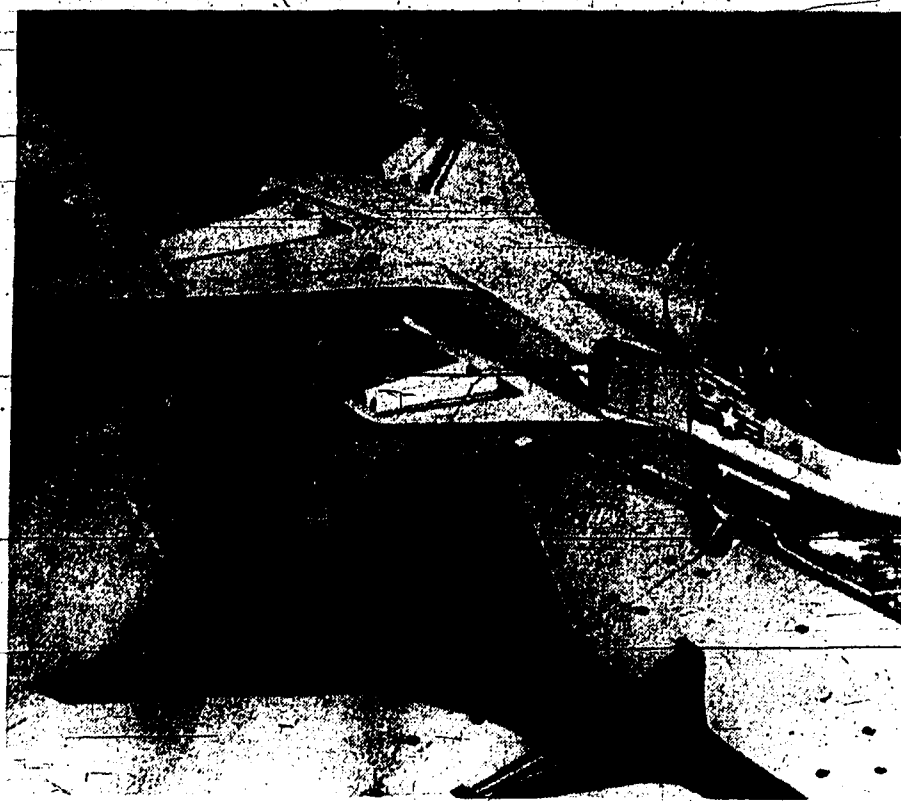

A — Citrus red No. 2 is not used on tomatoes. Wax is sometimes used. No colors or additives are known to be dangerous in American cheese.

In his book, "Eater's Digest," (Doubleday), Dr. Michael F. Jacobson says: "Florida citrus growers use the dye (citrus red No. 2) mainly from October through December to cover up the mottled green color on oranges. The dye does not penetrate into the pulp of the fruit."

The World Health Organization says the dye "should not be used as a food color" because it is suspected of being carcinogen (causing cancer).

Many of us who eat apples find the seed a real delicacy. Whenever some people I know munch on an apple they eat every thing but the stem.

Aren't apple seeds poisonous? Yes, they are, yet many still eat them. The seeds contain cyanide, and Dr. John M. Kingsbury states in his book on poisonous plants that one man who found apple seeds a delicacy, saved a cupful of them. Eating them at one time, he died from cyanide poisoning.

One apple seed eater, Tom Mansell, tells in the latest issue of the bulletin of North American Fruit Explorers the secret is to always eat the seed kernels with the fruit, never alone. He says you can't eat a large enough quantity of our common fruits to get enough cyanide to poison yourself. If the seeds are "diluted" with the fruit while eating the apple, it's safe enough, but do not eat a batch of seed as you would eat peanuts. It could be your last meal.

The time may come when we have a seedless apple, just as we have seedless grapes, oranges and watermelons. Concludes Mansell: "I want my apples to have large plump seeds, because when I eat an apple there ain't gonna be no core unless there's a worm in it."

Another reader writes: "The Great Depression taught me an apple had no core. I'd start on the blossom end, eat my way thru, chew the stem, spray it, and brush my teeth with that."

BIRDS CRASH: Birds, despite their sharp eyes cannot see glass and often crash into picture windows or greenhouses. One homeowner prevents window crashes by suspending tiny plastic turtle doves on fine white thread in a flock formation across an inside window. Another puts a plastic owl on a post. My wife puts a strip of cloth on the outside window and it helps. Anyone with better ideas? Please send them along.

Incidentally, did you know that a dove eats up to 10,000 noxious weed and grass seeds each day of its life? Every year 70 per cent of all doves in North America are eliminated, mostly by bird hunters. This could mean eventual extinction.

GARDENIA CARE: The florist's gardenia is one of the fussiest of all house plants. It likes a warm, humid atmosphere and a window affording plenty of sunshine.

During the winter months, it needs a southern exposure where the temperature is 70 to 80 degrees during the day. The night temperature should range between 62 and 65 degrees. If lower than this, the plants will grow slowly and the foliage is likely to become yellow-green. Note: Temperatures at night above 65 degrees seem to be partially responsible for buds dropping, a common difficulty with gardenias. Any change in temperature will cause the buds to drop.

With gardenias regular watering is important, so do not let the plants dry. Occasional feeding is helpful. Many use ammonium sulfate, one level teaspoonful in a quart of water. Apply one cupful of the solution to the soil once a month from March to November. Feeding during the dull short days of the winter months is not recommended.

If the leaves of your gardenia are yellow, it could be due also to a shortage of iron in soils that are not acid. You can make your soil acid by scratching into the surface a small amount of any one of the following materials: Iron sulfate, aluminum sulfate, or sulfur dust.

Repeat at six week intervals. If your plants have mealybugs or red spider mites, patient washing of the leaves with a soft cloth or sponge wet with soapy water is helpful.

WEEVILS IN CUPBOARDS: Recently someone asked if there was any connection between weevils in the cupboard and house plants in the windows. Our answer was no, none whatever. If you have weevils in the cupboard, (they are in the best of homes) try this tip: "I found a foolproof method of control. Bag everything of a grain nature in a plastic bag, throw in a bay leaf or two and seal with a wire twist. I also place a few bay leaves on the shelves all through the cupboards and have found absolutely no traces of the weevils since using the leaves."

Screwworms hit Texas

MISSION, Tex. (UPI) — The recent discovery of screwworms in the scalps of six San Antonio youngsters emphasizes that the loathsome pest, like a shark, will eat almost any kind of flesh, an expert on screwworms said Saturday.

"Although they are usually found on livestock, screwworms will attack any warm-blooded animal," Dr. James Novy, veterinarian in charge of field operations at the Mission Sterile Fly Center, said.

Novy noted that screwworms concentrate on cattle, horses, sheep and hogs because they are most readily available in large numbers and are most likely to have open wounds in which screwworm flies can lay their eggs.

But screwworms were recently discovered in a grizzly bear and in a raccoon in the San Antonio Zoo. If the cases had not been detected and treated, the worms probably would have killed the bear and raccoon just as they kill thousands of cattle.

"Lots of household pets get screwworms, too," Novy said. "We know of 50 cases of dogs having infestations, plus even a few cats."

"In fact, there are good indications that a hunting dog was responsible for a small outbreak in the Liberty area recently after bringing back a case from a hunting trip to the lower Rio Grande Valley."

The San Antonio children who had screwworms were all girls and from disadvantaged families. The screwworm eggs were laid in scalp abrasions the girls themselves made by scratching impetigo.

A physician applied a chloroform and olive oil mixture to the scalp wounds in which the screwworms were working. The worms died and the children quickly got well.

Novy said the surest way to avoid screwworms is through personal hygiene. He has never seen a screwworm in a person who bathed frequently, he said.

When first deposited, screwworm eggs appear as a dime-sized white mass, always on the edge of a wound. The tiniest opening will do for a fly to lay her eggs. The eggs hatch in a matter of hours and in a couple of days number in the dozens and are easily seen.

Occasionally, screwworms kill people. Four years ago, an Atascosa County woman in her 40s died of screwworms when they invaded her brain through her sinus cavity.

Earlier this year, a person in Hermosillo, Mexico, was reported to have been killed by screwworms in almost identical circumstances.

Novy urged livestock raisers to send in worm samples. Samples received at the laboratory dropped from 5,000 a week in August to 3,300 last week.

"And I know the situation isn't getting better. Rather, it's getting worse," Novy said.

He said the latest total of screwworm cases for the year is 78,396 in Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, California, Arkansas, Kansas, and Florida. Texas leads the list with 74,951 cases.

Syrup made

OZARK TOURISTS can sample sorghum syrup made from an old-fashioned mule-drawn sorghum mill on the Current River east of Eminence, Mo. Sorghum syrup making was once considered a necessity by Ozark area inhabitants to supply sweetener for the winter. The daily demonstrations are being put on by the National Park Service's department of Ozark National Scenic Riverways. (UPI)

Lemhi vetoes petition

SALMON — The Lemhi County commissioners have unanimously denied a petition to form a mosquito abatement district in Lemhi County, it was announced Friday.

Charles Kane Sr., chairman, told approximately 100 persons who attended a hearing at the Lemhi County courthouse that the commissioners had consulted the county attorney, James Herndon, and had been advised that the petition did not substantially comply with the requirements set forth in the Idaho Code.

Kane said that the Idaho Code required a petition to set forth the boundaries of the proposed district, the assessed valuation of the property within the district, and be signed by resident electors of the proposed district numbering not less than 10 per cent of the resident property owners who voted in the last general election.

The legal opinion submitted by the county attorney's office pointed out that the petition vaguely defined the district as Lemhi County, that there were numerous duplications in the names of the signers and that the assessed valuation of the proposed district was not included in the petition.

The legal opinion stated in part:

"This opinion does not take into account whether or not there is a need for a mosquito district or whether or not a mosquito district is desirable however, the petition does not substantially comply with the requirements of Section 392802 of the Idaho Code and the Petition, therefore, must be denied."

The hearing was held on petitions submitted by Dale Nye of the KOA Campground at Wagonhammer near North Fork. He had submitted petitions to the commissioners containing 983 signatures.

The petition stated: "Help Kill Mosquitoes. We the undersigned, being resident taxpayers and concerned citizens of Lemhi County do petition the Lemhi County commissioners to set up a mosquito control district in accordance with state law."

Nye spoke in favor of his petition. He said mosquitoes almost carry him away at his place near North Fork and he wanted to do something about it.

Ten persons spoke in opposition to the petition. Those representing livestock and agricultural interests pointed out that the spraying that is necessary to contain mosquitoes is more detrimental than the mosquito.

Ralston Adams and Tex Schmidt spoke for the Lemhi County Farm Bureau and M. J. Overacker for the Lemhi Cattlemen's Association.

Representatives of the Idaho Fish and Game Department pointed out that control of mosquitoes requires the use of chemicals which injure fish and wildlife.

Other persons pointed out the proposed district could cost an assessment against real property of five mills which is $50 per $10,000 of assessed valuation.

Robert Olson, Idaho Health Department, Boise, outlined reasons for a district and also reasons for not having a district. He said that mosquito control is desirable but that unless mosquito control was properly handled the fish and wildlife population could suffer.

The action of the commissioners kills Nye's petition.

However, under existing state law, proponents of the mosquito control district can submit a new petition at any time. If the petition had been approved the commissioners would have automatically ordered an election to be held within the district to determine whether or not a district would be formed.

Gem work corps same as year ago

BOISE — There were 57,000 workers on farms in Idaho during the week of Sept. 17-23, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

This number of workers was the same as the corresponding survey week a year ago, but was 2,000 more than for the August, 1972, period.

Of the total workers on farms, family members accounted for 40,000 down 1,000 from last year's number, and hired workers at 17,000 compares with 16,000 last year.

The nation's farm labor force for the same week was estimated at 5,102,500 workers or about 6,000 fewer than a year ago. The farm work force consisted of 3,660,000 farm operators and unpaid family members and 1,442,500 hired workers.

Farm workers averaged 38.3 hours during the September survey week, compared with 37.4 hours in August. Farm operators worked an average of 43.5 hours; other unpaid family members, 32.0 and hired hands worked 34.3 during the September week.

Harvest nears end

POTATO HARVESTING is coming to a close in the Magic Valley this week. Processors officials say all the potatoes should be out of the ground in the next two weeks, depending on the weather. This digging operation is on the Clarence Barkes and Sons farm southwest of Burley.

Soviet grain planting may fall short of goal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Soviet planting of winter grains for 1973 harvest continued to lag through Oct. 9 and may fall short of Russia's announced goal, an Agriculture Department specialist said today.

Fletcher Pope Jr., the department specialist on Soviet farm affairs, added, however, that Russian farmers can plant spring grains next year on acreage left unseeded to wheat and other crops this fall.

Pope said a recent Soviet broadcast reported that as of Oct. 9, Russian farmers had planted about 59 million acres of 1973-harvest wheat, rye and barley—about 70 per cent of the announced goal of 85 million acres.

In the last four years, Pope said, Soviet producers have usually had 85 to 90 per cent of their planned winter grain acreage seeded by Oct. 9.

Last month, Pope had noted an early lag in Soviet planting but had said reports of improved weather conditions in September indicated the seeding pace would pick up and might reach its goal.

"But they didn't catch up as fast as we had expected. They're still lagging and at this point I question whether they'll get the planned area seeded," Pope said in an interview. Planting normally continues until about the end of October, he added.

Soviet officials were believed to be pressing for a sharp increase in 1973 grain production following a poor 1972 crop which led to record imports from the U.S. and other countries.

U.S. specialists have predicted, however, that even with a "relatively good" grain crop next year, the Soviets may have to import substantial amounts of grain for livestock feed in the 1973-74 season.

Harrah's report earnings

RENO (UPI) — Harrah's Reno and Lake Tahoe have reported record earnings of $4.2 million for the quarter ending Sept. 30.

Earnings were 61 cents a share.

Sheppard said unprecedented crowds from July through September "resulted in first quarter revenues of $29 million which is a 9.7 per cent increase over the first quarter last year." He said, however, the first quarter of the year is traditionally the best part of the year.

Idaho hops up

BOISE — The Oct. 1 forecast of hop production in Idaho is 6.46 million pounds, up 714,000 pounds more than last year, according to the Idaho Crop reporting service.

The forecast is down slightly from the September forecast, however. The indicated yield is 1,700 pounds per acre, compared with 1,750 pounds last month and 1,690 a year ago.

Hop acreage is 3,800 for the current year, 400 above last year.

The harvest of hops in Idaho was complete by the end of September.

Apple harvest down

BOISE (UPI) — Total U. S. apple production this year is forecast at 5.9 billion pounds, down almost 500 million pounds from 1971, the Idaho Crop and Livestock reporting Service said Friday.

The report said prospects declined from August in the north Atlantic states and the northwest.

Western apple production is forecast at about 2.1 billion pounds. In Idaho, all of the Jonathon, and most of the Golden Delicious crops have been picked. Harvest is in full swing on Red Delicious and just beginning on Rome, the report said.

Silver

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy & Harman Friday quoted silver at 185.1 cents per fine ounce, up 0.9 cent.

Nixon rates high among farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's stock among farm voters looks so high that the GOP need not fear substantial losses from southwestern wheat growers who feel they were short-changed on the big Soviet wheat sale, a Republican official said Friday. Some Democrats disagree — to a degree.

"A lot of farmers are pretty mad about this," one Democratic aide said here.

"If you ask me whether this will swing the election, I seriously doubt it. But I think there's no question they (Republicans) will lose votes," the spokesman said.

The farmers involved are southwestern wheat growers whose crop was harvested early and sold before news of the big sales to Russia drove market prices up. These growers, who missed out on the opportunity for higher market prices, also were hit because the high prices will result in reducing their government support payments

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has thumbed down moves, led by Rep. Graham Purcell, D-Tex., to provide special "deficiency" payments. These would have gone to farmers whose lower support checks will not be offset by the higher market prices available to other growers later in the summer.

In an interview today, Clayton Yeutter, top farm policy spokesman in the Nixon campaign organization, said he doubts many farmers who intended to vote for Nixon will switch because of the wheat payments.

"Obviously this is a serious concern to the farmer who sold (wheat) early. But I believe most of these farmers will vote on the overriding, general issues of the campaign."

"I do not see this as becoming a burning issue at all," the GOP spokesman added.

Butz, meanwhile, issued a new question-and-answer statement on the Russian wheat deal which contended nobody could have foreseen the final price impact in time to warn southwestern growers.

"When they (southwesterners) were selling in May and June, the Russian spring wheat crop was just sprouting. Even the Russians didn't know then that hot, dry summer weather would cut their spring wheat production so much that they would be buying heavily in the U.S. market, causing a 13-cent rise in U.S. prices in July and a 29-cent rise in August," Butz said.

Butz noted that southwestern farmers, who harvest their wheat earlier than producers farther north, usually sell early because prices normally are higher before the rest of the crop comes to market.

"This year was no different. Prices in the southwest in June ran 6 to 8 cents per bushel higher than the national average prices in July (before the impact of the Russian sales was felt)," Butz said.

Michigan trounces Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI)—The touchdown punch of Chuck Heater and Ed Shuttlesworth, plus a 73-yard scoring burst by Joe Chapman, swept sixth-ranked Michigan to a 31-7 Big Ten victory over winless Illinois Saturday.

Heater scored touchdowns on two short runs and Shuttlesworth on one as the undefeated Wolverines scored four straight times in the first half after an early fumble to take a 24-0 lead.

Michigan's ball-control attack ate up nearly 18 minutes on marches of 80, 71 and 83 yards for touchdowns and 58 yards for Mike Lantry's 31-yard field goal with three seconds left in the half.

But still, the Wolverines needed Chapman's sprint to put away the hapless Illinois, who were inside the Michigan 25-yard line four times in the first 23 minutes of the second half but came away with just a touchdown.

Squires top Carolina

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—Jonus Erving and hot-shooting George Irvine canned 23 points each Saturday night to lead the Virginia Squires to their second straight American Basketball Association win, 119-110, over the Carolina Cougars.

Erving, a 6-7 forward who tried to get out of his contract with the club over the summer but rejoined it Friday night in New York, also led the Squires in rebounding with 16.

Guard Mack Calvin paced the Cougars with 32 points, followed by Bob Warren with 18. Warren also had 12 rebounds.

The Squires, after a tight first half, bolted to an 18-point lead in the third period, but the Cougars battled back to close the gap to one point with 3:50 remaining on a Calvin jump shot.

But Irvine, in the midst of making seven floor shots in a row over the last six minutes of the game, hit three buckets in a row to put the Squires out of danger.

The game was a physical one with 59 fouls called, 25 against the Cougars and 34 against the Squires. Cougars' second year guard Ted McClain was ejected from the game in the second period for a flagrant foul on Squire guard Dave Twardzik.

Umpires suspect

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A Baltimore area prosecutor said Saturday he wants to meet with Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn within the next few days to discuss a possible link between a gambling suspect and major league umpires.

State police confirmed Friday that the names, addresses and some phone numbers of 11 American League umpires were contained in personal address books seized in a gambling raid in suburban Baltimore Sept. 26.

In another development, Henry Fitzgibbon, Chief of Security for the American League, said he will come here to talk with police about the case.

The address books allegedly belonged to Albert C. Isella Sr., 57, an Italian restaurant maitre'd who was charged with bookmaking and lottery violations.

'Bama nips Vols in last 2 minutes

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Third-ranked Alabama exploded for two touchdowns within 36 seconds late in the fourth period Saturday, the clincher coming on a 22-yard dash by quarterback Terry Davis with 1:20 to play, as the unbeaten Crimson Tide churned past Tennessee 17-10.

Alabama, harassed by a stiff Vol defense all afternoon, got the ball on the Tennessee 48 with just over two minutes to play and trailing 10-3. After Davis connected on a 10-yard pass, tailback Steve Bisceglia raced 36 yards to the Vol two. On the next play, Wilbur Jackson stormed over: Bill Davis then tied the game with his conversion kick.

Shortly after the ensuing kickoff, Tennessee quarterback Conredge Holloway fumbled on the Vol 22 and Alabama recovered. On the first play Davis swept right end for the touchdown which sewed-up the Tide's sixth victory without a defeat.

With 70,000 fans and scouts from five post-season bowls looking on, Alabama took a 3-0 lead just before halftime. Cornerback Bobby McKinney ran a pass interception back 24 yards to the Vol 22. Bill Davis' kick carried 31 yards as the half ended.

The Vols came back in the second half to cash in on two Alabama fumbles for their 10 points, a two-yard touchdown run by Holloway five minutes into the third quarter and a 36-yard field goal by barefoot kicker Ricky Townsend early in the fourth period.

The Vols came back in the second half to cash in on two Alabama fumbles for their 10 points, a two-yard touchdown run by Holloway five minutes into the third quarter and a 36-yard field goal by barefoot kicker Ricky Townsend early in the fourth period.

Texas Tech overhauls Arizona

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Texas Tech fullback James Mosley dove for two touchdowns and three other Red Raiders ran for one each Saturday to propel Tech to a 35-10 victory over Arizona.

Mosley scored both his touchdowns diving over the line of scrimmage at the one. Tailbacks Doug McCutchen and George Smith also ran for Texas Tech touchdowns and quarterback Joe Barnes added the fifth with a one-yard run.

Don Grimes connected on all five extra point tries. Arizona got a 17-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Bill Demory to end John Muller to climax a 76-yard, seven-play drive after the opening kickoff. The Wildcats were able to add only a 31-yard field goal by Charlie Gorham.

Davis leads Southern Cal to 34-7 romp over Washington

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Scat-back Anthony Davis broke loose on touchdown runs of 44 and 14 yards and fullback Sam Cunningham plunged for two more scores Saturday as the No. 1 ranked University of Southern California defeated injury-riddled Washington, 34-7, in a Pacific 8 conference game.

The Huskies played without quarterbacks Sonny Sixkiller and Greg Collins, sidelined with injuries. They were forced to use sophomores Denny Fitzpatrick and Mark Backman, who had only five minutes of playing time between them this season.

Only a powerful Washington defense kept the Huskies from being annihilated. And Washington averted being shut out in the final period with a 52-yard march on which Fitzpatrick scored from the 10.

Senior Trojan quarterback Mike Rae guided the USC team to a 27-0 lead by the third period before being replaced by sophomore Pat Haden. Rae completed 11 of 22 passes for 149 yards and kicked a pair of field goals.

The Huskies were held to minus seven yards in the first half when they made only one first down. The inexperienced Washington quarterbacks threw five interceptions.

The victory gave the Trojans a 7-0 record while the loss was the Huskies' second in a row to give them a 5-2 mark.

A-State stuns BYU on four TD passes

PROVO, Utah (UPI)—Dan White passed for four touchdowns and Arizona State defensive tackle Deke Ballard plodded 37 yards for another score on an interception to give the Sun Devils a 49-17 win over Brigham Young University in a Western Athletic Conference game Saturday.

The rain-soaked field and absence of national rushing leader Woody Green blunted ASU's ground game but that hardly bothered White as he passed for 223 yards and scores from 31, 38 and twice from 10 yards out.

White was aided by the straight-ahead running of fullback Brent McClanahan and a fired-up Sun Devil defense that blanketed BYU in the second half.

ASU led 20-17 at intermission but the defensive unit came to life led by Ballard and defensive back Wayne Bradley in the second half.

Bradley recovered a Pete Van Valkenburg fumble on the first play to set up a touchdown and trapped running back Steve Stratton for a safety. Ballard added to the second half heroics as he picked off a screen pass from Bill August and shook off two would-be tacklers to thunder 37-yards for the score.

Utah tops Wyoming in snowstorm

LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—Utah quarterback Don Van Gelder ran seven yards through the snow for one touchdown and passed 12 yards for another Saturday to lead the Utes to a 27-6 win over Wyoming.

The Utes, who usually take to the air, surprised the Cowboys with a ground attack that gained 223 yards, also scored on a run by substitute quarterback Don Payne in the fourth quarter and on two field goals by Fleming Jensen, who connected on three extra points.

The Cowboys scored the last touchdown of the game late in the fourth quarter when defensive end Norb Olind picked up a Utah punt blocked by safety Gary Wood and carried it 28 yards.

Utah was helped by five Wyoming fumbles and three interceptions of Wyoming's Steve Cockreham passes. Cockreham had only three passes intercepted in earlier games.

WSU rolls by Oregon State 37-7

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI)—Kicker Joe Baneto provided a second-half scoring punch as the Washington State Cougars pounded Oregon State Saturday 37-7 for their first win over the Beavers in seven years.

Baneto made a homecoming crowd of 22,100 happy as he kicked three second half field goals and four extra points to pace the victory.

The Cougars were slow getting started and didn't get a first down until the second period was almost nine minutes old, but by this time they were ahead, 7-0. Quarterback Robin Sinclair took a punt from the OSU 49-yard-line to the end zone in the first period.

Once WSU broke the ice it was on their way. The Cougars scored twice in the second quarter on drives of 81 and 47 yards with Ken Grandberry taking the ball in from the 10 and quarterback Ty Paine scoring from the one.

Minico overcomes Idaho Falls 16-6

IDAHO FALLS — The Minico defense came to the rescue Saturday night when the offense couldn't overcome the muddy track and carried the Spartans to a 16-6 victory over the winless Idaho Falls Tigers.

The Idaho Falls field, still muddy from Friday's rain and torn up from a Friday night game, didn't lend itself to much offensive sparkle.

The Spartans scored about nine minutes into the first period when Rich Donner, again running at halfback, broke a sweep and went 15 yards to score. Scott Morehouse drilled the first of two point-after kicks.

But on the ensuing kickoff,

Idaho Falls' speedster Van Aston took the ball at about his own 20-yard line and flashed 80 yards to pull the Tigers to within one. Minico's defense stopped the two-point run try.

Minico protected that narrow lead until the third period when Morehouse belted in from five yards away.

Late in the game the Spartans put together another drive that carried to the Idaho Falls 10-yard line before dying on a fumble. However, a couple of plays later Bob Gerten, Brad Coil and Bill Snyder swarmed a Tiger ball carrier in the end zone for a safety.

Texas overpowers Arkansas 35-15

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas capitalized on a rugged second half defense and got two touchdowns each from quarterback Alan Lowry and fullback Roosevelt Leaks Saturday night for a 35-15 win over Arkansas in their fight for the Southwest Conference lead.

Trailing 9-7 at halftime, the Longhorns held Arkansas to a minus 62 yards offense in the third period, and put the game out of reach with two touchdowns in an 80-second span.

Leaks scored on runs of one and four yards, and Lowry chipped in scoring runs of one and six yards for the Longhorns. Don Ealey ran 26 yards for another Longhorn score.

Lowry's six-yard capped a 51-yard drive that put Texas into the lead for the first time with 15 seconds remaining in the third period before the largest crowd ever to see a football game in Texas.

On the following kickoff, Texas halfback Tommy Landry caught the kickoff on the first bounce in front of a startled Arkansas receiver to set Texas up again at the Hog 26. Lowry scored four plays later.

Freshman Mike Kirkland accounted for nine of the Arkansas points on first half field goals of 34, 36 and 37 yards. Quarterback Joe Ferguson hit Mike Reppond for five yards with 1:08 to go for the only Hog touchdown.

Ferguson, battling the Longhorn defense and an intermittent heavy rains, never got the touted Razorback passing attack in gear until the closing minutes of the game.

A record crowd of 80,884 watched as Texas' second half surge established the Longhorns as favorites for the conference crown.

Lowry, operating the Texas Wishbone offense, ran for 156 yards in 22 carries, and Leaks added 154 on 34 tries despite eight Texas fumbles — five of which Arkansas recovered.

Only one

CHICAGO (UPI) — National Football League title play has been going on since 1933 but Charilus Trippi of the 1947 Chicago Cardinals is the only player ever to score on a punt return in a title game. Trippi's jaunt, 75 yards, helped defeat the Philadelphia Eagles, 28-21.

Lee completed 14 passes for 266 yards and hit on scoring aerials of 37, 19 and two yards to lead the Bengals to a 2-0 Big Sky record and set up a showdown with Montana State for the league title battle.

Freshman split end Dave Schultz was on the receiving end of two touchdown passes as Lee kept the Vandals off balance with his play action passes. Schultz had three catches for 64 and carried twice for 36 yards on end-around plays.

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Statistics of the Idaho-Idaho State football game:

	Idaho	ISU
First downs	22	21
Rushes-yards	44-186	47-196
Passing yards	145	291
Return yards	75	54
Passes	14-32-3	15-32-3
Punts	7-30-6	5-40-4
Fumbles-lost	4-4	3-3
Penalties-yards	3-25	5-49

Lee's third td pass came on a scramble with him, sidesteaming the ball to Mike Davis in the endzone in the fourth quarter.

Sophomore halfback Jim Witkowski scored his sixth and seventh touchdown of the season on a 10 yard run for the Bengals first score and on a four-yard plunge with 3:12 left in the half.

The Bengals halfback Rene Garnett carried 16 times for 83 yards to finish as the game's leading rusher.

Idaho got its only score with two minutes left in the third quarter on a four-yard run by Randy Ammerman following a shot punt to the ISU 46.

Defensive end Tom Tonner block one punt, deflected two passes and was in 16 tackles to take the standout role for the Bengal Defense. And ISU line-back Phil Spain was in on 18 tackles to finish the top defensive point getter.

Ducks end Stanford's bowl hopes

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Junior Hugh Woodward kicked three field goals and halfback Don Reynolds raced 85 yards for a touchdown as Oregon rose from the depths of its worst season Saturday to ruin Stanford's hopes for a third straight Rose Bowl appearance with a 15-13 victory.

Oregon, which gave up more than 60 points in losing to Oklahoma and UCLA, put up a rugged defense that held Stanford to only five yards in the first half.

Woodward, who was in the game because Oregon's regular placekicker Keith Lively was injured, booted field goals of 37, 24 and 45 yards in the first half.

Reynolds, starting only his second game, took a pitchout from quarterback Dan Fouts late in the first period and ran from his own 13 to score.

Stanford, behind 15-0 at halftime and the upset victor over Big Ten rivals in the last two Rose Bowls, came back strong in the third period and almost evaded suffering its second Pacific-8 loss of the season.

New Mexico cans UTEP grid coach

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — New Mexico runners, led by Rich Diller with 117 yards and Bob Barber with three touchdowns, romped to a school record 522 yards, eight touchdowns and a 56-7 victory over Texas-El Paso Saturday night ending the coaching career of the Miners' Bobby Dobbs.

Dobbs announced last week that if his Miners lost to New Mexico, he would resign his post immediately. The defeat was the worst in his seven and a half years at UTEP.

The Lobos ran to a 21-0 lead at halftime on a pair of touchdowns by Barber, of five and three yards and a one-yard scoring scamper by Eddie Dunaway.

The first four Miner possessions of the second half resulted in two lost fumbles and a pilfered pass to put the game out of reach.

For the night Barber had 80 yards and three touchdowns in 15 carries. Diller added 117 yards in only nine carries for the Lobos and Fred Henry stepped off 111 yards in 13 carries.

All eight UNM touchdowns came on the ground. The only UTEP score came on the last play of the game when frosh quarterback Mark Jackson capped an 89-yard drive with a one-yard touchdown.

The victory left UNM at 2-1 in Western Athletic Conference play and 3-3 for the season. UTEP slumped to 0-3 and 1-5 overall.

Montana State knocks BSC from Big Sky lead

BOZEMAN, MONT. (UPI) — Montana State quarterback Zoonie McLean hooked up with his favorite receiver, split end Sam McCullum, for three touchdowns as the fired Bobcats smashed favored Boise State 37-10 Saturday.

The Broncos, ranked 10th in the small college poll, scored first on a 38-yard field goal by Joe Larkin midway through the first period. But it was all MSU after that, tailback Wayne Edwards starting the rout by plunging across the field from the five after the 'Cats gobbled up a Bronco fumble. Edwards rushed for 91 yards in the game.

The visitors fumbled the resulting kickoff and McLean tossed a nine-yard scoring pass to McCullum three plays later to make it 14-3.

The swarming MSU defensive unit, led by tackle Bill Killar and defensive ends Lynn Schenk and Greg Maurer, threw Bronco quarterback Ron Auteley for losses repeatedly as he tried to pass.

The Broncos finally scored a touchdown late in the final period when they marched 70 yards against the Bobcat reserves. Gary Hoshaw plunged over from the one.

McCullum had grabbed an 18-yarder in the second period and a 35-yarder in the third quarter, with a 37-yard field goal by freshman Pat Bolton sandwiched between them.

The final Bobcat score was a six-yard run by fullback Don Bagley.

The victory puts the Bobcats in the driver seat in the Big Sky

Conference with a 4-0 record and improved their season record to 5-2.

Boise State, now 1-1 in the league, dropped to 4-2 overall.

South Hills deer success increases

Deer hunting success in the South Hills increased about five per cent overall according to figures compiled at four Idaho Fish and Game Department checking stations Saturday.

Dale Turnipseed said hunters generally found hunting conditions good with very little fog. Some snow was reported in the high elevations in the early morning but is soon disappeared. Road conditions were considered quite bad in the eastern portion, slick in the Shoshone basin and "quite" accessible in Rock Creek.

Overall the department checked 889 hunters with 350 deer and a 39.3 success ratio. Last year's figures were 668 hunters with 230 deer and a 34.4 per cent.

"Most of the hunters reported seeing a lot of deer," Turnipseed said. He added lack of radio equipment in the Rogerson and Three Creeks areas prevented the department from getting the data out Saturday evening.

For the most part hunters were cooperating with the department in bringing out jawbones and teeth, used as management tools. Turnipseed said the cooperation was better than it has ever been in that regard.

Hunters got through the day with little mishap. Only one report of an injury was received. An unidentified hunter sustained a heavy fall and was believed to have some internal bleeding.

The figures released by the department do not represent the total number of hunters afield or deer harvested, merely a trend of hunter participation and success and size of the herd.

The reports by station include: Oakley — 114 hunters with 46 deer and 40 per cent success. Rock Creek — 289 hunters with 110 deer and 38 per cent success. (Last year only 60 deer were counted through the station).

Shoshone Basin — 181 hunters with 67 deer and 37 per cent success.

Albion — 305 hunters with 127 deer and 42 per cent success.

Weber uses fumbles to beat NAU

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (UPI) — Weber State College turned two Northern Arizona fumbles into scoring opportunities late in the first quarter and didn't stop there, posting a 28-7 victory over the Lumberjacks Saturday.

Linebacker George Hess recovered an NAU fumble on the Weber State five-yard line and the Wildcats marched 95 yards in 14 plays with halfback Al Butler going over for the touchdown on an eight-yard run.

On the following kickoff, Dave Howard fumbled and Weber State's Chad Drecksel recovered on the NAU 14. Two plays later halfback Phil Bland took a pitchout around left end and scampered eight yards for Weber State's second td.

Halfback Rick Bojack, the game's leading rusher with 105 yards in 12 carries, got the Wildcats' third touchdown, scoring on a 12-yard run to give Weber State a 21-0 halftime advantage.

Northern Arizona got its lone td in the third quarter when tailback Bo Williams scored from one-yard out. Fullback Rudy Metoyer added insurance for Weber State on a one-yard plunge in the final quarter.

Bibby-led NY drops 76ers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry Bibby, the most explosive rookie guard to hit New York since Walt Frazier came out of Southern Illinois six years ago, triggered a 16-3 surge with three long jumpers late in the third quarter and the Knicks went on to defeat the winless Philadelphia 76ers, 111-88, Saturday night.

Bibby, an ex-UCLA All-America, scored 17 points, stole the ball three times and intercepted a half-dozen passes as New York won its fifth game in six starts and Philadelphia dropped its fifth straight.

The spirited Knicks' backcourt freshman gave New York the lead at 61-59 with 3:37 left in the third quarter and after Bill Bridges' basket tied the score, Bill Bradley put the Knicks in front for good at 63-61 with 3:04 to go in the session.

Jerome outduels Filer in 26-18 win

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers outduelled the Filer Wildcats 26-18 Friday night to clinch at least a tie for their second South Central Idaho Conference championship.

The Jerome win coupled with Mountain Home's defeat to Buhl, gave the Tigers a one-game lead with one left to play. That one comes Nov. 10 when the Tigers invade Buhl.

Meanwhile, Jerome plays host to Burley next week with the Cross State Conference title riding the outcome.

The Tigers looked like the heavy favorites they were in the first period when they rolled for two touchdowns. The first came on a 50-yard pass and run play from Rich Watson to Stacy Camp.

Dave Peterson plunged for the two-pointer. Minutes later Lance Johns capped a Jerome drive by plunging in from two yards away.

It stayed like that until the third period when Steve Thaele hit Bruce Lincoln on a 50-yard bomb. Jerome took the ensuing kickoff and ground out a touchdown, Johns getting it on a three-yard burst.

But before the period ended the Wildcats came back on a six-yard pass from Thaele to Rockne Lammers.

Twin Falls, placing five men in the top six, won the A division with 17 points, followed by Burley at 61 and Minico at 71.

In the B division, Wood River won with 42 against 49 for Jerome. Gary Sievers paced the Twin Falls victory by winning the A division first, followed across by surprise sophomore finisher Gary Miller.

Dave Sears was third while Jarman of Burley was fourth. Then came Bruins Doug Larson and Jim Kennedy.

Steve McCalley of Gooding State won the B division but the Redskins didn't have enough men for a team score. Monte Brothwell was second.

All the teams will run in state.

Bonneville splashes by Burley

IDAHO FALLS — Bonneville's 230-pound fullback Rod Bullen, taking advantage of a water covered field during an incessant rainstorm, churned for two touchdowns and three two-point conversions to beat Burley 24-0 and sew up the eastern Idaho Conference championship.

The wet, muddy field — getting steadily wetter and muddier — proved too slick for Burley's pony backfield. But Bullen had little trouble with slipping as he banged in from the two early in the game after Burley had fumbled at the 20.

In the second period his little brother, 185-pound Bob Bullen swept in from the 15 and in the third quarter Rod Bullen came back to score on a one-yard buck.

Although denied this title, Burley still isn't out of the championship picture. The Bobcats travel to Jerome next week with a chance to claim the Cross State crown.

Navy stuns Air Force

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI)—Running back Dan Howard took a handoff from second-string quarterback Al Glenny and ran five yards for a touchdown with 31 seconds remaining Saturday to give Navy a 21-17 upset victory over 14th-ranked Air Force.

Glenny, a 195-pound junior, came off the bench in the first quarter to replace starter Fred Stubeck after Air Force quarterback Rich Hayne scored on a one-yard run.

Jerome moved out of reach early in the third quarter when Dave Peterson culminated a drive from a yard away.

Filer cut the deficit to eight in the final minute when Thaele threw a 15-yard scoring strike to Lammers.

The Wildcats threw for 145 yards and picked up 91 on the ground while Jerome had 243 rushing and threw for 134 more.

Gooding tops W.R., eyes league crown

GOODING — Cash Nichols scored two touchdowns Friday night in leading the Gooding Senators past the Wood River Wolverines 21-9, handing the Wolverines their first setback in the Big Six Conference.

The victory also gave Gooding the advantage in the league with a 4-1 record, assuring them of no worse than a draw. Wood River is the only other team in the loop with one loss.

The Senators scored after a fumble in the first period after Wood River had stopped a drive. The Senators got the ball back on the 27-yard line and four plays later Mark Cheslik swept in. Joe Blair tacked on the first of three extra points.

Wood River had to punt shortly after the kickoff and Gooding went driving again. The touchdown came on a nifty cutback run by Nichols who covered 24 yards.

Late in the half Wood River blocked a punt and Jimbo Hurst booted a 22-yard field goal to get the Wolverines on the board.

Gooding pulled out of reach on its first possession in the second half, driving 76 yards before Nichols plunged in from the one.

Wood River started taking over the momentum of the game shortly after that but couldn't score enough to get back into the game.

The Wolverines dug deep into Gooding territory in the last period but appeared stymied on an interception. However, Gooding fumbled the ball back and a couple of plays later Bergin scored from the six.

Joe Ritchey took over for Valley in the third period. On the Vikings' first possession they drove to the one-yard line before sending Ritchey across. Minutes later he shook loose on a 70-yard run that iced the decision.

Richfield rolls past Bliss 36-12

BLISS — Mike Robinson scored three times to lead the Richfield Tigers to a 36-12 victory over the Bliss Bears Friday afternoon.

Robinson opened scoring when he shook loose on a 36-yard romp and came back for the points after. Nick Hubsmith added the second from six yards away and also ran for the extra points to make it 16-0 at halftime.

In the second half Wade Allred and Robinson hooked up on a 12-yard scoring pass and later Dave Brown threw to Jamie Andreason on a pass and run play that covered 36 yards.

Robinson converted on the fifth score, then wound it up with a 23-yard run.

Bliss' tallies came on a 15-yard burst by Art Butler and a 60-yard pass and run play from Earl Hoffman to Kelly Schroeder.

Rimrock surprises Dietrich

GRAND VIEW — Tod Agenbrood and Buster Ridley scored twice apiece Friday night to lift the surprising Rimrock Raiders past Dietrich 33-30.

Agensbrood scored on a 35-yard pass and Bruce Bybee converted early in the game. Dietrich replied on a Ken Meservy to Craig Sorenson pass but stayed behind when the conversion was stopped.

In the second period, Ridley plunged in for two short touchdowns, the second after a Dietrich fumble at the 10 for a 20-6 halftime lead.

Agensbrood scored on a double reverse in the third period to make it 26-6. Dietrich started back early in the fourth when Dan Weiss dived over and added the points but Rimrock then moved out of reach on a 50-yard bomb to Jay Smith, who also kicked the point after.

Meservy returned the ensuing kickoff 90 yards for a touchdown and added the two points.

Dietrich recovered an onside kick and scored on a 20-yard pass from Meservy to Weiss at the final gun. Meservy got the extra points.

Wendell defeats Kimberly

KIMBERLY — Wendell's Kip Dennis scored on a pair of long runs Friday night to lift the Wendell Trojans past Kimberly 16-6 and kept their Little Five Conference title hopes alive.

The Trojans' next loop game is the traditional "crucial" battle with Glenns Ferry Nov. 3. If Wendell wins it, the conference will have a three-way tie.

Kimberly drew first blood when quarterback Mike Lundy hit Tony Brasswell on a 40-yard pass that carried to the Wendell eight-yard line. Steve Olson blasted in from there.

After a punt exchange, Kimberly got a bad pass from center while in punt formation, the ball sailing into the end zone. Wendell picked up a safety there. On the ensuing kickoff, Wendell's Blaine Scott caught the ball, then reversed it to Dennis who sailed 60 yards to score. On their next possession, Wendell marched to the Kimberly 17-yard line and Dennis went in on a sweep. Russ Rost got the two-point.

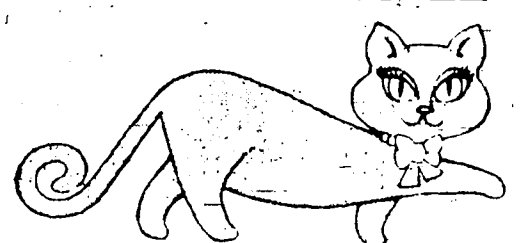

UCLA shreds Cal 49-13

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Running back Kérmit Johnson exploded on touchdown runs of 55 and 45 yards while shredding California's defense for 139 rushing yards Saturday in leading ninth-ranked UCLA to a 49-13 Pacific-8 Conference victory.

The win kept the Bruins in the conference race with a 3-0 record and 6-1 overall. Cal dropped to 1-6 including 1-2 in the Pac-8.

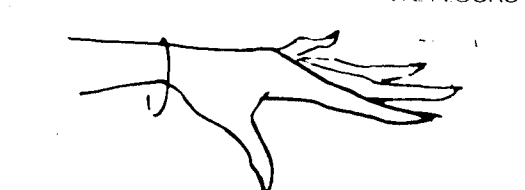

Johnson, a junior from Los Angeles, ripped off his two long TD gallops in the first period. It took the Bruins a total of only seven plays to score both touchdowns on marches of 76 and 80 yards.

Cincinnati rips A's to extend series to limit

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Cincinnati's sputtering "Big Red Machine" finally resembled a steamroller and Sparky Anderson, stealing a page from Dick Williams' "overmanaging" book, nursed a seven-hitter from four pitchers Saturday as the Cincinnati Reds crushed the Oakland A's 8-1 to tie the World Series at three games apiece.

The seventh game of the World Series—one of the single most dramatic moments in American sports—will be played Sunday, starting at 1 p.m. EDT, with Jack Billingham of the Reds opposing John "Blue Moon" Odom of Oakland.

It was the first game of the Series not decided by a single run as the Reds, just 18 1/2 hours after winning the fifth game in Oakland, took a 2-1 lead against Vida Blue and then tore the game wide open with a five-run seventh inning after he left the scene.

The Reds had more heroes than they needed. Johnny Bench started it with a solo homer in the third and Hal McRae doubled and scored on David Concepcion's sacrifice fly in the fourth for all the runs the Reds needed.

Tony Perez singled in the third run in the sixth after Blue left, although it was charged to the lefthander, and Dave Hamilton and Joe Horlen, making their first appearances in the Series, were routed for five runs in the sixth.

Joe Morgan's run-scoring single, Bobby Tolan's two-run single and a two-run single by Concepcion highlighted the seventh-inning rally that gave the crowd of 52,737 a chance to explode as the Reds won their first Series game, ever in Riverfront Stadium and their first at home since the seventh game in old Crosley Field in 1940. They had lost seven straight at home since then.

The Reds will attempt to become the first team ever to lose the first two at home and still win the Series.

Anderson, "shooting the works" with the Reds trailing 3-2, used Gary Nolan, Ross Grimsley, Pedro Borbon and Tom Hall to hold the A's to a single run.

"In the eighth inning," Finley said, "my wife leaned over to me and said, 'Honey, we never did accomplish anything the easy way.'"

Finley was deeply concerned about the reported threat to catcher Gene Tenace, adding the office of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn was "making every effort to provide maximum security."

"You get a few calls from cranks like this, but then you find someone with a gun and it goes beyond the crank stage," Finley said.

Although the threat incident caused much concern among the A's, injured outfielder Reggie Jackson, sitting not far from Tenace's dressing cubicle, interjected with, "Well, if you've got to go, you might as well go on national TV."

First baseman Mike Epstein, expected to take up some of the slack in the Oakland offense caused by the absence of Jackson, went hitless in four at-bats and is now zero-for-16 in the series, but continued to be optimistic.

"For me it's been a fun

Reds feel they will win title

CINCINNATI (UPI)—It was so easy for the Cincinnati Reds Saturday that manager Sparky Anderson had to gulp down only one pill for his ulcer.

Less than 24 hours after they were on the brink of elimination, the Reds—playing like the Reds who won the National League pennant—clobbered the Oakland A's 8-1 to tie the World Series at three games apiece.

It now all comes down to the seventh game Sunday when Jack Billingham starts for the Reds against John "Blue Moon" Odom for the A's as the Reds attempt to become the first team ever to win the Series after losing the first two games at home.

"I didn't really feel much pressure today," Anderson said even though he wheeled in four pitchers for a seven-hitter as he managed to match the moves of Oakland's Dick Williams. "It wasn't like yesterday when I needed a dozen pills for my ulcer. I only needed one today."

Anderson said, "I always thought we would win, even when we were down 2-0 and 3-1. But when (Gene) Tenace hit that homer yesterday, I thought for the first time that we could lose." The Reds rallied to win 5-4 Friday and then breezed Saturday in the first game that wasn't decided by one run.

Now the Reds think they can go all the way.

"There's no way they can stop us now," insisted Bobby Tolan, who singled twice, stole two bases and scored twice.

Gun-totin' fan aimed at Tenace

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Great guns! All harried Gene Tenace figures he needs is some crackpot threatening to take a shot at him.

The 24-year-old catcher for the Oakland A's wasn't even aware a man outside Riverfront Stadium had been picked up by police for carrying a gun prior to Saturday's lopsided 8-1 Cincinnati victory squaring the World Series at three games apiece.

The arrest came about when, according to the Reds' Stadium switchboard, an anonymous telephone caller said he would shoot Tenace, who has hit four home runs in the Series already, if he hit another one.

"You're kidding," said Tenace, when they told him about the threat after the game.

"You mean to say he said he's gonna kill me? And what are the police planning to do with him, turn him loose tomorrow?"

At that, Tenace, who had the Series' MVP locked up until the Reds rallied to take Friday's fifth game in Oakland, was more concerned about Cincinnati's base runners out in front of him than any lamebrains making threats behind him.

Nebraska humiliates Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI)—Sophomore quarterback David Humm threw four touchdown passes Saturday, three in a 28-point second quarter, and fourth-ranked Nebraska rolled to a 56-0 Big Eight Conference victory over outmanned Kansas.

The left-handed Humm set a Nebraska school record when he sailed his fourth touchdown pass, a 30-yarder, to Bob Ravelle with 9:49 left in the third quarter, and did not play after that. Humm completed 16 of 31 passes for 281 yards.

The Jayhawks did not make a first down until the last play of the first half and finished with only four against the awesome Cornhusker defense.

Kansas' best scoring chance was in the first quarter when linebacker Eddie Sheats blocked Rich Sanger's punt out of bounds at the Nebraska six.

Nebraska started the second quarter deluge on a fourth-down play when Humm flipped a 30-yard touchdown pass to Frosty Anderson, who got behind Mike Burton and caught the ball just before stepping out of the end zone.

Two possessions later, after a Kansas punt rolled out of bounds at the Cornhusker 28, Humm fired a 72-yard strike to all-American Johnny Rodgers, who ran the last 40 yards untouched.

Missouri turns fourth-down gambles into upset of Irish

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI)—Missouri cashed in on fourth-down plays six times for touchdowns or to keep scoring drives alive Saturday in a 30-26 upset of No. 8-ranked Notre Dame.

It was the first defeat in five starts of the previously unbeaten Irish.

Notre Dame went up against Missouri as a four-touchdown favorite against a club which had won only twice in five starts and which last week was shellacked by Nebraska 62-0.

But Saturday Missouri never trailed in an offensive battle in which neither team punted in the first half and both teams punted only twice in the game.

Notre Dame's sophomore quarterback Tom Clements almost got the Irish a tie in the fourth period, but twice two-point conversion attempts failed and Notre Dame fell four points short.

Missouri's Bob Pankey intercepted Clements' first pass of the game and returned 10 yards to Notre Dame's 46. From there Missouri moved to a touchdown in 12 plays with Leroy Moss' running over from the 16.

But the Irish came back in a 66-yard drive and Andy Huff scored from the 1 to set up a 7-7 tie.

Missouri countered with a 67-yard scoring drive with Don Johnson plunging from the 1 while Notre Dame retaliated with an 81-yard march in which John Cieszkowski scored from the 1 for a 14-14 deadlock.

Missouri then paraded 91 yards in 17 plays before Johnson got his second touchdown on another one-yard plunge for 21-14 lead with 69 seconds left in the half.

Missouri converted on three fourth-down opportunities in the first touchdown parade.

The Hoosiers suffered their first Big Ten loss in three games and slipped to 2-4 for the season. Ohio State is 3-0 in the conference and 5-0 overall.

Ohio State substitute fullback Randy Keith scored in the fourth quarter on a two-yard plunge and reserve sophomore quarterback Steve Morison scored on a one-yard run. Blair Conway kicked a 32-yard field goal for the Buckeyes.

Henson, who scored his 10th and 11th touchdowns in five games, picked up 113 yards in 22 carries.

Ohio State intercepted two of McNulty's passes in the first quarter. One interception was returned 30 yards by Rick Middleton to Indiana's one-yard line to set up Henson's first touchdown.

The Buckeyes piled up 386 yards rushing in 76 carries.

Ohio State blasts past Indiana 44-7

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Bruising fullback Champ Henson and scampering quarterback Greg Hare scored two touchdowns apiece Saturday to lead unbeaten and fifth-ranked Ohio State to a crushing 44-7 Big Ten victory over Indiana.

Indiana quarterback Ted McNulty, one of the Big Ten's leading passers, suffered a possible torn knee ligament in the first quarter and could be lost for the rest of the season.

Henson, a 6-foot-4, 224-pound sophomore, scored on a 24-yard sideline dash and a one-yard plunge.

Hare, the junior who directs Ohio State's rushing-minded offense, dodged his way for TD runs of seven and six yards.

Indiana's lone touchdown came on a 33-yard pass from substitute sophomore quarterback Rod Harris to Mike Flanagan.

Pilots blank Shoshone 6-0, cop loop lead

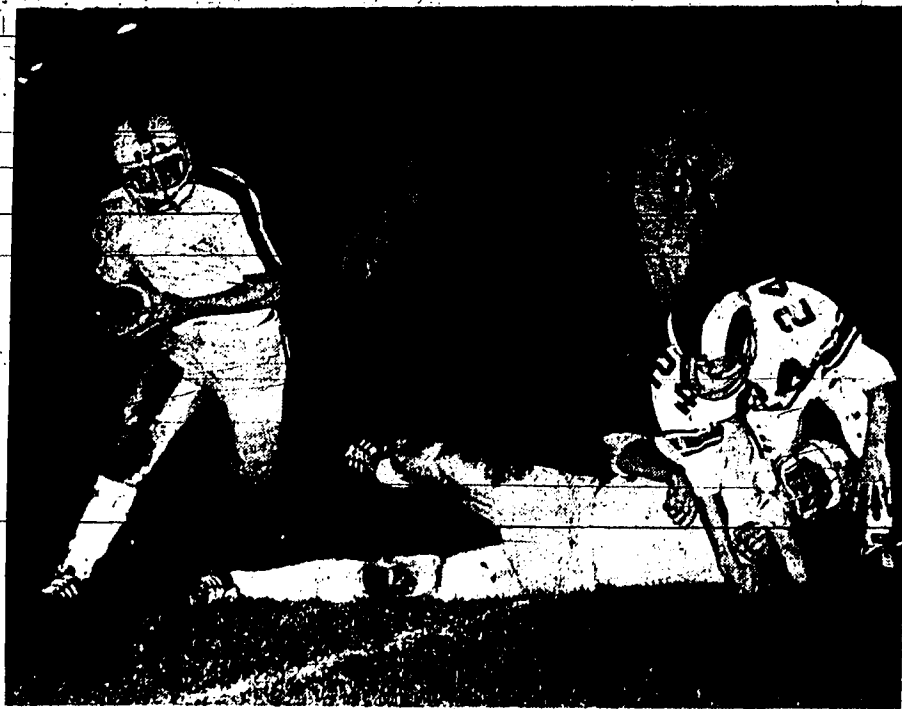

GLENN'S FERRY — Jody Allen broke a 67-yard touchdown romp in the first quarter and Glenn's defense made it stand up for a 6-0 decision over the Shoshone Indians and first place in the Little Five Football conference.

Glenn's Ferry moved its loop mark to 3-0 with one conference game left at Wendell Nov. 3, making it the umpteenth year in a row that game has been crucial to the Little Five. Shoshone dropped to second place with a 4-1 mark and is done. Wendell is 2-1 and needs a victory over Glenn's Ferry to throw the Little Five into a season-ending three-way tie for first for the second year in a row.

The top two teams advance to a playoff against a Boise area alignment Nov. 10. Allen provided the difference on Glenn's Ferry's third possession and Shoshone stopped the run for conversion.

From then on the game settled into a rugged defensive duel. We were intercepted twice so we played conservatively on offense and depended on our defense, Coach Cecil Watson said.

Shoshone's best bid moved inside the Pilot 15-yard line before being stopped. Glenn's Ferry had one march in the fourth quarter that died on a fumble at the 11-yard line.

Turning the corner

BRUIN HALFBACK Gary Scott, taking advantage of a block by teammate Mel Harder, turns the corner enroute to a 26-yard gain against Highland Friday night. Highland defeated the Bruins 35-0.

Camas County repeats as eight-man champion

CAREY — The undefeated Camas County Musers roared past the Carey Panthers 74-16 Friday afternoon to clinch their second straight Snake River Conference eight-man football title.

The Musers have clinched a playoff the state eight-man championship probably against Meadows Valley at Fairfield on Nov. 3.

Camas County was awesome in the first period, racking up a 38-0 lead. Bill Baldwin started it on runs of 27 and five yards. Brent Geisler scored from the one and Larry Lee added the final two, running 62 yards for the first and taking a pass from Geisler for the second. Lane Osborne scored three two-pointers and Geisler one.

In the second period, Kris Peck rambled 56 yards and Geisler scored on a 65-yard sprint. Osborne then took a long pass from Geisler. Baldwin and Geisler added points after to make it 60-0 at intermission.

The Musers wound up their scoring in the third period, sending Geisler in from the 46 and Larry Ivey for 70 yards. Wayne Weatherly ran for one PAT. Carey came back a little in the fourth. Shane Parks returned an interception 48 yards and John Molyneux converted to breaking the scoring iced. Later Parks plunged in from the one and Molyneux again converted to establish the final margin.

Kemp rushes for 238 yards as Highland crushes T.F. 35-0

Junior tailback Larry Kemp, who romped for 238 yards in 19 carries, scored on two long touchdowns runs and the defense accounted for two more Friday night when the Highland Rams ripped the Twin Falls Bruins 35-0.

The Bruins, who entered the game with defense their pride, were shattered for 358 yards on the ground. However, 235 of those yards came in three plays. Kemp broke a grudging battle open with an 87-yard burst five plays in the second quarter and tacked on a 74-yard romp on an identical play on the last play of the half. Greg Helm's 74-yard scamper to the one-yard line set up the last Highland touchdown.

Late in the half Twin Falls moved to a first down at the Highland 18 but a pass interception with 18 seconds left set things up for Kemp's 74-yard romp, again starting right then cutting the grain. Bill Theimann converted on all. Any hopes for a Twin Falls comeback melted early in the third period when Wally Kelly picked off a Twin Falls pass and romped 26 yards to score. The next 15 minutes went in punt exchanging until 6:35 remained in the game when Helm broke loose up the middle and sailed 74 yards to the one. Three plays later he banged in from there.

Murtaugh clinches tie for loop title

HAGERMAN — The Murtaugh Red Devils burst away from Hagerman in the late third and fourth quarters Friday night to nail down at least a share of the Magic Valley Conference championship.

The victory completed Murtaugh's loop schedule with the Devils tied with Castleford and Raft River for the lead with one loss each. The latter two play next week at Castleford with a berth in the playoffs in the mindome going to the winner along with Murtaugh.

Murtaugh scored first after a bizarre sequence. The Devils recovered a Pirate fumble at the nine-yard line, then fumbled it back into the end zone. Hagerman had a short punt trying to get out of trouble with Murtaugh taking over at the 40-yard line. Several plays later Jack Hurd plunged across from close in.

Hagerman took the lead in the third quarter when frosh fullback Fred Coates, a 190-pounder, broke a draw play for 89 yards. Mike Brown threw to Mike Campos for the two-pointer and a short-lived 8-6 lead.

Lane Hepworth shoved Murtaugh back in front early in the fourth period on a 35-yard reverse. Minutes later, Hurd, being collared by a host of Pirates, lateralled out to Barks who sailed 45 yards untouched for the clinching touchdown. In the closing minutes Hagerman gambled on a fourth down at its own 20 and lost. Hurd capitalized on that by going in from the eight.

The Pirates got their second score at the final buzzer after a 50-yard run by Gilbert Hafen to the six-inch line. Brown fumbled into the end zone but fell on the ball for the six points.

Mountain Home drops Buhl for second time

MOUNTAIN HOME — The Mountain Home Tigers, behind the speed of Camfield and the heady generalship and passing of Bob Mendiola, defeated the Buhl Indians 20-6 Friday night.

The Tigers, winning their second game from the Indians, were too fast outside with Camfield, replacing the injured Robert Taylor to a point that Taylor might not get back, scoring on bursts of 60 and six yards. Mendiola picked Buhl's secondary apart with short passes, hitting on 11 of 22 attempts for 128 yards.

Buhl's highlight was the running of junior fullback Brent Watson who is adapting better to the low-running charger type each game. Watson crunched for 169 yards and lost 42 more on penalties. In fact, Buhl sustained 15-yard penalties on four penetrations of Mountain Home's 30-yard line in the first half.

The defeat burned Buhl's title hopes in two conferences. It knocked them from Cross State consideration and left them one behind pace-setting Jerome in the South Central Idaho league. Jerome and Buhl meet at Buhl Nov. 10.

Mountain Home completed its scoring before Buhl got on the board. Camfield's 60-yard run came on a quick pitch and once the junior turned the corner there was no one to catch him. A few minutes later Buhl drilled a hit punt but Dave Later gathered it in on his own 30-yard line and sailed 70 yards to score. Camfield got the last touchdown on a six-yard burst.

Buhl put together a grinding march in the late third period with Watson doing most of the rushing. He finally belted in from the one.

Reese stunned Hansen by returning the opening kickoff for 90 yards and a touchdown Friday night and sparked the Castleford Wolves to a 33-6 decision. The victory leaves the Wolves facing a showdown with Raft River next week with a playoff berth in the mindome riding on the outcome for the third straight year.

The Wolves never let Hansen steady in the first half as they pushed to a 27-0 halftime lead. Mike Nihil capped a short Castleford drive with a five-yard burst later in the first period with Mike Bowers tacking on the second of three point-after kicks.

In the second period Nihil scored from the two-yard line and Reese picked up the fourth score of the half on a 40-yard romp. Castleford ended its scoring in the third period when Curt Carter made a pretty 85-yard touchdown scamper, showing some swivel-hipping along the way.

Hansen came back for its touchdown in the fourth period on a two-yard plunge by Mark Stanger. In the final minute, a clipping penalty nullified another Husky score, which occurred when a lineman picked up a Wolf fumble and ran about 40 yards.

Reese and Wolves top Hansen

CASTLEFORD — Lynn Reese stunned Hansen by returning the opening kickoff for 90 yards and a touchdown Friday night and sparked the Castleford Wolves to a 33-6 decision. Building costs up 5.9 per cent

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Construction costs across the nation rose an average of 5.9 per cent for the year ending Sept. 30, compared to 7.8 per cent a year ago, it was reported today by the Dodge Building Cost Services Department of McGraw-Hill Information Systems.

The cost information released by Dodge is based on a semi-annual survey of 183 cities in the contiguous United States. In the six months since completion of the March, 1972, survey, costs rose 3.3 per cent.

Contributing to the 5.9 per cent increase for the past year was an average 4.9 per cent rise in the cost of building materials, and a 6.9 per cent gain in wage rates for building trades craftsmen, according to the Dodge Building Cost Services department.

A year earlier, during the 12-month period ending September, 1971, craftsmen's wages had jumped 10.7 per cent. Cost gains over the present 12-month period revealed an interesting shift in regional trends. For the past seven years, since October, 1965, highest cost gains had been posted in the northeast, lead by the Metropolitan New York-New Jersey area.

The current survey showed greatest increase in costs in New England, 6.7 per cent, followed by a 6.6 per cent cost hike in the southeastern and south central states.

All other regions were under 6 per cent for the 12-month period, with the lowest rise, 5.3 per cent, in the Mississippi and west central states area.

The Dodge Building Cost Services survey is based on cost data supplied by building trades union, contractors and materials suppliers.

THE SHOCKING TRUTH ABOUT WATER

A miraculous transformation could occur when you discover what is the perfect drinking water for man. The day has arrived when we must face facts about the water we take into our systems. The body is made up of 70% water. Common sense will tell you that it does have a bearing on your health. It is the one substance we need the most and suspect the least and could be one of the causes of many of our major health problems.

Hundreds of people who have arthritis, kidney stones, gall stones, hardening of the arteries, heart attacks, strokes, impotency, obesity, constipation and diabetes claim that once they start drinking distilled water that the water factor alone helps their conditions. We do not claim to have a panacea (cure all) but today most tap and well water is saturated with chemicals, inorganic minerals and poisons too numerous to mention that we sincerely believe the type of water that 90% of our people are drinking is detrimental to their health. Our government and cities are doing all they can about this problem, but it is so massive that one must take it on as a personal problem.

If you want to lose weight, feel better and improve your general health, send $2 for our booklet "The Choice is Clear." If this booklet doesn't make good common sense and hasn't impressed you to the extent that you are 100% satisfied, just return the booklet within ten days and your money will be returned cheerfully, and with no hesitation. Send while the supply lasts. Send $2 to AQUA-NATION, Dept. C, Box 81726, Lincoln, Nebraska 68501.

Businesses need cities

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whether they want to or not, businessmen must get into community planning in a big way, according to many experienced architects and city planners.

"Cities are vital to business. We have gone about as far as safely can, perhaps too far, in decentralizing industry and for its own good industry now must help revitalize the cities," says Louis C. Ripa, chairman of Porter & Ripa Associates, Inc., of Morristown, N.J.

Ripa said that in the well-planned city of the future, a man will be able to get to his job within 15 minutes, his children will be able to get to school in even less time and his wife will find every kind of shopping available within a few minutes of her home.

Lawrence Lerner of Litton Industries' architectural subsidiary, Saphier, Lerner & Schindler, agrees with Ripa about the importance of the urban environment for business and the necessity of revitalizing urban life. He takes a somewhat more radical approach to the problem.

Known as a daring architectural innovator, Lerner advanced two radical proposals for the city of the future: vertical zoning and something he calls "continue shelter." By vertical zoning, Lerner said he meant building skyscrapers and zoning some floors for residence, some for shopping, some for offices, others for hospitals and clinics, and some even for theaters.

The firm has requested a common carrier permit with authority to transport general commodities throughout the state of Idaho. The Paul firm has applied for the permit and desires to restrict hauling of fertilizer to the general area south of the boundaries of Nez Perce and Clearwater counties.

The hearing was originally announced for Nov. 3 at 9 a.m. in the Tamarack Room of the Ponderosa Inn, Burley.

Instead, Miss Bourner said, it will be held Nov. 15 at 9:30 a.m. in the Chapparral Room of the Ponderosa.

DURING OUR ELECTION YEAR SALE, SUPPORT THE LITTLE CAR THAT DOES EVERYTHING WELL.

Vote Vega

Selling From $2265.40

Take a look at Vega's record and suddenly your choice among the major small-car candidates narrows to one. And why not, since Vega qualifications include a 97" long wheelbase, 2.3 liter engine with thickest aluminum block and to help smooth the ride, computer-selected coil springs tailored to the weight of the equipment you order.

Vega also has proved itself with other, solid product achievements. As standard equipment, you get two steel rods instead of one, front disc brakes, slide-guard door beams, power ventilation, and much more.

Of course, Vega's been a vote-getter right from its start. In 1971, it was named Motor Trend magazine's "Car of the Year." And in both 1971 and 1972, readers of Car and Driver voted it world's "best economy sedan."

While our Election Year Sale is on, compare the candidates and the issues. Once you see what Vega stands for, plus the good deals we're offering now, we know you'll Vote Vega.

China's 124th basks

CANTON, China (UPI)—Twenty-two years ago China's crack 124th Army Division was engaged in fierce fighting with U.S. forces in the frozen wastes of North Korea. Today the now famous field army basks in the sub-tropical climate of Kwangtung Province next door to Hong Kong, raising vegetables, working with the peasants, but still keeping prepared militarily.

I remember the 124th. In 1950 its troops were the first "Chinese volunteers" to enter the Korean war. I was a member of the 1st Marine Division and we engaged them in combat near the Chosin Reservoir.

My escort during my 36-hour stay at division headquarters was Li Siu-sheng, vice divisional political commander, and a veteran of China's liberation war and the Korean campaign. If the People's Liberation Army (PLA) still had rank, which was abolished in 1965, Li would probably have been a colonel. My visit to division headquarters, a former Chinese guerrilla base during the Sino-Japanese war, at the foot of Lofu Mountain outside Canton was the first for an American.

The 10,000-man 124th division was formed in 1937. It fought in the anti-Japanese war, the war of liberation and then in Korea. "Our division has fought in more than 1,600 battles, killed 60,000 enemy troops, captured 24,000 weapons and shot down 59 enemy planes," Li said proudly, recounting the division's history.

The 42-year-old commander said 22 companies of the division had been decorated during the war years. "Our job is still to fight if necessary, but we also carry out Chairman Mao's line of mass work and production. The ultimate goal of the army is to serve the people," Li said.

The division is still in top fighting shape. More than 100 PLA men of the 372nd Regiment staged a spectacular 45-minute combat demonstration. It included hand-to-hand combat, bayonet and target practice. The soldiers fired heavy and light automatic weapons, rockets, 75mm cannon and hand-held 82mm mortars with pinpoint accuracy. No photographs of the demonstration were permitted. The reason Li gave was that "our fighters are not very skilled."

When the division is not engaged in military maneuvers, the soldiers study Mao's works. Two days a week are devoted to political education and organized discussions. The men also tend their vegetable plots, each company has one, and work on the division's farm and in its factories. The troops study reading and writing in their spare time and in the evenings.

The 124th, like all divisions of the PLA, has no fixed leave policy. Enlisted men are given time off only when they can present a good reason to their superiors, such as illness in the family. Several soldiers said they had not received leave in the two years they had been in the PLA. Enlisted men also do not receive a salary. Instead they are given seven yuan ($3.20 dollars) "pocket money" a month. A squad leader, equivalent to a sergeant, gets 10 yuan ($4.50) a month.

Promotion in the PLA depends not only on a soldier's military proficiency and length of service, but also on how advanced he is in his political studies. "The decision on whether to promote a fighter is made by the party branch of his company. The matter is also discussed among his comrades in the company," Li explained. The company's recommendation is then forwarded to regimental headquarters for a final decision.

Advice in simplicity comes from volunteers

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 100 young "volunteers" have joined the Twin Falls fire department.

They are grade school youngsters who have taken up the cause for fire prevention. Each has a definite idea of how fires can be prevented and thus the loss in life and property reduced in Twin Falls.

"We think we have gotten through to the children," said Clare Harkins, Twin Falls fire marshal, after reading more than 100 essays by grade schoolers.

Thirty-six of the essays penned or drawn by first graders through sixth graders were selected for special recognition but Harkins said many others were equally good.

Recommendations for fire prevention through the eyes of a grade schooler range from "don't play with matches" to "every house should have a water alarm system."

Firemen say the essays, which they plan to keep, prove the youngsters understand the danger of fires and realize prevention is as important as knowing what to do in the event of fire.

Some of the young ideas are exceptionally sound as told in child like simplicity. Fire Chief Bobby Böpp said.

For fourth grader Timothy Davis, Harrison school, fire prevention has a personal meaning. His essay, "How My Dog Died," tells of his dog and her puppies perishing in a dog house fire after gasoline was spilled. One puppy escaped and was named "Smokey."

Dee Ann Waldram, fifth grader at Lincoln School, who may write the great American novel next, penned a three-page dramatic account of the family "that was careful with fire."

The story proved the value of fire drills and in the end all members, and one guest, escaped a house fire by following practiced fire drills.

"How about you?" she asked.

"Start having fire drills before it happens to you."

A fourth grader at Washington, Tammi Grove said, "If a fire DID start, in your house, get out of the house. If there is something you really want, don't go back after it. Then go to the neighbors and call the Fire Department."

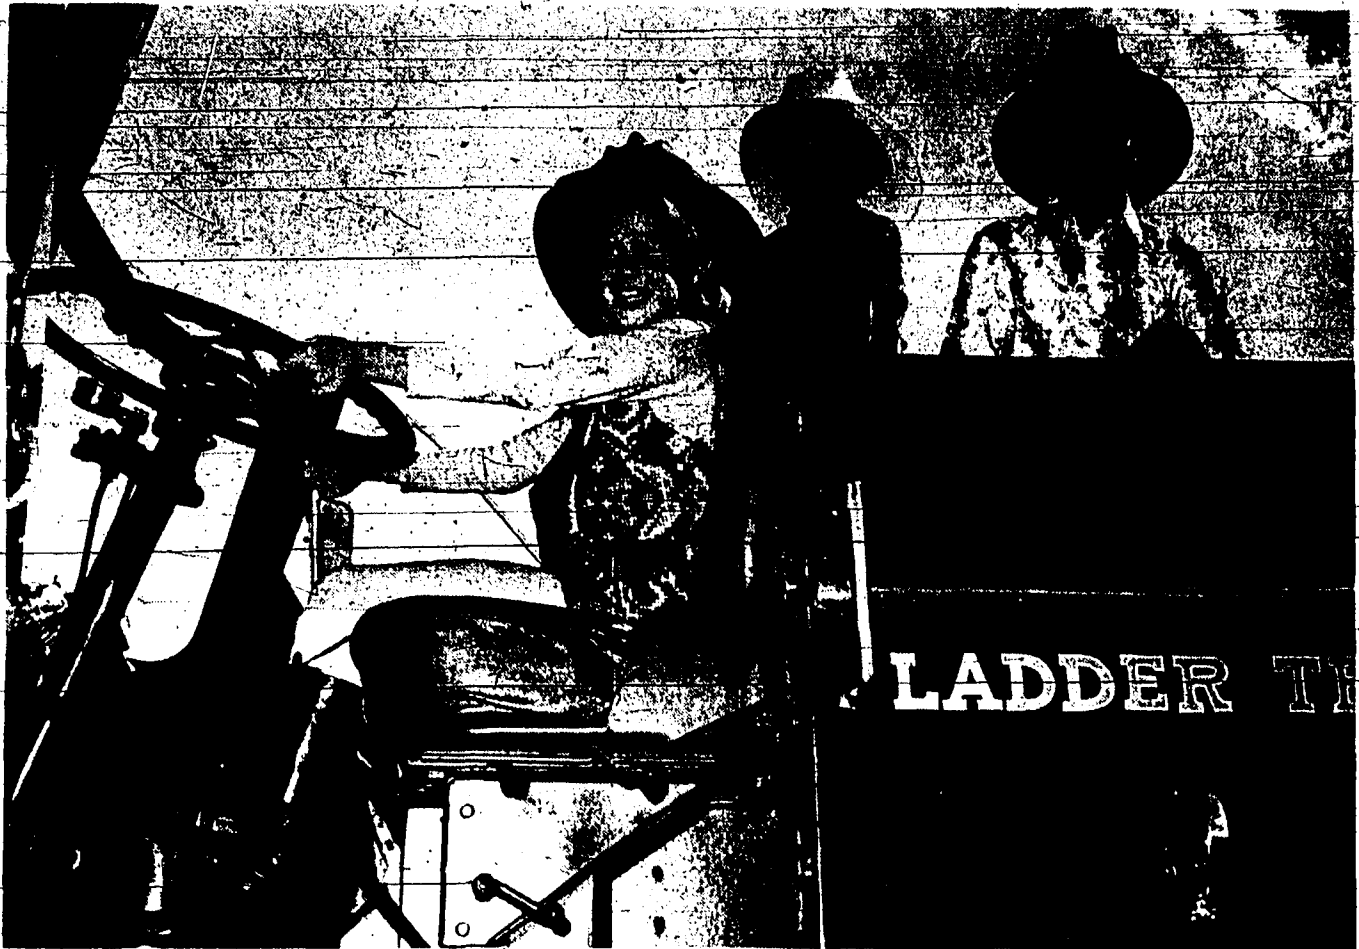

Second grader Janine Haslam, Washington School, said, "An adult must be with you when you have a fire. Roll on the ground, if you catch on fire. Put trash in it's place!"

Brenda Sayers, Bickel fifth grader said, "If our house catches on fire, I am to close my door, open my window and knock out my screen and jump out."

She recommended fire drills be practiced in every home — just in case.

Washington third grader Vicki Sangster warned, "Don't fidel around with matches. Don't fidel around with electricity. If alone, be good."

She also recommended a (continued on page 31)

"VOLUNTEER" firemen, Janine Haslam at the wheel of the Twin Falls ladder truck, and Rodney Campbell and Pat Duffel, were among essay contest winners who submitted their ideas on fire prevention. Thirty-five children were treated to an ice cream and cake party at the fire station as winners of the contest in grade school.

DOWN THE POLE at the Twin Falls fire station comes one of the young grade school fire prevention essay winners. "wistle" on the bedpost — if needed, "or get an alarm."

Ann Crowley, second grader at Harrison, apparently secretly enjoys a fire. His fire prevention essay contributed some praise for the fireman and said, "I like it when the fire engine goes up the hill fast and the siren sounds. I'm glad you fix toys. Thanks and good luck."

Lori Sterling, Morningside, fourth grade said, "I can prevent fires by not being careless and making sure all my mothers matches and cigarettes and fires are out."

Mark Blasius, Morningside, fifth grade, said "Never throw matches or cigarettes down at a gas station. Always keep water handy in case of a fire. You never know when one is going to happen."

He also noted the error of playing with matches. "Whenever my little brother play with matches, I tell our mom and she gets after him."

Lynette Marie Pool, Lincoln school, fourth grade, suggested you tell your mother and father not to smoke in bed and said, "I can prevent fires by not playing with matches. Do not play with buttons on the stove. Nobody wants to die. Nobody likes fire. Fire is ugly."

Phillip Mead, Morningside sixth grade said, "I can prevent fires by using my head. I can clean my room and not let the garbage get too dirty. Don't be around the stove in nylon cloths."

Judy Sangster, Washington school sixth grade, deplored carelessness of people in general and warned, "If you want to live in this world or universe, shape up or ship out. Nobody wants another person to be a dangerous person."

A post script, "You guys are really on the job."

From Harrison School, Lisa Pfeiffer, sixth grade said, "Prevention. That's an awfully big word and an awfully important word."

Laurie Schultz, Harrison, third grade, explained the principle of oxygen and fire in her folder enclosed essay. She concluded by saying, "Firemen are very brave. Make sure you don't play with matches and firemen won't have to come to your house, I hope."

Ronnie Robinette fifth grade, Morningside, said, "You should have fire alarms just in case of fire. The most important thing you should have in your house is a water alarm system that will help put out the fire a lot."

LeAnn Stanton, third grader at Bickel profoundly warned, "Prevent fires, the life you save may be yours or a loved one's."

Julie Gasser, third grader at Morningside, feels you may as well be clean as well as cool. "If you ever get burned, wash with soap and water," she suggests.

MR. AND MRS. JIM LECHLITER

TF couple exchanges vows

TWIN FALLS — Anita Baker and Jim Lechlitter were married in an afternoon ceremony Oct. 14 at the Valley Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Leslie Brown before baskets of white chrysanthemums and blue spider chrysanthemums flanked by candelabra holding white candles.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlon Baker and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lechlitter, all Twin Falls.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of organza embroidered with lilies of the Valley over white peau de sole. The gown, made by her mother, was styled with an empire waistline.

Her veil was a gift from the bridegroom's parents. She wore a necklace which was also a gift from the bridegroom's parents. Her diamond earrings were a gift from the bridegroom.

She continued a tradition of the bridegroom's family by borrowing a blue garter. She carried a formal cascade bouquet of white-tinged blue carnations and lilies of the Valley.

Joyce Baker, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Randy Coates, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Rance Herzinger, Boise, and Mrs. Sam Hawkins, Jerome. Kathy Nelson was flower girl.

Best man was William Moore, Hansen. Groomsmen were Darrell Mullins, Logan, Utah, cousin of the bridegroom; Randy Coates, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Dwight Baker, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Robert Nelson played traditional wedding music on the church organ. James Reynolds was vocal soloist.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained guests at a reception in the church.

The bride's table was covered with light blue satin over a sheer dacron ruffled floor-length skirt over blue. The table was decorated on the corners and center with blue satin bows. It was centered with a four-tier cake with four hearts forming the base, accented with delicate blue lace work embellished with blue lilies. It was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom on a bench under a flowered arch. The cake was flanked with silver candelabra holding white tapers and a silver punch bowl and coffee service.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Willard Dier. Punch and coffee were served by Mrs. Emmett Lyda and Mrs. Otis Bland and other women of the Christian Women's Fellowship assisted with the reception.

Annette Coy was in charge of the guest book.

Special out-of-town guests included the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Morgan, Liberal, Kan., and the bride's cousin Mr. and Mrs. Larry Elmore and family, Tyrone, Okla.

The bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lechlitter, Twin Falls, attended. Other out-of-town guests attended from Utah, Oregon, and surrounding Magic Valley towns.

The bride was honored at a shower given by the Christian Women's Fellowship, hosted by Mrs. Willard Dier, Mrs. Leslie Brown and Mrs. Robert Fort in the home of Mrs. U. N. Terry.

She was also honored at showers given by the employees of Twin Falls Bank and Trust, hosted by Mrs. Sam Hawkins, Jerome, and a family shower hosted by Mrs. Randy Coates, Mrs. Sherman Mullins and Mrs. Ruby Crist at the home of Mrs. Ruby Lechlitter.

The parents of the bridegroom hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Depot Grill.

The bride is a graduate of Twin Falls High School, attended the College of Southern Idaho and is employed by Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

Music scholarship funds available

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. David Mead, Twin Falls, said about $105,000 will be available in scholarships and awards through student auditions of the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Mrs. Mead is student auditions chairman for the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs. She said the money will be awarded through the student division, ages 16-25, of the NFMC. Awards will be made following 1973 competitive auditions.

The deadline to make application to the state chairman of student auditions is Jan. 22, 1973. Mrs. Mead said Idaho's student auditions will be Feb. 3 in Twin Falls.

District auditions will be on or before Feb. 24, with the time and place to be announced later. Tapes of district winners' entries must be in the hands of the national chairman on or before March 10.

All winners at the state level or above will be eligible to apply for scholarships to 12 leading music schools and university or college music departments in various arts of the U. S.

Students wanting to apply for the scholarships must make, at their own expense, monaural tapes at 7 1/2, choosing the repertoire from the junior festivals and/or student auditions bulletins, submitting at least three selections or excerpts (classical, romantic or contemporary).

For further information about the contest, contact Mrs. Mead, 2045 Hillcrest Drive, state student auditions chairman, or the NFMC headquarters, suite 1215, 600 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60605.

Mini Reviews

TWIN FALLS — The following mini-reviews for books recently acquired were released today by officials of the Twin Falls Public Library.

"This Endangered Planet" by Richard A. Falk is a penetrating analysis of the four principal factors underlying the ecological crisis that endangers the earth.

"This Time Next Year" by Anne Nall Stallworth sums up the yearnings of the Birdsong family.

"Will There Really be a Morning?" by Francis Farmer is a chilling self-portrait of a once well-known actress who spent much of her adult life in a state mental institution. It is one of the most forthright, harrowing self-analyses of schizophrenia that has ever been re-ordered.

"What do You Say After You Say Hello?" by Eric Berne, M.D., shows his findings that each person, under the powerful influence of his parents, writes in early childhood the script that will determine the general course of his life.

"On the Night of the Seventh Moon" by Victoria Holt is a romance of jealousies and intrigue, unexpected discoveries and unknown dangers.

Focus on safe holiday

RUPERT — Let's all concentrate on making this a safe Halloween, stated Charlene Wicks, Minidoka County home economics agent.

Start by using a flashlight as the source of light in the trick-or-treater's jack-o-lantern.

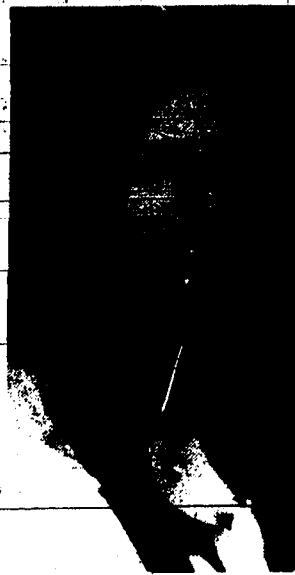

Use only non-flammable materials for costumes that are layered, loose or flowing.

Be sure the costume does not impede walking and that it does not have hanging parts that could trip a child.

Never allow a mask to be worn if it is not flame proof or if it is of a material that could become molten or sticky from heat.

Encourage, even insist, the children bring home all of the "treasures" gathered when they go trick-or-treating, so you can check the food before it's eaten. Improvise a game or a show and tell activity so they'll resist any temptation of "snitching" before they get home.

Staying thin prolongs life

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Staying thin is one of the most important things an adult American can do to prolong life, the president-elect of the American Heart Association said Wednesday.

Dr. Paul N. Yu, a University of Rochester heart specialist, said being 10 or 20 pounds overweight is like carrying around a 10 or 20 pound suitcase 24 hours a day.

He said the excess weight places more demands on the heart which may be enough under certain circumstances to trigger a heart attack and every extra pound of fat adds one mile of blood vessels to the body. But for this generation of Americans, he said, it may already be too late to repair the damage to the heart and blood vessels caused by an unwise diet.

Yu said staying thin, reducing excessive smoking, controlling blood pressure and avoiding excessive stress are things that can prolong life.

He said although it may be hard to reverse the damage caused by too much fat in the diet of the adult Americans, the younger generation could be spared much of the damage if they eat a low fat diet.

Fancy That

By Norma Herzinger

TWIN FALLS — Many bulletins and newsletters pass over my desk but none I like better than the one written by Sharon E. LaFray, Jerome County extension home economist.

She used an article in her October letter I must pass along to you.

"Instructions You Must Have for Your Hunting Trip."

"First you need a fast car — so you can beat the other hunters to the best spots. That will give you a chance of being killed before you get out in the woods. And save some other hunter some ammo and the mess of shooting you."

One or two cases of whiskey, four cases of beer and lots of ammo. Food, tents and sleeping bags take up a lot of space, so get another case of whiskey, instead.

Be sure to shoot anything that moves. If it's not a deer, there's always a chance it might be your mother-in-law.

Now, when you bag a deer, be sure and shoot all the shells you have left into it. This will be sure to splinter all the bones and bust all the entrails.

Don't bother to wash or wipe it out, as the manure and blood will improve the flavor. Besides, the locker or plant operator will be disappointed if you bring in a clean one.

If you decide to skin it, be sure to roll it around in the dirt, leaves and pine needles. Then wrap it in newspapers as they will stick well, and printer's ink has the delicate flavor of burnt rubber.

Now, drag it out to the car, throw it over the hood as close to the radiator as possible, so it will get all the heat, dust and so people will be sure and see that you got one!

Hints

Pots and pans made of cast iron require seasoning before they are used. This prevents rusting. Directions for seasoning usually are included on a tag or label with the new utensil. Read and heed.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER

TWIN FALLS — Lighting and decorating go hand in hand. Light makes colors live.

In low levels of illumination, colors are grayed and lifeless. As illumination increases, they become more vibrant and alive — even pale tints and wood tones.

There are several ways of improving the lighting conditions in your present home without a complete relighting job. The following information may be helpful:

All surfaces reflect light in a different way.

Light can be absorbed and even wasted by dark surfaces. Light is reflected by lighter surfaces.

Lamps should have white or near white linings to reflect as much light as possible.

Lamp shades should be wide enough at the bottom to permit light to spread over the working or seeing area — a diameter of at least 14 inches.

The bottom of a table lamp shade should be at eye level when you are seated. If your lamp is short use it on a higher table and vice versa.

Also 150 or 200 watt, 50-250 watt 3-way table or 100-300 watt 3-way floor lamps are recommended for reading or sewing.

The popular high-density lamps are recommended as a supplement for some difficult seeing tasks such as sewing, model making or manicuring — they should not be used for reading or studying.

If your desk or table top is dark, use a light colored blotter under your work.

Darkened bulbs waste light — replace them, then use the darkened bulbs in places where less illumination is needed.

Keep bulbs and shades clean — wipe bulbs with a damp cloth and vacuum or brush the shades — if they need washing, use the following procedure.

Most fabric lampshades can be easily washed. Check first that the shade is fully sewn and not glued together. If it has a contrasting fabric trim, check for colorfastness by holding a damp cloth to the trim for several minutes.

The overriding rule for successful washing of a lampshade is to do it quickly. First brush or vacuum loose dust from the shade. Fill the laundry or bathtub with lukewarm water and enough soap or detergent to produce a good amount of suds.

Next, always holding the shade by the metal frame, plunge the shade into the water until it is fully submerged. Dunk the shade up and down rapidly; use a very soft brush to gently remove heavier soil.

Rinse the shade with a sink spray attachment or by dunking it at least twice in lukewarm water. With either method, finish rinsing the shade in water to which fabric softener has been added; this will help to retard future dirt accumulation.

Drain the shade on a very thick towel for several minutes until much of the excess water has run off. Then hang the shade in front of a fan or an open window to facilitate rapid drying.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

(c. 1972 by Chicago Tribune-H. V. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Have you ever heard of a fish falling from the sky?

My husband is serious about the fact that once when it was raining, he saw a small fish coming down with the rain!

When I laughed at him, he explained that the sun had picked up the egg from the stream, and it hatched in the sky, so when it rained, a live fish came down.

I think this is ridiculous and that my husband needs help. I'd like to hear from you. WONDERING IN KANSAS

DEAR KANSAS: Your husband's story sounds fishy to me. Are there any pisciculturists out there who can reel in the answer to this? I seem to have heard this fable before.

Raining fishes?

DEAR ABBY: In reply to "Little Old Lady Baby Sitter" who thinks baby sitters should form a union because they are underpaid and overworked:

If they feel abused, all they have to do is refuse to sit for the abusive parties. I think we parents should form a union. We pay a sitter 75 cents an hour to do nothing but sit. Our baby is asleep when she gets here, and all our sitter has to do is watch TV, snack, and talk on the telephone, which is the reason our line is always busy when we call home to see if everything is all right.

About snacking: we have had sitters consume five and six bottles of soft drinks in one evening, and clean out a filled cookie jar to boot. We should turn in a bill for what they eat above and beyond what we think is normal.

ABUSED PARENT

DEAR PARENT: Turn about is fair play. If you feel abused by your sitter, get another sitter. But wouldn't it make more sense for parents and sitters to air their gripes to each other and lay down some ground rules?

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked if honesty paid. Let me tell my story:

On a beautiful sunny afternoon, I took my wife and children to lunch in the country. En route home I had to make a phone call so I stopped at a gasoline station, opened the telephone book and found a coin purse with about $300 in it. No identification—no nothing. I was on my way to turn it in to the service station attendant when a woman drove up and asked if anyone had seen her coin purse. I immediately handed it to her. She had just cashed a check and was en route to the airport to visit a sick relative. She wanted to give me a reward. I said, "No, thank you. A person doesn't need a reward for being honest."

I hope my children remember this episode.

RON PELL, RIVERSIDE, CAL.

DEAR RON: They will now.

DEAR ABBY: I got a kick out of "No Gambler"—the gal who went to the races with a guy who gave her $2 to bet a horse. Her horse came in and paid $70, she offered the guy half, and he said if she didn't give him the whole $70 he wouldn't take her home, so she kept the $70 and she took a bus.

You told her she was better at picking horses than people and to stick with whole horses. Well, listen to this:

I took a gal to the races and gave her $10. She picked a long shot and won $660. She thanked me for the thrill of winning and shoved the $660 in my pocket. I tried to stick it in her purse but there was no way she would keep a dime.

With the world so full of grabby broads you can imagine how big a hit this kid made with me. I must have sent her $3,000 in perfume and jewelry. In fact, if I wasn't already married, I'd have asked her to marry me.

South's jump to four spades was a distinct overbid. The odds were against his partner holding as much as one queen and South was looking at four probable losers outside the trump suit.

On the other hand, the game was rubber bridge and rubber bridge players tend to overbid a trifle with hands as strong as the one South was looking at.

The dummy didn't even hold a 10-spot, but the doubleton diamond was like money from home.

South ruffed the third club and promptly played ace-king-three of diamonds to ruff in dummy. Then South led dummy's last trump, thought a while, went up with his ace, dropped West's singleton queen and claimed game and rubber.

"Nice guess!" remarked North.

"It wasn't a guess," replied South. "West had opened the bidding with one heart and rebid two clubs. His club holding was ace-king-queen-10 and he would have opened one club unless his heart suit was a five-carter. That accounted for nine cards and he had followed to three leads of diamonds. That left him with just one spade. If it were anything but the queen East would have a sure spade trick and my only chance was for West's singleton to be that card."

South was right. He also had shown the validity of our theory that if you want to overbid you should be sure to play well.

Pictures relate to furnishings

BURLEY — Use pictures on your walls as part of an arrangement, urges Mrs. Joan Parr, extension home economist for Cassia County.

Pictures, she explains, relate to the walls and furniture of a room for a "finished" look.

Look at a picture hanging over a furniture arrangement.

Draw vertical lines in your mind along the outer edges of the group. Then draw a horizontal line along the top of a lamp or something else in the group which gives height. Your picture should hang mostly inside those lines to be a part of the furniture "group."

Always hang pictures at a level to make them a part of the furnishings. If nothing in the arrangement is tall, lower the picture, don't follow the old eye level rule. It's more important to relate the picture to its furniture group, Mrs. Parr emphasizes.

If you want to hang a picture over a very low table, you may not want to place it low enough to be in close relation to the table. Put an arrangement of flowers or something interesting under one corner of the picture to give unity to the combination.

There's something about the electric water heater or the quietness of an appliance that sits unheard and unnoticed in its little corner.

Perhaps it's the fact that it needs no energy-wasting chimney. There's no flame. It takes nothing from the air, adds nothing to the air, indoors or out.

It has no match for efficiency.

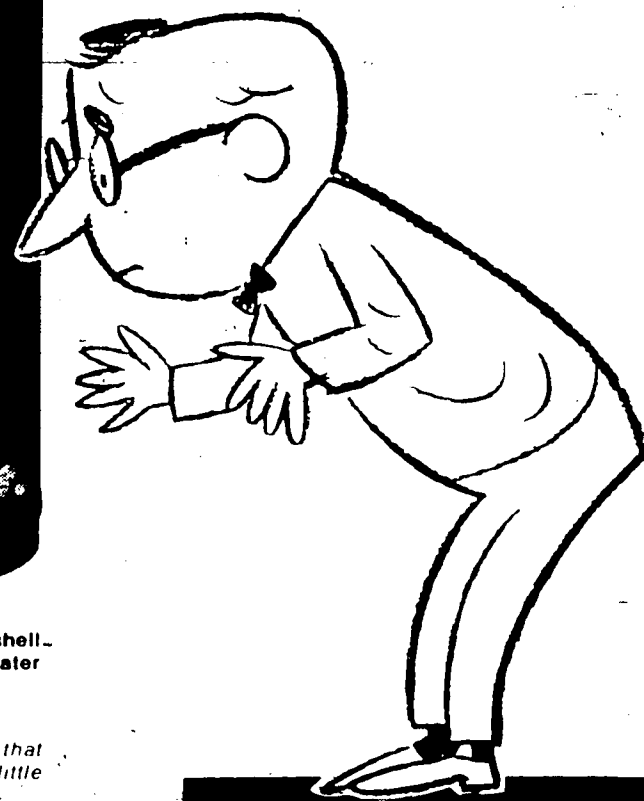

Possibly people have learned that prompt, reliable service is always available by calling their local Idaho Power office.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1972

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Not a good day to be obstinate with friends or you could lose out where it counts the most. Make a special point to study and make an assessment of your assets and liabilities regarding money, property and possessions. A sensible approach to the materialistic is now desirable.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to quietly talk over with a favorite adviser how to put your business and social affairs in better working order. More money in the bank will eliminate insecurity you have.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 21) You have plenty of time now to get your appearance as you want it to be. Try not to argue with others. Show good friends that you are truly devoted. Get rid of that unhappy feeling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Figure out what is keeping you from getting ahead as fast as you would like; then put the right wheels in motion. Correct errors in reports. A friend needs assistance. Be sure to give it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to have a good time socially and this is fine provided you cheer others up who are in the doldrums. Not a good day to work on a personal project. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care you don't irritate a bigwig or you could lose valuable support now. Handling public work is fine but don't take any risks. Use your persuasive powers and you get fine results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You want to engage in new pleasures but don't irritate those who mean much to you. A telephone call now could be annoying but take it in stride. Show that you are a capable person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Taking steps toward paying your debts is wise today, since broken promises could be costly. A tactful approach is necessary with mate. Try to be understanding and not critical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze your facts well before you discuss the matter with an associate tomorrow. Make sure you are understanding when dealing with the public. Avoid others who are in a mood to criticize.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans to do the work ahead of you without trying to get others to assist you, since they have other things to do. Conditions now could be confusing. Don't jump to any conclusions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Engage in recreational activities alone since others are in no mood to go along with you now. You are creative and can put your talents to work very nicely now. Perfect your hobbies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Instead of arguing with kin, be sure to do whatever is necessary to have harmony there. There is a point of contention at home that should be eliminated. Avoid a false friend.

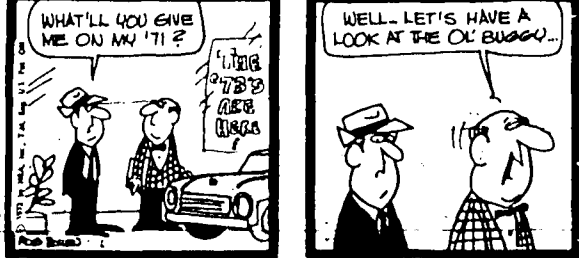

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't act too hastily, walk too fast, or you could get into trouble today. Make sure that you shop carefully and not be too extravagant. Think of ways to improve your finances.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those very practical young people who has to be taught to be objective so the fine abilities to solve problems will be realized. Teach to be conscientious so that a feeling of martyrdom will be averted. Save money now for a good college education. Music lessons and sports are fine here.

California is still that state wherein the largest number of business bosses would prefer to build their new factories. One more poll shows that. Then, in order, they say they "choose" Illinois, New Jersey, Texas, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Florida.

TWO OUT of every three women you pass on the street, it's now said, have changed their hair colors.

ACCORDING to the rules of most beauty contests, any pretty young aspirant can walk down the ramp with a rabbit's foot around her neck, but not a crucifix.

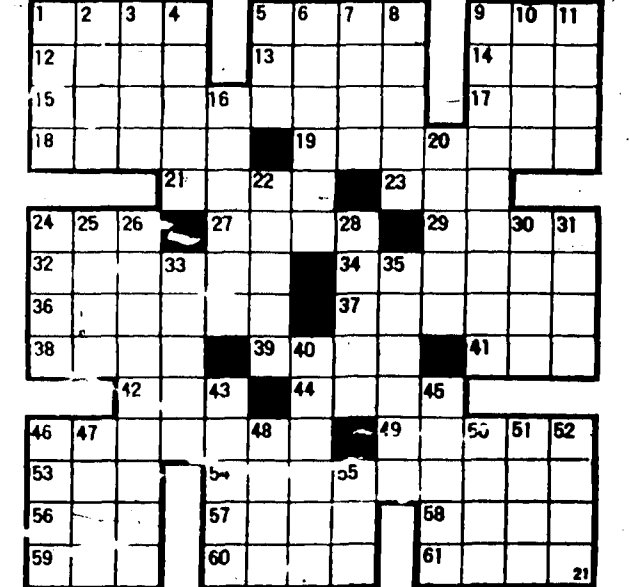

THEO LANG is in trouble. He said, "Not only has there never been a great woman composer, but no woman has ever invented any well-known musical instrument." He ought to be more careful about pronouncements like that.

LANGUAGE Why is it native Japanese have a tough time pronouncing "I" and "R" in English? Dr. Hiruma Goto says it's not that the Tokyo tongue can't twist out those letters. It's that the Tokyo ear doesn't hear the difference. Tests with tape recordings prove such. Some Japanese who were taught to pronounce the "I" and "R" rightly failed to differentiate between the sounds when they heard the playbacks.

POLLY'S

DEAR POLLY—Going to the supermarket on a rainy day can be a very soggy experience—keeping those paper shopping bags of groceries dry on the way to the car is a problem. I finally came up with the idea of adding plastic garbage bags to my list on rainy days. When I am being checked out, each bag is dropped into one of the plastic bags and is closed with the tie that is provided. The bags are then reused for garbage.—RUTH ANNE

DEAR POLLY—When traveling with my toddler, I carry his own small fork and spoon in my purse so he does not have to try to cope with the larger restaurant silverware.—MRS. R. S.

Polly pays $7.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

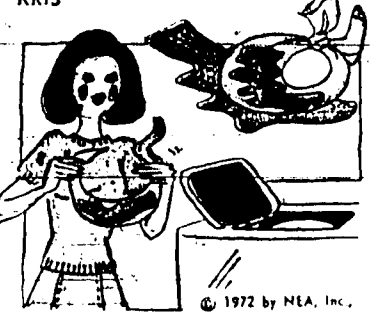

DEAR POLLY—A piece of very fine sandpaper stapled over the cardboard on a man's pants hanger will keep scarves and ties from falling off. Use the pliers to tightly close the staples so they do not snag the ties.—KRIS

DEAR POLLY—To keep a small child quiet in church or at other gatherings, take along a few colored pipe cleaners. The child can spend a lot of time twisting them into all kinds of shapes. Best of all, they do not make a noise if dropped.—DOROTHY

DEAR POLLY—If you find that stuffing a chicken or turkey is a traumatic experience, here's a pointer that lessens the odium of this chore: Shape an aluminum plate such as frozen pies come in into a scoop, insert the smaller end into the bird's opening and spoon in the stuffing. It slides easily down the chute, and with a minimum of spillage.—O. H. M.

DEAR POLLY—Those who use a rental laundry should place socks in an old nylon stocking, tie the ends together before washing and eliminate the danger of losing socks that may stick to the side of the washer. This also helps protect dark ones from attracting lint.—KRIS

DEAR POLLY—Always included among our vacation items is a live plant. My choice is a philodendron. I use a 22-ounce detergent bottle with the top cut off in a slant, add one-quarter teaspoon plant food, fill one-third full of water, place the vine or plant in the bottle. While we are in motion (driving) our trailer sink is the container for this plant as well as the tea kettle, artificial flowers and fruit or anything else that might fall from its place.—EM.

DEAR POLLY—If your refrigerator has an odor from being turned off and the door left closed, pour a tablespoon of vanilla into a saucer and leave it in the refrigerator overnight. The odor should be gone by morning.—GLADYS Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR FRANKIE LAINE, singer

You don't seem to socialize with show business people very much. Don't you like them?—A. O. P., Hollywood, Fla.

● No, not most of them. They're self-centered. It's like a caste system. You can't have more than one big name in a group. For instance, you put Anthony Quinn and Cary Grant at the same table—both great guys. People will gravitate to Grant—so how does that make Quinn feel? Now you put Quinn with Ricardo Montalban—a great actor. Now

Grant

Quinn

Montalban

Sinatra

Davis

Quinn gets the attention. Now put Sinatra and Sammy Davis together. Sinatra will get the lion's share of attention, even though Davis is the greater talent. In each case, one ego has to give in to another—or move to another table!

FOR JIM BROWN, actor

I've heard you talk about Black Economic Self-Determination. What do you mean by that?—E. K., Trenton, N.J.

● To me, there are many ways to work within the system. As an individual, I can make it—but there are many black brothers who think they can't. I want them to do things in an intelligent way—within the system—rather than operate out of total emotionalism on the streets. I've helped blacks get bank loans, start businesses, afford jobs to other blacks. They assume responsibility, and grow.

FOR JACK LORD of "Hawaii Five-O"

On a recent "Hawaii Five-O" episode there was a flashback scene of you in the Navy. The guest called you "Lieutenant." Was that your rank?—Iris McAbee, Mullins, S.C.

● I was never in the Navy. I was in the U.S. Merchant Marine and earned a 2nd Class Seaman's ticket, which I still hold.

FOR JOHNNIE MCKEEVER WALTERS, Director, Internal Revenue Service

What is the tax on prizes won by contestants on TV programs?—R. A. Lyons, Twin Falls, Idaho

● It is taxed as ordinary income. If the award is in the form of merchandise, the prizewinner pays tax on the fair market value of the prize.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE, TV actress

Why haven't you gotten married on your TV show yet? Do you plan to do so?—L. N., Kokomo, Ind.

● The producers and I feel we can get better stories about Mary Richards as a single girl than as a married lady. And we feel everyone on the show is so talented that we don't want to have another regular member of the cast—at least not this season.

FOR GEORGE MEANY

Some liberal critics have charged that organized labor has become a reactionary force in recent years, that it has become middle class. What do you say to that?—R. F., Yuma, Ariz.

● Well, if we're middle class, we started out many years ago when we were not middle class and tried to raise our people up to the status of middle class. And as far as I'm concerned, I want to see them raised to the status of high class.

FOR FLETCHER THOMPSON, Congressman, Georgia

Under what kind of passport did Jane Fonda travel to North Vietnam?—Mrs. Harold Platt, Gainesville, Ga.

● She was issued a "Tourist Passport" from the U.S. Department of State. Her trip was made with the full knowledge of the department. But there really was no choice; the Supreme Court ruled in 1967 that the Government cannot place restrictions on countries to which citizens wish to travel.

FOR LOU BROCK, St. Louis Cardinals outfielder

Do you think you can ever pass Maury Wills in the all-time stolen-bases category?—Becky Hines, Bloomington, Ill.

● The way I feel this year, I don't see any limit on the number of playing years left to me. And I've been very lucky that injuries haven't cut into my playing time. So I do hope to catch Maury in total stolen bases. This would be an enormous honor, since Maury is the man who put emphasis on base stealing in modern baseball when he stole an amazing 104 bases in 1962.

FOR NEILE ADAMS (Mrs. Steve McQueen)

Is it true that you were in a concentration camp as a little girl?—J. C., Canton, Ohio

● I was born and raised in Manila. When the Japanese invaded the Philippines, they put both my mother and me into a concentration camp. We started a good part of the time. We learned to steal to get by, and as a "lesson" to us we were made to watch other prisoners being tortured and killed. At least my father was lucky. He left Manila before the war broke out. Where to I never knew.

FOR EVA GABOR

How do you manage to look so young?—M. W., Redding, Calif.

● I keep running around like a maniac. I love to give parties. I just keep busy. You see, if you don't sit down, you don't have time to grow old. That's why I will never retire. If I am ever born again—which I plan to be—I want to be frozen for a while. I understand that is very good for you. Someday I will just drop dead. I think it is terrible that some people must retire at 65 and then they are just forgotten and play cards and all that.

Sybil Leek Selects: The 10 People Americans Are Most Curious About

By Sybil Leek,
Especially for Family Weekly

Sybil Leek, the well-known psychic, is a native of England who now lives in Indianantic, Fla. She has traveled thousands of miles in the course of her psychic and astrallogical pursuits, and has become the world's most prominent witch. In all these travels, Miss Leek meets thousands of Americans—who seek her out, in jet planes and lecture halls, to ask her about the people who make them curious. Here are some of her answers—about the people who make Americans ask the most questions.

JOAN KENNEDY

Every member of the Kennedy family seems to take a turn generating public curiosity, and lately it is the ladies who are overshadowing the men. In this Presidential-election year, Joan Kennedy, wife of Senator Ted, became a major topic of conversation in many American homes. Joan Kennedy is probably the most creative and certainly the most sensitive of the Kennedy ladies. Because of this sensitivity, it is likely that she lives in fear of being called on to stand by her husband's side as he steps every day toward the ultimate advancement of his political career. She may have a few more years of uneasy peace before she adds another page to the star-crossed history of the Kennedy family. Born with the Sun in Virgo, Joan Kennedy can always be relied upon to do her duty, even though it is distasteful to her personal inclinations.

GOV. GEORGE WALLACE

His way of taking a private war into the public arena of the Democratic party has made people curious about the innermost dreams of George Wallace. He appeals to the public as a non-heroic type who suddenly surprises everybody by displaying all the charisma of the hero. He even became a physical casualty on the political battlefield but refuses to be destroyed, a feat that is usually linked with a superman. He is probably more effective while immobilized in his wheelchair than he was when he stumbled through his campaigns. Born with the Sun barely in Virgo, the sign of service, Wallace has numerous strong forces from Leo also rooting for him. There are indestructible qualities about Leos, and Wallace is living up to them. He will walk again—but not quite into the White House.

CLIFFORD IRVING

People are still curious about this author. He has admirers who praise him for being "con-man of the year" and "avenging angel of the publishing world." Since he was born with the Sun in Scorpio, it is no wonder that Irving has a devious nature, with a capability to probe into the turgid depths of people's lives. He also has an exaggerated sense of the dramatic and is still capable of holding back a few choice morsels.

JACQUELINE KENNEDY ONASSIS

The widow of the late President John F. Kennedy continues to be a focal point of curiosity. Stories of her financial extravagance make many people wonder why she does not wear more of her fabulous wardrobe in public. Since she married one of the wealthiest men in the world, she has achieved the knack of making herself look like a forlorn waif. And she looks like a waif despite the fact that the jeans and halter-top swim bras are made by top designers. Jackie was born with the Sun in Leo, a sign that is famous for fantastically good memories. She could have been a fine actress. Maybe she is, using the world as her stage. She certainly thrives in the limelight. But she does a good job of faking happiness. It is a well-known psychological fact that the more a person relies on extravagant clothes, the less emotionally secure that person is. This almost answers all those curious questions. Alas, poor Jackie, a whole world loved her—once upon a fairy-tale time.

DAVID FROST

He became the brightest, freshest personality of the small screen. He made it big—a sparkling, silver-tongued, but down-to-earth Englishman, who gained new friends by his vast command of the English language and his good looks. More especially, he has the aura that belongs to someone who has managed to keep his bachelor status and still stay popular with ex-girl friends. The big question is whether the lovely, talented black star, Diahann Carroll, is the love of his life. Is David married to Diahann, and if so, where and when did it happen? And why must it be kept a secret? David Frost was born with the Sun in Aries, making it easy for him to scorn public opinion about his private life. But few Aries are able to keep a secret for too long. So maybe, this year, there will be an announcement.

FRANK SINATRA

It's mainly American housewives who worry about Frank Sinatra. How much of his private life has truly been laid bare? This leads people to wonder somewhat wistfully whether he is really the captain of his own soul. What does it profit a man to sing like an angel if he is not free to talk to his friends? The public is curious to know if he is indeed the prototype of the singing star in "The Godfather." Does he acknowledge anyone as his personal godfather or does he enjoy playing the role of godfather in his own life? Born with the Sun in Sagittarius, Sinatra has a natural inclination to follow a swashbuckling buccaneer life-style that is a teaser to public imagination. What he knows about the secrets in his own life is likely to remain secret, which befits his image as a living legend.

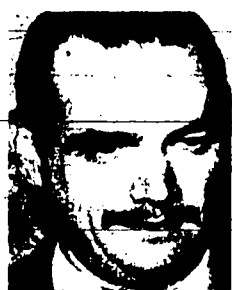

HUGH HEFNER

Born with the Sun in Aries, Hugh Hefner is a natural-born innovator, and he used this inherent talent to remove the taboo from sex. Combining this with a breakthrough in the world of publishing, he even succeeded in making his big-chested bunnies into harmless everyday symbols—touched by the same magic and money

HOWARD HUGHES

After the many stories that have been written concerning the world's most eccentric millionaire, it's a marvel there is anything left to be curious about. The major curiosity today surrounds the growing feeling that Hughes may not be alive—which evokes speculation about the manner of his death, and the reasons why it has not been revealed. If the last page of Hughes' life was written some time ago, who profited by tearing out this page? Born with the Sun in Capricorn, a sign noted for its longevity, Hughes could normally be expected to live for a long time. Except that fabulous Capricorns, with Saturn the ruling planet, are placed at the mercy of secret enemies. Especially when Taurus, the money sign, is involved! History shows that empires can fall into decay when the key figures are removed. But lesser figures can make a good show of bolstering the sagging structure until the time comes to reveal the truth. Many an understudy can play as fine a role as the leading actor.

power that Walt Disney achieved with Mickey Mouse. The main curiosity is about his personal life. Can a Bunny-Father figure find happiness by remaining a bachelor while surrounded by bevy of beautiful girls? Or is he like the boy in the candy store who, when given the freedom to eat himself silly, ended up never wanting another piece of candy? Perhaps this is why he has to seek sensations in so many avant-garde ways, through the extravaganzas of publicity.

big business, or even into the realms of the late J. Edgar Hoover. Agnew has played second fiddle for a long time, a role not generally liked by Scorpio subjects. But it could be a training period for what is yet to come. A recycled Agnew will still provoke curiosity well into the future.

HENRY KISSINGER

Mainly, the public is curious about the extent of his influence on President Nixon. When the dream of Camelot died away, Henry came along to revive public curiosity as a man of many hats. How could we not respond to a man who can travel into forbidden territory, pave the way for some of the most critical events in American history and evade the press at the same time? He has the lovable charm of most Gemini's and was born in this sign associated with dual personality. It enables him to lead his cloak-and-dagger life in a refreshingly versatile way.

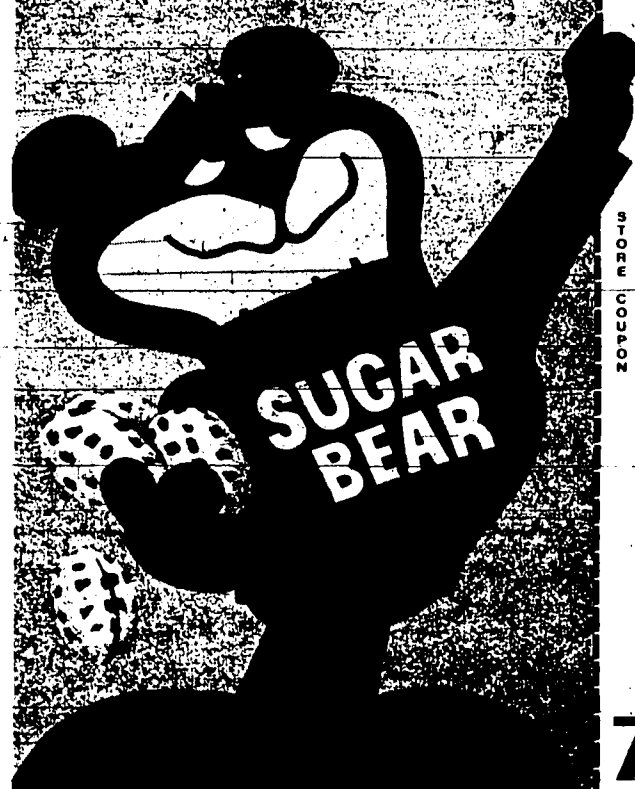

Sybil Leek's new book is "My Life in Astrology" (Prentice-Hall, $5.95).

SPIRO T. AGNEW

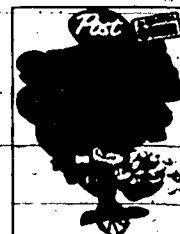

Public opinion divides itself into two distinct camps where Spiro Agnew is concerned. Those who like him see him as the epitome of what America needs, and those who hate him think he is a throwback to the Dark Ages. One thing is certain: He can never be ignored. It is not his personal life that commands interest, but his potential impact on the future of politics. Agnew is a man of many secrets, as befits one born with the Sun in Scorpio. He will take these secrets with him—into the world of

Do We Still Harbor Illusions About Sex?

By John E. Gibson

In spite of all the facts contained in all the books written about sex, many of us still hold certain illusions about the subject. How do your answers shape up to the questions in this True-False quiz?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The type of girl men find the most appealing resembles the "Playboy" center-fold type.
2. The eldest child in a family is likely to have the most sex appeal.
3. A girl's clothes provide an index of how much she dreams about the opposite sex.
4. Women with sexy figures experience greater self-satisfaction and self-confidence than their less bountifully endowed sisters.
5. In today's permissive society, free-love advocates have little to worry about if precautions are taken against such things as accidental pregnancy or VD.
6. As they grow older, men tend to lose interest in sex before women do.

ANSWERS

1. False. Men may enjoy looking at pictures of girls whose physical charms are so overwhelmingly evident, but studies show that a great many men feel ill at ease in the presence of one of these walking center-fold specimens. It takes a certain type of man to hold his own with such a girl, and not lose most of his poise in the process.
2. True—if it happens to be a girl. Psychological studies at two universities have shown that girls who are well-endowed with sex appeal and who are most interested in the opposite sex—were found more frequently among firstborns. A happy childhood was another predisposing factor.
3. True—according to psychological studies at a leading university. In the investigation, each girl was "asked to record all outstanding dreams that she could remember. The length of her hemline was measured from the middle of her knee. Repeated measurements were taken over a two-week period to establish consistency." Each girl's dreams were analyzed. Findings were reported as follows: The shorter a girl wears her clothing, the more likely she is to have a high degree of sexual symbolism in her dreams. This doesn't necessarily mean that she is more open to romantic adventure. On the contrary, she may be sublimating her emotional drive, and thus actually be less interested in the opposite sex than would usually be the case.

4. False. At Arizona State College, studies were made of two groups of women. The first consisted of women with eye-catching figures. The second group was selected at random from several hundred women whose figures were no better than average. Each group was given psychological tests and personality questionnaires. Results: "It was found that the physically attractive women expressed less satisfaction with their body image, self, and the sexual-social self-references than did the women whose body physique varied from the cultural ideal. . . . Results from this study also indicated that having a sexually attractive figure may lead to greater anxiety and insecurity."

5. False. A questionnaire study at the University of California indicates that "casual sex, while it may give an immediate if shallow physical gratification, leads to emotional confusion, frustration, and a sense of personal worthlessness." It was clear from the questionnaires, which called for the most intimate information on the lives of the individuals, that young people who seek total freedom in sex and in other matters end up in great emotional trouble.

6. False—according to studies of middle-aged to elderly men and women (45 to 69), sponsored by the U.S. Public Health Service. Findings: "Dramatic differences between men and women of like age were observed in regard to all indicators of sexual behavior with the men generally reporting greater interest and activity than the women. Only six percent of the men and 31 percent of the women said they were no longer interested in sex."

Are You a Sneaky Snacker?

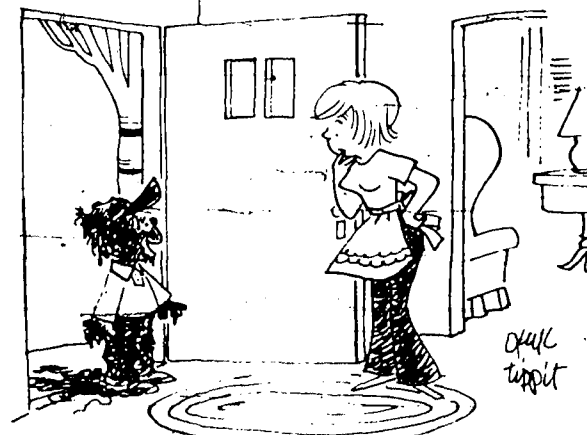

"I never even eat a whole meal!" an overweight woman tells a doctor at an obesity clinic. "—so I don't understand why I'm so heavy." She is being honest. Many heavyweight housewives actually never do eat complete meals. An obesity-clinic study in New York shows that such women are often snacking housewives—women who eat a mouthful of something while serving a meal to the family, women who "taste" a mouthful of this or that while preparing meals, women who eat the family meal's leftovers, women who say they "don't have time" to sit down and eat a full meal and instead grab something here and there. Many such overweight people would be shocked to realize how much—and how often—they eat. Those who snack rather than eat meals can often rapidly lose weight once they change their eating pattern: forcing themselves to sit down and eat full meals—and letting their snacking go by the board.

Understanding the Chip-on-Shoulder Co-worker

Though a chip-on-shoulder co-worker may be making your life difficult, a touchy co-worker is not really out to "get" you or anyone else. Instead, his anxious, aggressive behavior—"You can't tell Joe anything . . . he's got that chip on his shoulder . . . simplest thing starts him going"—is brought on by his being afraid and insecure. It's not power he's after. Just the opposite: He's using his unpleasant attitude toward others to protect himself and his job. Because he's so unsure of himself, the chip-on-shoulder worker has trouble taking any suggestion or criticism about his work, even if you deliver it gently and constructively. He's the fellow who, even when it's plain he has made a mistake, goes right on insisting that it just isn't so. Because he's so anxious, he's also the worker who frequently exaggerates and misinterprets actions and remarks that weren't even directed at him. If you can help your touchy co-worker to feel surer of his position and his capabilities, he may be able to relax and be easier to work with. . . . Or is it possible that your co-workers may regard you as having a chip on your shoulder?

Sports Mini-Profile

The Cowboys' Herb Adderley: His Brother's Keeper

Herb Adderley, star defensive corner back for the champion Dallas Cowboys and the only pro football star to play in four Super Bowl games, answers an emphatic yes to the age-old question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" While Adderley, 33, was growing up to become a successful sports hero and idol to young fans, his brother Charles, 34, became involved with narcotics, and while under the influence of drugs, stabbed a woman to death. Charles was given a life sentence by the courts in his native Philadelphia, but Herb has always felt he could be rehabilitated and has asked the Pennsylvania Pardons Board to release him to his custody and supervision. Herb has been active for many years in volunteer organizations that aid youngsters in trouble and feels a special responsibility to help his brother. Adderley's parents split up when he was 11, and his mother became both mother and father to him. He won Philadelphia's "Athlete of the Year" award at 17 and received an athletic scholarship to Michigan State University. When he graduated, the Green Bay Packers made him their first draft choice, and for several years he was the outstanding All-Pro defensive back who helped the Packers win championship after championship. Dallas wasn't able to beat the Packers until Adderley was traded to the Cowboys. Adderley still lives in Philadelphia, where his wife teaches handicapped children and his daughter attends a Montessori school. —By Barry Abramson

The Doctor Lets You In

What's Really Best For Arthritis Pain?

Of all human ills, the most dreaded is pain. And the most common form of human pain is osteoarthritis. Osteoarthritis is simply a degeneration of bone and cartilage around joints. It is not brought on by cold or dampness but is the "normal abnormality" of growing older. It may, but need not necessarily, vary with the weather, though it often feels worse in the winter. You can get relief for osteoarthritis from common analgesics such as aspirin, acetaminophen or salicylamide. But analgesics are only part of the treatment. Many people do not realize that reduction of body weight to lighten the load on joints also helps. Also, ask your doctor to prescribe certain exercises. These exercises are not intended for weight loss but to help you in moving around—to help your mobility. Ask your doctor also to check your nutrition to see if you are getting the proper vitamins and minerals. Liniments, when applied judiciously, may contribute to relief by reducing the associated muscle pain. Ask your pharmacist for a liniment that contains oil of wintergreen and use it according to the cautions on the label.

MOUSE TRAPS

are the best way to kill mice. Right?

WRONG!

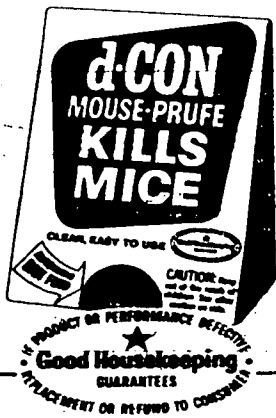

It's a fact, that mouse traps can cause more problems than they solve. If a trap does not accomplish a quick, clean kill, the job of "finishing off" the injured mouse is up to you. Or—if the trap happens to hit the mouse's tail or leg, he may hobble off, dragging the trap into the wall. But not with d-Con® MOUSE-PRUFE®...

MOUSE-PRUFE IS CLEANER. No disease-carrying, messy mouse traps around the house... no handling mice. And no disposal problems.

MOUSE-PRUFE IS EASIER. Just pull tab on the package and bait feeds automatically. Mice eat 'til they've had enough—and disappear from sight!

MOUSE-PRUFE IS SURE. Because mice always come in family groups, one trap is not enough. But one package of MOUSE-PRUFE can do the job of two, three, or more traps.

MOUSE-PRUFE does not contain violent poisons, so it's safe when used as directed—even around children and pets.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

This Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due to Infection.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Just see if doctor tested Preparation H doesn't help you. There's no other formula like it. Ointment or suppositories.

Teens Get It All Off Their Chests:

A List for Parents Only!

By Jhan Robbins

And we do mean parents only! If you're a teen, no fair to pull out this list and wave it at Mom and Pop. The rules of the game don't allow it—and besides, doing it that way will turn them off!

The late President Eisenhower was once asked about the drastic rise in in teenage-parent problems. He shook his head sadly and said, "Everybody agrees that problems exist but too little constructive information is available. Loads of complicated things have been written on the subject, but many mothers and fathers feel the advice frequently offered is so far removed from reality that they file the suggestions in the nearest trash can. Maybe the kids have some real simple ideas on what's wrong."

Recently we talked to more than 200 teenagers and got their counsel on "how to be a good parent." We conducted group sessions in Missouri, Massachusetts and New Jersey. The participating youngsters, ranging in age from 13 to 17, were encouraged to speak out—and they did. Some of their thoughts were duplicated, some were incoherent, some too obvious, others too personal.

We pruned the list and showed it to three psychiatrists who specialize in treating adolescents. They felt some suggestions were too one-sided, favoring the teenager at the expense of the parent. They recommended that we remove these. We did. Then two of the psychiatrists reread the list and agreed that the remaining suggestions could prove quite helpful to many parents, although they are by no means intended to be "rules." Since parents can no more regulate their personalities at will than children can, and since these complaints leave a tremendous amount of room for individual interpretation, the complaints form a "chart" for parents to peruse and study.

Their usefulness, it is emphasized, depends mostly on the parent's ability to read them here—to hear them from the lips of other kids, and not his own. A teenager shouldn't expect much relief if he waves this list in front of his parent's nose and shouts, "See!"

Here then are the suggestions the young people hoped parents would take. While you may not agree with all of them, they did have psychiatric blessing as "useful."

Teens Speak: (An Anthology of Grips)

- I think most of our fights are caused by my not understanding what you mean. You could help by explaining things more clearly.
- Is it necessary to always discuss my acne or my grades or my weight? It's bad enough that I worry about them myself.
- Must you ask me: "Who was that on the phone?" Please allow me some privacy.

• While on the subject of privacy—please, don't search my drawers or my closet or try to force open my diary. You wouldn't want me to search your personal things. If you suspect something, come right out and ask me.

• Sometimes I want to be left alone at home. The way I see it, occasionally the parents should get away and leave the child behind. How else can you build up trust?

• Don't reward me with dollar bills for each "A" I make. Not everything has a price tag. A word of appreciation is sometimes more valuable than a "reward."

• I hate being bawled out in front of others. If you have something to say, why can't it wait until we're alone?

• You say that you want to spare me and that's why you shut the door when you two fight. I suppose I can't solve all the world's problems, but who knows—in this case maybe I can help. In any event, I will feel needed.

• Don't keep telling me that you're sacrificing your life for me. I want you to live for yourself—not just for me.

• When I choose friends, don't always ask them what their father does or other personal junk that really doesn't matter. After all, if his father is a lawyer, will it make him a better friend than some truck driver's kid?

• But that doesn't mean that you should stand back completely. I really want my friends to know and like you.

• If you allow me some privilege, like using the car, don't always talk about it afterward—how you did something, real special. I may not heap thanks on you, but I am appreciative!

• Don't laugh, but I really want you to read something I've read—and talk about it with me afterward. You'll say that this won't work. But who knows?

• You may think my phonograph records and other stuff like that are real junk. Maybe I'm wrong, but it makes me think that you find it necessary to dislike things I like. I'll bet that if you gave those records half a chance you'd get to like them.

• I'm likely to close my ears when you start a conversation with, "When I was your age..." I just can't picture you my age!

• Aren't there times when you're in a foul mood and want to be left alone? That goes for me, too.

• Sometimes you could be wrong. When you make a mistake, please admit it. That will sure help us become friends.

• You want me to tell the truth, but sometimes when I do, you hold it against me. This makes me think that the next time I should lie.

• If I spend my allowance on some dopey things—lecture me about it, but please don't keep harping on it. You don't have to repeat things like that over and over.

• Some conversations on things like sex should be repeated. One drawn-out conversation on the subject that covers A to Z is hard to follow. But that doesn't necessarily mean a long series of lectures.

• About talks on sex, I guess it's pretty natural for you to feel kind of embarrassed. I suppose I feel that way, too. However, my friends tell me that it soon goes away.

• My going steady may seem foolish to you, but if you laugh at it and make fun of it, that just makes me even more determined. I think I could choose a marriage partner more wisely—and maybe be more willing to wait—if you'd take things a little easier.

• Please don't try to be one of the gang; I want a mother and father—not more pals.

• Sure, it's nice that you look young. But the truth is that I don't really want you to look too young.

• I really want to have "heart-to-heart" talks with you, and I'm hoping they don't turn out to be silly or embarrassing. Try to remember that, even though I'm your child, I'm a separate human being!

How Mr. Liptai and Mr. Rowe QUIT SMOKING FOR GOOD

A lot of people write telling how they quit smoking with the aid of Bantron. A common feature of many of these letters tells how Bantron succeeded when nothing else could.

Mr. Peter Liptai of Baldwin Park, California writes: "I have lost count long ago of how many times I have tried to quit and failed. Now with the help of Bantron I have finally kicked the habit and joined the unhooked generation."

This is from Mr. John M. Rowe of Reeds Ferry, New Hampshire: "I have tried many times in 20 years to stop smoking. When I tried Bantron it was with little faith. But it worked, and this is forever, I am sure."

What is the special thing about Bantron that enabled it to do the job for Mr. Liptai and Mr. Rowe when nothing else could?

The answer is that Bantron is the only major smoking deterrent containing buffered Lobeline Sulfate.

Lobeline Sulfate (even without buffering) is an effective smoking deterrent, proven in clinical tests. It works not by making smoking unpleasant, but by acting as a substitute for nicotine in the system. It helps to reduce the craving and withdrawal symptoms. But taken in sufficient quantities to be an effective substitute for nicotine, Lobeline by itself often upsets the stomach.

However, some years ago, researchers in a great American University discovered that buffering Lobeline Sulfate with two special antacids virtually eliminated any likelihood of stomach upset. This discovery was a great breakthrough. It was immediately patented, and is now available in Bantron. Because of this discovery, Bantron contains four times as much Lobeline in a single dose as any major smoking deterrent sold in drug stores.

Before Bantron was put on the market it was thoroughly researched. It was tested on hundreds of people who wanted to quit smoking. In these clinical tests, 83%, more than 4 out of 5, quit easily and pleasantly, with the help of Bantron, in only 5 to 7 days.

That's a pretty good batting average isn't it? Why not try Bantron yourself. Join Mr. Liptai and Mr. Rowe and quit smoking for good.

The Franklin Mint presents

The Twelve Days of Christmas Spoons

in Solid Sterling Silver

FOR THOSE WHO WISH to give a most unusual — and most valuable — gift this Christmas, The Franklin Mint has created this set of original Collector's Spoons in solid sterling silver.

This is the only time you will have the opportunity to acquire this beautiful set this year; it will not be available in gift shops or retail stores.

Superbly minted in sterling silver. The original designs have been meticulously minted in solid sterling silver to bring out the beauty and fine detail of the artist's work. The set thus becomes a true work of medalllic art — an intrinsically valuable as well as useful collection — impressive in its luxurious fitted chest of elegant design.

Those who receive this gift from you will be fortunate indeed.

For "The Twelve Days of Christmas Spoons" are certain to become treasured heirlooms as the years go by. Owning this set may also start one of your favorite people on a form of collecting that is extremely popular today: collecting sterling silver spoons of unusual design.

Each of the twelve spoons in the collection represents a different verse of the beloved English carol, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," as interpreted by the distinguished artist Carlos Sierra-Franco.

The poetic words are ideally suited to the sculptor's art: "a partridge in a pear tree," "two turtle doves," "three French hens," "four colly birds," "five golden rings" — each of the twelve lovely verses is captured with delicacy and charm in another distinctive spoon design.

Convenient payment plan. Each set of "The Twelve Days of Christmas Spoons" in solid sterling silver, including the display chest, is offered at $145 on a convenient monthly payment plan. You also have the option of charging your collection on one of the credit cards indicated on the order form.

Because these sets require special minting, only a limited number can be produced in time for Christmas this year. To be sure of receiving the sets you want, and to make certain of delivery in time for Christmas, your order should be postmarked no later than November 15, 1972.

ORDERS SHOULD BE POSTMARKED BEFORE NOVEMBER 15, 1972

Ecumenism: the quiet revolution.

through their word, that all may be one as you, Father, are in me, and I in you;

I pray that they may be [one] in us, that the world may believe that you sent me.

I have given them the glory you gave me

that they may be one, as we are one—
I living in them, you living in me—that their unity may be complete.

So shall the world know that you sent me,

and that you loved them as you love me

There is no tumult in the streets. There are no screaming headlines. But a quiet revolution is taking place. One day, it may change the world.

The name of the revolution is ecumenism. It is the effort of Christian and non-Christian churches to come together in harmony rather than split apart in strife. Already, impressive progress has been made. Without sacrifice of principles, the differing parties have been finding ways to strengthen the bonds that unite them and to discuss the issues that divide them. The results show promise for a new age of truth, justice and peace.

But so far, the "experts" have provided most of the action. Now it's time for the layman to become informed and to get involved. That's where you come in. That's where we come in. We invite you to write for our informative pamphlet, "Principles of Unity." It's free. Nobody will call.

A handshake is the oddest thing. It's best when you don't wear a ring. For some can make a setting buckle And bring the blood and crush a knuckle.

Then there are those who, strong or weak, When they have shaken, while your speak, Hold on (and on) and won't let go. You think together you may grow.

Between the two, I'll take the crusher And not the holder-on, the gusher. For if it must indeed be one, Let fingers crack—at least we're done.

The noblest of all animals is the dog, and noblest of all dogs is the hot dog—it feeds the hand that bites it.

What in the World!

ACTOR JON VOIGHT
Women's Lib is healthy

Actor Jon Voight on Women's Liberation: "I grew up in a period where women were love objects. There's been a great deal of distortion in the image of woman in the U.S. Almost every other country in the world has a slightly healthier attitude about women—but they've had more years at it than we have. Women's Liberation is a step in the direction of communicating our anxieties and yearnings, and knowing none of us is isolated. Men have determined what women should be like for a long time, and it's about time that they hear the other side of the story.

Women's Lib may go way to the other side of the coin to straighten the balance out, but I think women understand that. What they're saying is that there are certain things men have been doing that have been damaging to womanhood, and I think that's very true."

America needs to reverse progress, says author L. Rust Hills. Here's how he puts it: "Just turn everything around and start going the other way. This would keep America moving, but now we'd be moving in the right direction, backward—from the complex back toward the simple, from the new back to the old, from the ugly and shoddy back to the lovely and sturdy. . . . This would cause no unemployment, because there would be just as much work undoing all the things we've done as there was doing them. . . . Not only would we de-mechanize America, but de-mechanize her quietly and slowly, without using any noisy machines. . . . There'll be a need to subvert our national mania that 'growth' is good, that it's 'vital.' A really vital nation endures in its best phases, refuses to grow toward its own extinction." From Hills' book "How To Do Things Right" (Doubleday, $4.95).

A Vietnam orphan finds a family.

An orphan toddler, named Happiness by nuns who found her wandering on a shell-pocked road near Saigon, came halfway around the world to find a new home. At the Paris airport, she met her new parents—Pat and Reginald Merryweather—and the youngest of her three new sisters, Celia 13. Mrs. Merryweather, holding the two-and-a-half-year-old in her arms after five years of waiting for a foster child, could only say, "Isn't she sweet? Isn't she adorable?" Happiness, to be renamed Maria, returned the compliment by giving her mother a lump of sugar and a kiss. Then it was home to Paradise, England.
